

An End And A Beginning

It is hard to think back on this great day in the joyous relief of V-E Day...

no more will her blood be spilled in Europe. Her sons, at last, are safe. But there are millions, remember, who can think back today...

For it is eleven months and a day since D-Day on the Norman coast, and America has paid dearly for those months...

Today the minds of all men will have turned to that little red schoolhouse in the French countryside...

Not all men, we must understand, can bring themselves to celebration today, with the weight of these things bearing down upon them...

The Train Meets

You must not suppose that the millennium approaches, though there are certain signs before us...

Senator Bailey (whom the Irishmen in Washington call "Hot Joe") kicked his heel at a routine meeting of the Senate's Commerce Committee...

It seems a good bit of a bother to have to go to the polls a second time tomorrow in order to elect sixth City Councilmen who are already as good as in...

closer together. It gave promise. We have only one fear, and that is that Mr. Wallace might have been misunderstood...

Reminder

For the City School Board, two of the three places were just about nailed down in the primary. A tepid contest may develop over the three open places...

Statesmen At Work

Serious, factious and comic excerpts from the Congressional Record.

Mr. COGGERS (Texas) was discussing the Senate power of ratification, and found up his speech like this: A majority of the Congress can declare war...

The United States is rapidly becoming a super power. It is not to be taken as a nation which is not able to make a treaty...

On one day while 48 top delegates, including the foremost world leaders of the world, were sitting in the San Francisco hotel...

Mr. Wallace Speaks Out For Freedom

(Reprinted from The Reader's Digest as an excerpt from Mr. Wallace's speech at the National Statesman's Dinner, New York, N. Y., April 22, 1946.)

I am against a planned economy. It is against the freedom of the individual to do as he pleases with his own money...

In 1944 the United States contained three million separate business enterprises. Only three thousand of them employed more than one hundred workers...

Now, think I know how you feel. You are a small business man. You are a man who has a job to do...

Such is Point One. Knock down all arbitrary barriers that prevent a small business man from entering a business of his choice...

Excuse Us If We Don't Join The Celebration

The Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

ON October 9, 1934, a bomb thrown in the streets of Marsfield killed King Alexander...

Top Personalities

By all odds the two most dominating figures at this conference are Anthony Eden and V. M. Molotov...

Eden's Paced History

Molotov's recent speech, which seemed like personal history, Anthony Eden, Mussolini held him, recalled as him, called him "that boy" and spread a story...

People's Platform

Editors, The News: Your editorial of Friday, "Which Way is the Wind Blowing?" is your passport to the heaven where only the truly great newspapers go...

Agreement From A G.I.

Editors, The News: I want to express my deep thanks for your editorial on Argentina in the May 1 issue. It is just a little bit too stupid to have American soldiers fight Fascism...

Hitler's Evil Lives

By Dorothy Thompson

PERHAPS WE WILL never know how Hitler died, or when he died, but it is a fact that he created around his name...

the duty constituted itself process and duty arose law enforcement and the law...

at one time I was in the Army and I was in charge of Army and Navy relations...

He who in death is proclaimed the greatest of men, Hitler, was a man who had no soul...
