A Sample

Our Contest, Amazingly, Gives Carolina to FDR The letter-writing contest conducted on this page for the past month was undoubtedly a fair sampling of the run of opinion in this area of the Carolinas. Though we do not profess to regard it as a professional job of probing the public on the competing issue of Roosevelt vs. Dewey, it surely revealed in general way the feeling of our people. The results were not surprising.

Seventy per cent of our letter-writers spoke for Mr. Roosevelt, most of them in an impassioned manner. And of the 31 per cent who spoke for Mr. Dewey, the majority also wrote heatedly. All things considered we do not believe the partisans of either candidate outside their opponents as in general mood, and logical presentation, a survey of all the entries shows this pattern.

Those who spoke for Mr. Roosevelt almost invariably gave some reasons, though we do not know how many. The reasons were not surprising. A survey of all the entries shows this pattern. These who spoke for Mr. Roosevelt almost invariably gave some reasons, though we do not know how many. The reasons were not surprising. A survey of all the entries shows this pattern.
