Congolese Beat Red Envoys; Plot Seen

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—Congolese state security police arrested two Soviet diplomats, beat them, tore the shirt off of one of them and seized "compromising documents," it was disclosed Wednesday.

There were strong government hints the "compromising documents" involved a plot to overthrow the central Congolese government.

The Soviet diplomats were Boris Noronin, embassy councillor of the Soviet Embassy here, and Yuri Miakotnykh, the embassy press attache. They still were held in jail despite protests of diplomatic immunity and the embassy itself was placed under guard.

The two men were returning Tuesday to Leopoldville on the Congo River ferry from Brazzaville, capital of the former French Congo, where former Belgian Congo officials have been reported planning to try to oust Premier Cyrille Adoula by revolt.

In Moscow, the government newspaper Izvestia attacked the Congolese gendarmerie as "handits" and linked the incident to nearly 30 American advisers serving in the police force. It said the arrest had been plotted, and demanded the diplomats' immediate release.

STILL IN CUSTODY

The Soviet Embassy said it had no news of the two men and said they apparently remained in custody. The Soviet Embassy was placed under guard until 5 a.m. and the electricity and telephones in the building were cut.

Two Czech Embassy members who wanted to enter the embassy Tuesday night were arrested by the guards and held until 5 a.m. A World Health Organization doctor who stopped to speak to the Czechs also was held.

Witnesses said the two Soviet diplomats did not object to a superficial search of their car, which bore diplomatic corps plates, at the ferry land place but objected when the plain clothes security men wanted to look into the briefcases.

The security police ordered them out of the car, and they refused to leave it. The Congolese seized Miakotnykh and tried to drag him out. Noronin clung to his colleague's body to try to hold him in the car.

DEFLATE TIRES

Armed Congolese gendarmes rushed to the scene and began letting the air out of the tires so the diplomats could not flee.

Witnesses said Miakotnykh tried to hide some papers in his vest and that a Congolese soldier grabbed him and tore his shirt open down the front while other gendarmes cocked their rifles and threatened to shoot if the diplomats did not leave the car.

"I was afraid they would be murdered," a European witness said.

Several witnesses said Miakotnykh gave a paper to his colleague who tore it up and swallowed the pieces.

Finally, under the threat of violence, the two men were dragged out of the car by their feet and prodded with rifle butts into a police pickup truck. They were driven to an undisclosed destination.

2,000 Seniors Will Tour Textile Plants In County

Over 2,000 high school seniors from Greenville County, and a number of their teachers and administrators will tour county textile plants this morning and be given an idea as to opportunities offered by the industry.

There are 23 plants participating in the program, now in its third year under the sponsorship of the Clemson Liaison committee.

School buses will transport the visitors from the various high schools to the plants for the tours which begin at 9 a.m. and continue until noon.

James Collier, industrial relations director of Woodside Mills, county chairman for the committee, was in charge of arrangements.

Gaston Jennings, group manager of the Greer and Tufting plants of J. P. Stevens Co., Inc., is state chairman of the committee.

Girl Is On Inside Looking Out After Store Closes

SPARTANBURG (AP) — A 10-year-old girl had plenty of time to shop in the big Sears, Roebuck Co. store here Wednesday, but the only thing she wanted was a way out.

Norma Prince had gone to the lounge shortly before closing time at 6 p.m. when she emerged, the store was dark and she was all alone, locked inside the building.

Norma, very frightened, was peering out a front plate glass window when a motorist "window shopper" spotted her. He called police.

A city patrolman arrived and from the outside, he managed to pacify Norma behind the big glass.

She sat down on a chair in the furniture department and waited until a store official arrived and unlocked the door.

Mrs. Wilma Prince, Norma's mother, by that time had been notified and was waiting to take her daughter home.

Liberal Demos Howl About Being Snooted At Events For Kennedys

DALLAS (UPI) — Squabbling between liberal and conservative wings of the Texas Democratic party set a tense stage Wednesday for the visit of President and Mrs. Kennedy to the state Thursday.

The man in the middle appears to be Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas. He preaches the New Frontier, but Texas conservatives think he still can see their side.

The White House made a determined effort to stay out of the argument. The story of Democratic politics in Texas for years has been liberals versus conservatives usually win.

The liberals are angry in the main because they think their spokesman, Sen. Ralph Yarborough, is being slighted. They started complaining as soon as the dates of Kennedy's visit — Nov. 21-23 — were announced.

The fight has continued since with almost daily outbreaks. The newest complaint came Wednesday from Fort Worth.

Probate Judge A. L. Crouch charged that Yarborough had to buy his own ticket to a breakfast Friday for the President while Congressman Jim Wright and State Sen. Don Kennard got free passes.

Crouch said the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce, sponsoring the breakfast, ignored seven Democratic state representatives from Fort Worth until one of them threatened to set up a coffee stand in front of the Texas hotel where the Kennedys will breakfast.

The Kennedys will visit San Antonio, Houston, Fort Worth, Dallas and Austin, winding up his trip with a deer hunt Saturday on Johnson's LBJ ranch near Austin. The trip is at lease semi-political.

When Baxton Bryant, a liberal Democrat and former Methodist preacher, heard last week about the arrangements for a lunch Friday in Dallas for the Kennedy's he telegraphed the President:

"From the invitation list so far in Dallas, one would think former Vice President Richard Nixon won and was coming to Dallas to greet his dedicated workers."

What stirred up Bryant was the fact that the Dallas Citizens Council, an organization of the city's most prominent executives, took charge of arrangements for the Kennedys' visit.

The president of the Citizens' Council is J. Erik Jonsson, chairman of the board of Texas Instruments and Richard Nixon's campaign manager for Texas in 1960.

Dallas is a Republican stronghold and the Citizens' Council took over the Kennedys' visit so they could make it non-partisan. There were fears that if the lunch was strictly a party affair, many of the city's most prominent citizens would boycott it.
