

The Japs finally got a part of me": General Wainwright, banks country, recalls another cigar, one of those given him! areal MacArthur, which he was smoking as a Jap shell land him outside Mainta Tunnel on Corregidor. The blast peutly impatted his hearing. P. 8. He finished the cigar.

This is the sixteenth of a series by Gen. Jonathan M. Wain-tht, telling in detail for the first time the intimate story of his references as leader of our beliequiered forces in the Philippines ay's article tells of life on Correction and of the Jap shell which de to take his life but seriously imparted his hearing.

BY the middle of the tragically unequal artillery duel with the Japa, during the fight for Corregidor which lasted from the fall of Batana on April 9 until May 6, 1942. I tiched to use our two best gums on the pitiless enemy.

These were our twelve-inch rifles, two of the last gums with which which which which we could defend ourselves. But the Jap artillery batteries that were assaulting us from the tip of Batana, less than two miles away, and from Cavite, six miles across Manila Bay to the south of us, were almost impossible to locate. We had no artillery observation, as had they. Yet, just to have shot those two twelve-inch guns of ours at the wisps of smokeless powder haze which sometimes drifted up from the Jap gun positions would have helped our morale. But it would have been foolbardy to expose the positions of our two best gums. We fired them only at night, for they were to be our last defense in the heavy gun link for they were to be our last defense in the heavy gun link for they were to be our last defense in the heavy gun link fitten to twenty ensuing yet amounting this initial postwing the Adamounting this in the attaine Piet and Third Piet Adamounting the Adamounting the Adamount of the Adamount o
