SEVERAL weeks and months of legal and... A vocal resistance to the full enforcement of the city taxicab code, the owners of two of the three taxi companies have apparently decided to try new tactics. The past week-end saw most of the Red Top and Victory cabs idle in protest over recent Council action...

Mr. Bealy and Mr. Ienhour have opposed all efforts to change their system. Understandable reasons. It's a fine system. Their profits were guaranteed in advance. There was no way they could lose. And, most important, they were relieved of any direct responsibility...

THE CHALLENGING DECADE

On the front page of today's News you will find a provocative story by our staff. It is a study of the challenges of the 30-year program for Charlotte in the challenged decade upon which we have just embarked.

THE RATE SCHEDULE IS ANOTHER MATTER.

Perhaps the first meter rates were set without adequate advance survey. Perhaps the increase authorized recently was not analyzed carefully enough. Perhaps there should be a ceiling for long trips somewhat below the meter's normal reading.

GOOD BUSINESS AHEAD

...the fears that have been widely and loudly expressed in recent years—depression fears, war fears, inflation fears and deflation fears—appear to have had greater emphasis than cold facts. As a nation, it seems that we scarcely dare to believe our own strength.

THE GREAT MAN ACCEPTED THIS ANSWER.

The great man accepted this answer, and went on to tell the number years of the thirties, when he was desperately attempting to rouse his own people to their peril. All those years, he said, speaking in a tone of bitter rumble, he had known war was coming. He felt it in his bones. It was an unnecessary war, a senseless and a sense of urgency. Yes, one could say with fair confidence, America would stay the course.

Will America Stay The Course?

AT THIS beginning of each year, it is customary for wise men to try to peer into the future. In these days, however, the crystal ball is very cloudy, and the shapes to be dimly discerned therein are far from pleasing. It may be permissible, then, to substitute a recollection of the past which has a good deal to say about the present, for the more usual sort of welcome to another year.

FOR HERE, after all, was the great difference between the thirties and the present. In the thirties, Great Britain, then the free world's leader, met the German menace first with competence and then with appeasement. In the present period, America, inheriting Britain's role, has met the Russian menace with vigorous effort and firm determination.

On Betty Lou's Hand

Editor, The News: I HAVE been reading The Charlotte News for many years. I will appreciate it very much if you will allow me to have my opinion upon the subject in the annals of the little Betty Lou's Hand.

Quote, Unquote

The departure of Coach Wood from the University of North Carolina has been a very definite break in the continuity of the football program.

Drew Pearson's Merry-Go-Round

THIS remark was in "do you suppose that as he had been the first to recognize the menace of Nazi Germany, so he had been the first to see the real meaning of the Soviet Union's post-war imperialism."

British Double-Cross

IT ISN'T always the military who do the double-cross. But it is the most vital diplomatic negotiations in recent years that have been double-crossed by our closest good friends, the British.
