THE POWER OF LABOR MONOPOLY

IF THE steel, automobile, and coal industries come up separately, they quickly would have been settled in a manner satisfactory to both labor and management without involving the general public...

CONGRESS IN HIGH GEAR

THERE may be some uncertainty about the public reaction to the Russian atomic bomb, but there is no doubt that the Congress is no longer desirous of hampering our defense program by petty squabbling over detail.

The House had previously voted $444,500,000 less than the Senate's $1,314,000,000 for the Military Arms Program. But when the conferees from the two branches of Congress met to make the bill, the House overboard the House economy move and agreed upon the full Senate figure.

DOUBLE DISPLAY OF BAD TASTE

ACCOUNTS of the half-time entertainment at the UNC-State College football game vary in some details, but agree in two: a sizeable number of fans showed extremely bad taste by booing the speaker of North Carolina, and the Chief Executive himself responded with some heavy "humor" which was equally in bad taste.

The first bores sounded when it was announced earlier in the afternoon that the Governor would speak briefly at the half. It was, you recall, Greater University Day, and the Governor of the state is the chairman of the Greater University board of trustees.

GREENVILLE NEWS ANNIVERSARY

THE GREENVILLE NEWS, Piedmont South Carolina's alert and vigorous morning daily, celebrated its 75th anniversary this week with publication of a mammoth 200-page special double issue.

LOCALITIES VS. THE STATE

WE HAVE heard so much lately about the encroachment of Federal upon State Government that we have not paid much attention to the encroachments by the States upon their civil subdivisions.

ated that the steel fact-finding board's recommendations for company-financed pensions and insurance plans be the basis of settlement. Reuther and Ford reportedly have agreed on company pensions, but still arguing about deterring the anti-trust legislation.

conference report quickly and sent the measure to the White House for signature. The Senate, after dallying with the military pay bill for months, voted without opposition to boost salaries of officers and enlisted men by more than $300 million a year.

Both of these measures are important to the success of our national defense program. The MAJ was a long time in the making, and the NAACPA is a long time in the making.

THEORY OF THE UNIVERSE
