Revolution Anniversary Celebrated

Soviet Speakers Assail America

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW — (AP) — Russian Red leaders today to celebrate the 32nd anniversary of their revolution. Top political and military chiefs accused the United States of fomenting a new blood bath of world wars. The program was headed by Georgi M. Malenkov, who asserted that such a war would mean an end to capitalism in the world.

It was evoked today by Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevski, minister of the Soviet armed forces, at the spectacular and traditional military parade in Moscow's historic Red Square. Vasilevski spoke briefly from atop the tomb where the Russian revolution's chief hero, Nikolai Lenin, lies in state in a glass coffin.

Vasilevski accused "warmongers" of pursuing a "policy of aggression and imperialism." He called on the Russians to "grow the might of our state," "strengthen our arms."

REVIEWED SOLDIERS

Tens of thousands of Russian foot soldiers, tanks and military weapons streaming for hours through Red Square in the annual parade over the marching soldiers led by Marshal Vasilevski's son, Gen. Vasily Stalin, flying in a fighter plane.

Vasilevski reviewed the parade from atop Lenin's tomb. The program was headed by Deputy Prime V. M. Molotov and Vasilevski, which passed through Moscow's Red Square last night or today's parade. Stalin, the Soviet premier, was on vacation at the time in the Black-Sea area.

Malenkov hurried his charges at the United States has called the principal speaker in ceremonies at the Bolshoi Theater, inaugurating the anniversary. He charged the United States with "provoking the cold war."

Malenkov vigorously asserted that the Soviets "do not want war and we shall do everything possible to avert it."
