

A. Hitler, Nazi Victim

By HOWARD NORTON In The Baltimore Sun THERE is growing evidence that Hitler doesn't know what's going on inside Germany, because his own party won't tell him. ... It is clear that Hitler is shrilled from the complaints' says Loebner. ... This fact is affirmed by Louis F. Loebner, an American correspondent, who watched Hitler for years from a vantage point in Berlin.

Under Darkness And Censorship Another AEF Embarks

By Raymond Clapper A U S ARMY PORT OF EMBARKATION, THROUGH the courtesy of the War Department, I recently had an opportunity to see how American troops are moving out of the country in large numbers to foreign fighting fronts. ... The embarkation has little idea of the enormous amount of preparation that leads up to such an event. ... Shortly before dark we drove to where the troop trains were converging. They came from both north and south, a number of them arriving for the switch yards within five minutes of each other. ... Inside the ship the men were stowed away in

Platform Of The People Streamline The Dollar

Editors, The New York Times: With your endorsement the Congress has already passed the two billion dollar bank bill. ... We will not let our realists and visionaries shall make this daily goal, although it is men like him who are needed to turn the tide of victory. Let us hope that 'Capitol Hill' will continue in the same vein. MERCEUR J. BLANKENSHIP, CHARLOTTE, N. C.

"Funny how you can dance all night in those shoes, but can't walk five blocks in them!"

THE CHARLOTTE NEWS

And Evening Chronicle Published Every Afternoon Except Sundays by The Publishing Company, Inc. W. C. David, Jr., President and General Manager. W. C. David, 1765-1767 E. 7th St., Editor. The daily edition of The Charlotte News was established in 1928. The Evening Chronicle (established 1926) was purchased by and consolidated with The Charlotte News May 8, 1931. The News desires to be notified promptly of errors in any of its reports that proper correction may be made at once. MEMBER ASSOCIATED PRESS AND WIRE WORLD. The Associated Press is authorized to use the news for publication of all news dispatches credited to it or not credited to this paper, and also the local news published therein. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: For Circulation: 20 cents a week, one month $7.00, three months $21.00, six months $42.00, one year $84.00. WEDNESDAY, JULY 1, 1942

We Still Have Hope

By Paul Mallon WASHINGTON SOME disappointment is evident in numerous clubs and among citizen groups in relation to the failure of their joint statement to convince the Roosevelt administration to permit something very definite regarding the evacuation of Japanese-Americans. ... The Japanese situation has become so serious that it is imperative that the United States should have a good idea of what they can hold out for.

All of Southeast has been given as likely for the past two weeks. When that business was about 20 good Nazi divisions will be released for the delayed 'spring' drive in the Pacific Basin. The entire important part of the fight, that of evacuation of Japanese, would not only clear the Pacific but also the continent, an excellent Black Sea port into which the joint supplies be sent from the United States and the Panama Canal.

The Japanese situation has become so serious that it is imperative that the United States should have a good idea of what they can hold out for. The same thing has been said and said for tanks, trucks and other things. There are no more tanks. The Japanese tank is powered by a wireless diesel of a military type. ... The Japanese tank is powered by a wireless diesel of a military type. ... The Japanese tank is powered by a wireless diesel of a military type.

The dragging statement from Moscow, London and Chungking, therefore, would have been unimpressive and might have a shock effect on the Japanese. Impatient persons should face facts. Europe wants a second front in Europe but the decision to open a second front should be made on a military, not a political basis. The military has more to offer than they have enough men and material to win.

The Dutch Harbor raid was a surprise and the occupation of the Aleutian Islands (Barcar Island, Plover Island, Agassiz Island) is a matter of no importance. You cannot blame Mr. Roosevelt for this. The British were on the ground there. They had taken the island in 1941. They had no military material there for three months past. They had all they wanted or needed. ... The Dutch Harbor raid was a surprise and the occupation of the Aleutian Islands (Barcar Island, Plover Island, Agassiz Island) is a matter of no importance.

Government officials generally read about war news being everywhere with sugar, and they are not all forces who want to kill the Sugar Act. Apparently South coast states are not interested in this. They are not accustomed to handling as large a portion of the sugar as they have in the past. ... The country as a whole has a sugar surplus. Although the question of sugar is not so important as it is, it is still important.

Into the Dungeon Of Delight Henry R. Gould In "The Best I Know." Mr. Gould devoted one day in getting some powder in golf. It was late in the afternoon when he arrived at the course and there was a large crowd of golfers. ... The watch in the House is being given the works.

At the time the House was elected the law was that the chief bill to come from the department. This had the effect of severely limiting the field of eligibility and postponing the reorganization which the department so plainly needed then and still needs. ... The watch in the House is being given the works.

Today's Bill Thought Every man or woman who has a little faith, such faith has been justified in God's people. When they pass through the water, I will be with them, and they shall not perish. ... The supply of drama on Broadway is a review of the past, unsatisfactory season. It is far below the demand. They can't say, though, that La Guardia didn't try.

Applying for state unemployment insurance, a westerner was offered a job. He could only say no, as it would upset the continuity. Congressmen want gas made, and our can hardly blame the fellows, trapped as they often are in a closed chamber with an orator running.

Men Behind The Milestones

For Its Commercial Development Charlotte Has More Than A Happen-So-To-Think

This city's confidence that continuous growth and commercial development were its heritage by innumerable destinies must have received something of a shock in WPA's report on unoccupied dwelling units. Between November 1941, when a survey had been made, and the first week of June 1942, when the last survey was made, some 250 dwelling units had been vacated. The total vacancy in habitable white dwelling units was 612. Moreover, it was estimated that 1120 rooms in occupied dwellings were for rent—all this, mind you, despite the additional demands for housing by the personnel of the Air Base and Quartersmaster Depot.

Charlotte, plain to see, was suffering from the industrial dislocations of the war, and not receiving any direct impetus from war production. It is being re-located—will make for the future. But we think it will not be for long. It is as good a time as any to point out that while the accidents of geography and physical resources may play a large part in the exploitation of a community as a commercial center, progress in an ordinary city cannot be left to chance. Go back only two or three years and pick out exhibits in Charlotte's economic advancement and you will find that most of them did not simply happen. The forthrightness and energy and civic aggressiveness of Charlotteans made them happen.

The Air Base? Ben Douglas virtually hailed it here. The same goes for the Quartersmaster Depot, with valuable assistance from citizens who still prefer not to be identified with it. Our 100,000 people are to look a lot of searching for a lot of things. The Memorial and the new Post Office, the Hospital, the West Tower, the Board of the city and others, were probably the moving force behind the fact and have these recognized the second floor with valiant assistance. And in all these positions the Chamber of Commerce played an active role.

While typical Walter Wheeler subject was reminding of the signs of the coming economic group of 20 men, representing a cross-section of Charlotte's business, several of them were in a series of possibilities for immediate and definite cooperation with the War Production Board at Washington. Out of that conference came the appointment of a committee, and out of that committee's heroic and unrelenting endeavors came the shell-building plant. Do you see?

In sharp contrast to the election of Joyner a year and a half ago was the naming of Harbinger to be Chief of the County Police. This was done by the County Civil Service Commission only after the fullest consideration. The FBI was consulted, a number of candidates for the job were interviewed, the most thorough investigation was made by the diligent officers for the commission. And as a result of a public hearing in the first place, the signal has been that the County department has operated ever since with a minimum of trouble and a maximum of efficiency.

At the time the House was elected the law was that the chief bill to come from the department. This had the effect of severely limiting the field of eligibility and postponing the reorganization which the department so plainly needed then and still needs. ... The watch in the House is being given the works.

At the time the House was elected the law was that the chief bill to come from the department. This had the effect of severely limiting the field of eligibility and postponing the reorganization which the department so plainly needed then and still needs. ... The watch in the House is being given the works.

At the time the House was elected the law was that the chief bill to come from the department. This had the effect of severely limiting the field of eligibility and postponing the reorganization which the department so plainly needed then and still needs. ... The watch in the House is being given the works.

At the time the House was elected the law was that the chief bill to come from the department. This had the effect of severely limiting the field of eligibility and postponing the reorganization which the department so plainly needed then and still needs. ... The watch in the House is being given the works.

At the time the House was elected the law was that the chief bill to come from the department. This had the effect of severely limiting the field of eligibility and postponing the reorganization which the department so plainly needed then and still needs. ... The watch in the House is being given the works.

The Decorators No Hurry

Department of Interior Holds Up War Business Next Police Chief Ought To Be Carefully Selected

In the throes of wheeling a war machine, we had thought, our Congress might be more than a little preoccupied. Too much, indeed, was our idea, to attend to business-as-usual in more than a perfunctory manner. Obviously, we were mistaken. As a matter of fact, the House of Representatives, in the 1943 Department of Interior appropriation bill for the second time it passed the House originally at something over $400 million dollars. It came back from the Senate pared off almost 100 million—only a difference of some 24 millions, which was noted in the House.

In all, the bill which dealt with Indian schools, arts crafts, Soil Conservation, Bituminous Coal Distribution, Information Division, among other things, had suffered 200 amendments to be tacked on to it in the Senate. Mr. Sprague in the House said that Senate streamers had "bipointed" House conferees in joint hearings. They must have.

The debate went on indefinitely with talk of public business bandied about without care. Finally Rep. Dickson of Illinois called attention to the fact that the 24 extra millions were not chicken feed, certainly not in Illinois, and begged for a maximum of effort on military bills—and a serious attempt to head down other costs of Government.

For Mr. Dickson we were ready to cheer. Then Rep. Jones of Ohio had an idea. The bill, he said, was too long and the fighting for him in the Senate. An information bureau for the 1,250,000 coating over two million years, was a big item for him to swallow. He under stood from experts, he said, that the whole Government needed this money for information bureau.

In the long run, the 200 amendments, a good deal of the political 250 of the highly-regarded Representatives, who spoke seemed to realize that they were tiddling with a world burned. They implicitly wanted to keep down the cost. We wondered that admirable, but aware, if we ever had the chance, to cast a vote for a certain Rep. Keith of Pennsylvania, who had an answer for the whole shebang.

When asked if the War Production Board had not recommended a certain item in the bill, he said in a somewhat item to be immortal words: "There is always somebody recommending something."