HUMAN DIGNITY IN HOLLYWOOD

THE bitter words of Teresa Wright, Hollywood movie star fired last week by her boss, Samuel Goldwyn, stirred a certain sympathy in all of us.

tain sympathy in all of us.

Miss Wright said something to the effect that a lowy $5,000 a week (her salary) wasn't everything in life, and she added:
"In the future I shall gladly work for less if by so doing I can retain my claim upon the common deeencips without which the most glorifled job becomes intolerable but with which the most humble can be carried out with dignity."

ried out with dignity."
Few details of her spat with Mr. Goldwyn seeped out of Hollywood, now worried by nation-wide box office apathy, the fiftrations of Rita Hayworth and the drunken escapades of the All-American boy. Robert Walker. Apparently she was muffed at some of the publicity stunts she
was supposed to take part in.

The point is that the tyranny of money extends up to, and beyond, the $5,000—a-week class—and śometimes people who make that much are less happy, and lose their health quicker, than the folks who live on a fraction of that.

Pay me less if you like, but treat me with respect," says Miss Wright, and she echoes the cry of people everywhere.

The North Carolina school teachers now standing firm for a 59 per cent pay raise next year admit-money comes fairly far down the list of improvements they seek in the teaching profession. They want self respect, a full measure of personal freedom, better tools to work with and many other things as much as they desire money.

A GOOD many devillah schemes have been cocked up in the South, and elsewhere, to disfranchise large blocs of voters. But few of them have been advanced with quite the brutial frankness of glovernor Herman Taimadge's latest foers. The son of 'Ole Gene said more than once during the campaign that 'II we can't have an all-white primary in Georgis, then we want one just as white as we can get it." If his_newest plan works out, it'll certainly be all-white, or all-anything else Herman and his followers want to make it.

The Southern press should be equally concerned over the Talmadge proposal, and not simply because it threatens to abridge the rights of many citizens, but because it becomes one more stumbling block in the way of a mutually satisfactory compromise between the South and the rest of the nation on the whole civil rights controversy.

Most of the thinking people of the South are busy right now trying to develop some positive program which will explain to the nation; the unusual situation in this region, and convincingly present the theory of "gradualism" in attempting to solve our racial problems.

Georgia's hasty, ill-conceived action may well add so much to the clamor of civil rights reform that other more sensible approaches will be drowned out in a new outburst of anti-South sentiment.

In ITS plans for a national system of Government sickness insurance, the Truman Administration is undertaking to throw out in great part the voluntary system under which the United States has enjoyed the best health of any comparable nation.
