Queens Puts New Plan Into Effect

The plan adopted for Queens is thought to be unique in some respects. In that the course of study for the freshman and sophomore years is constructed around a "core" of required subjects, the plan parallels those which have been put into effect at Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Northwestern Universities. However, the Queens plan was evolved by the college's faculty and administration, with the approval and cooperation of the Board of Trustees, to fit the particular needs of this institution.
