A Nest Of Reds

Henry Stimson. (you know, the Communist Mr. Roosevelt slipped in his Gabinet to unify the country! has gone just a little too far. He's been so active in recruiting members for his cell that the roving eye of John Rankin has fall-en upon him. The mad Mississippian is wise to Henry now, and has shown him up. He has also, exposed those other two frantical bolshevits. Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson and Assistant Secretary John'-J. McCloy.

Henry. Bob and John haven't been very clever. Their every move from the start has been suspect; they're subversice characters if we ever saw 'em. And we're happy and proud to be able to do but part in helping wild John expose them.

As a Federal District and Appeals Judge he had access to the inner councils of the Communities in this country. He too (through the N. V. And even if the evidence on these subversive rascals were not so conclusive, we'd be bound to respect the charge of Wild John. It's been almost a week since be stirred up his last beyy of Communists in high places.

The Other Side

Frank Graham is a foremost advo-cate of Federal aid to education and hospitals and rural health centers. He hospitals and rural health centers. He has been poing about the country, especially in the South where they still don't trust the Federals, speaking with the fervor and conviction which have always characterized him in action for things he believed in.

things he believed in.

He has, too, a number of good arguments, especially for aid to schools. His premise is that children, no matter in which states they may happen to be born, should have equal educational opportunities, but that in the South, with eight per cent of the national income and 32 per cent of the national income and 32 per cent of the national sinceptic special control of the property of the property of the national school of the property of

That's a matter of opinion, but ours is that it ean't. Any government which has sone for fifteen years with a budget hopelessity out of balance, which raised taxes repeatedly during peace times and still spent far more than it took in, which has just finished the most, expensive war in all history, with another war remaining on its hunder, and which owes in excess of in present of a trillon dollars, is clearly set in present in the tax the people who must pay this debt; an additional $300,000 a year for schools.

And where the Federal Government is fearfully overburdened, the states, which Dr. Graham proposes it relieve, are flush North Carolina has only recently, set aside out of surplus enough to retire its whole General Fund debt as it comes due. It enjoys a stable position, with revenue more than adequate to cover its expenditures. What mainly depardizes its position is that the Federal Government will so completely preempt the tay flush and the present of the present reoparoizes its position is that the Federal Government will so completely preempt the tax field that there won't be anything left for governments down the line.

the line. North Carolina, again, has taken pride in its continuously increased expenditures for schools, Legislature after Legislature has added grades, extended terms, made text books free, increased teachers salaries, all made possible by means of state laxes that are admittedly heavier than those of most Southern states. Does anybody suppose for a moment that North Carolina, offered Federal aid in proportion to what it couldn't, do for itself, would continue to distinct as one, leaves We think that, on the contrary, the settiment would be to let Sain do it. Wolves Together

Don't suppose for a moment that wolves are not salke, the world over. The Monks of Olde who loonge on the trevel convers, or in front of drug stores or curis shops, belong to a brotherhood surpassing all international boundaries. The Latin drug store vaqueres, eazing wistfully at trim numbers camouflaged in scrapes or whatind, may rely more heavily on imagination, but they're brothers under the skin. The bucks of the wild tropics, glimpsang some jumple chick in a get-up that leaves nothing to imagination is likewise one of the tribe. And in the great fraternity there are

And in the great fraternity there are common practices which bind all to-gether. There is the same stirring of the gether. There is the same surring of the pulse when a luscious chick goes un-dulating by. There is the same propriety of the covert glance (though it apparently varies slightly) governing all true followers of the sport. There is behind it all the same fascinating skirmish between male and female that touches even this low form of conjective.

tween male and female that touches even this low form of coquerty.

And yet there are barriers to set us apart. The word from Venezuela is that the whistle is forbidden. Whistle up a number in Caracas and you land in the jug. In that country, custom demands that the approach be limited to a murmur of appreciation—and no whistles at all. But there is a sampling of sweet northings which are acceptable. A wolf may address a delly as a fusicious mungo, or greet one of those twitch models atti, "then the world quivers and still decay," fail," That one, of course, would rechy you a sharp slap in this bailwick, ever land you behind bars.

What we need, obviously, is interna-tional collaboration. We shouldn't there be a United Wolves organization, com-plete with a Security Council and all the rest Only by mutual exchance and protection could we make it safe to point out the quivering beauties of gon-acheod in this country, to whistle in Venezuela, or yell the hubba-hubba at the velled queenles of Iran.
