STEADY STREAM OF MEN

In their 50-mile-long aerial train, three waves of U. S. Ninth Air Force gliders carried "a steady stream of men, soutpment and supplies" to forces already fighting inland on Cherbourg Peninsula, Supreme Headquarters said.

Airborne troops have sesized bridges and roads, and joined sea-landed troops at some points, front dispatches, said, and some towns have heen captured.

The peninsula, affame with fighting axain supported by Allied sea and air power, was strewn with colored parathutes of troops and engineers, rations and equipment dropped from the sky. Two of the reinforcing air waves were two-plane glider combinations.

The German High Command admitted "superior for-ges" had established beachheads more than 40 miles apart, at the mouth of the Orne River and morth of Carretan, a and a DNB brondeast said American troops, steadily being Feinforced, were engaged near St. Mere Eglise, between general and Cherbourg near the peninsula's tip.

DNB said the Allied bridgehead at the Orne River was about 21 miles wide and six miles deep at points, but degree the said and the said should be supported to the said of the said

U. S. Raugers and Beltish Commandos form part of the acousting forces streaming inland, the bulletin said.

The weather, a source of anxiety for Allied officers, has shown a very slight improvement, but landings are still difficult for the known.

German broadcasts also said Berce counter-attacks had been hurled against the Allica east of Cherbourg, apparently a major Allido objective, 65 miles northwest of Gaen.
