CHARLOTTE LAUNDRY, Inc.

Dial 3-5191

"You know, Martha, we have been talking back and forth on the telephone for years. It is one of the most enjoyable breaks in the day for me. Right now, though, I called to ask you to help me help our best friend-Uncle Sam!

"They tell me that he makes millions of vital war calls every day and all his calls come on top of the calls folks like you and me make every day!

"It never dawned on me until yesterday at our Red Cross meeting, when we were chatting about cutting down on coffee and sugar, that curtailing our non-essential telephone chats would make any difference to the war effort. Here's how it was explained to me: Every call we make must go through the same busy switchboards that handle war calls.

"So you see if we, and everyone else, talk less we will help to keep busy telephone equipment free for prompt handling of the vital business of war. I don't mean for us to stop calling altogether, but just that we not call so often and try not to talk so long when we do call."

With such cooperation your telephone company's problem of serving our Nation at War will become much simpler.
