UN-HORATIO ALGER

RACK IN 1904 a Baltimore drygoods merchant, Charles Alger, who was the father of the late Horatio Alger, passed on his middle name to his new son, one of five children. It proved to be an appropriate name.

Alger was then a high school student and then to Johns Hopkins, where he was a campus hero and an outstanding scholar and student activity leader. Later he went to Harvard Law School, graduating with high honors and earning a year of advanced degrees as secretary to Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes.

After practicing law in New York, he went to work for the A. E. In Washington, D. C., and then to work for the U. S. Department of Justice, where he worked for several years under President Roosevelt. He was eventually promoted to the Assistant Secretary of State, assistant to the director of the Office of Far Eastern Affairs, director of the Office of Special Affairs, 1944, executive secretary of the Dumbarton Oaks Conference, 1945, secretary to President Roosevelt at Yalta and adviser general of the San Francisco United Nations conference; 1945, advisor to the U. S. United Nations delegation, 1947, president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

On Saturday, the meteoric career reversed its direction. A jury of twelve Americans agreed that Alger had committed perjury in 1948 when he told

CHALLENGE TO THE DRYS

GOVERNOR SCOTT phrased the issue of jury pay last week when he told the Allied Church League that he is very adverse for formerance leaders and their followers to demand prohibition without at the same time making plans to help enforce the prohibition laws of the State.

It is not enough to vote a county or a state bone dry and then forget our responsibilities as to temperance and prohibition. Yes, if we will frank with ourselves in order to ensure that there are no entirely too many instances," he added.

CLASSIC THEATER IN 'THE STICKS'

IONG prevalent among theatrical producers is the theory that "the sticks" would be a desirable place for a million citizens, is any locality with less than a million citizens.

Charlotte provided otherwise Saturday night when 2,100 persons turned up at the Arena Amphitheater for the Metropolitan production of The Tempest of the Shrew.

THE GROWING DIVORCE PROBLEM

THERE are more than 6,000,000 divorced women now living in the United States; that means that about one-sixth of the nation's adult female population has been divorced.

What does it mean? The first of a five-part series in The Saturday Evening Post reveals that it almost always means unhappiness. But does it mean more unhappiness than if the unhappily-married couples had remained together?

There is in the unhappiness of divorced persons, in the unhappiness of unmarried persons who consider divorce—the core of a question that has religious, economic and social overtones.

What is divorce the right thing? Some hold divorce is never justified; others declare divorce that there is no children; others feel that only grounds needed for divorce should be the mutual desire of husband and wife, providing children are cared for.

It is of course, a part of a larger problem, a problem being one of social change among them. Dr. Reuben Hill, research professor in family life in the University of North Carolina's Social Sciences Department.

The problem is the decreasing importance of "family" in twentieth century life. It is a particularly knotty problem because there is no conceivable way in which a family may be made to remain a unit. How to live is to remain a unit. One of the more tragic aspects of the a Federal grand jury that he had not given Whitaker Chambers State Department documents as transmission to Russia ten years earlier.

Hiss will, of course, appeal the verdict. And not until a final ruling is handed down by the Supreme Court are the American people kept beyond all doubt that the "strange relationship between Alger Hiss and Whitaker Chambers was as described by the latter.

It was not a crime to have pro-Russian sympathies in 1938. Many high officials of the U. S. Government had such sympathies. But it was a crime to pass out secret State Department documents to a known Communist, Chambers. Though the statute of limitations barred trial of Hiss on charges of espionage and treason, the conviction for perjury stamps him at least as a misbegotten traitor, and at worst as a deliberate calculating agent of a foreign philosophy.

While awaiting the outcome of the appeal, the U. S. Department of Justice might profitably accept Chambers' offer to help with proceedings against the other men he accused: Les Presman, John Abt, Nathan Witt, Charles Kramer, Henry Collins and Abraham George Silver.

There are also in the files of the FBI a jigsaw puzzle of prewar conspiracy and espionage in Washington. The American people would like to have the full picture. They would like familiar countenances appear there.

Retort From England

(When Charlotte's Clayton Hearfer returned last Fall from his English visit with the U. S. Ryder Cup team he was the subject of a column by Furpo-naturality to the British penchant for lengthy orations. "However the Yankee pros were supposed they were ear-banged to within an inch of their lives. Each dinner came equipped with a library of Community Chest leaders," the column read.

Democracy has been described as the greatest common factor of the greatest common enemy. Few people would contradict the assertion. It is a traditional attribute of our national credo. Equally served is our freedom of speech and expression.

There are two ideas to every question and dispute. The strength of Parliament is based not only on a clearing-ground of public opinion through chosen delegates, but as a example of the elasticity of give-and-take in reasoned debate.

To concede the right to criticize presupposes the corresponding right to answer. That being so, it is regrettable that Mr. Clayton Hearfer's recent state of criticism. In no way do we want to inform the area of the impending appearance of the famed Webster troupe.

In the past, several good road-shows have expressed a desire to present good shows here and have been deterred by local authorities who assured them that the city would not "buy it." There was a sufficient number of 43 tickets sold to indicate that the city will "buy" good theater if it is given the opportunity—and if the production is adequately promoted.

Probe Gets Results

DESPITE this, however, the probe began to bear real fruit when, last week, sixteen members of a California narcotics gang had indicted.

Actually, the Federal government cannot investigate gambling. It has the power to investigate income taxes, but although the public doesn't realize it, these are closely meshed with the gambling syndicates, until the organized underworld of the nation is now integrated and divided in about the same way that a railroad changes cars and engines at a switching station.

Two powerful officials have tried to block this investigation. One is the Attorney General in Washington, the other high up in the state of California.

ONE year ago two Justice Dept. lawyers, Max Goldschmid and Drew O'Keefe, gathered from various cities of the USA. Thus, very slowly at first, began the current probe of the nation's gambling syndicates.

Senator's Blast At Wallace Shows Ignorance Of Facts

By Joseph H. Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON RUCKUS about past events in China is a fine illustration of the common knowledge that a tangled tale we weave, when once we practice to deceive."

There were two paragraphs in the State Dept. while we practice on China were too fearful of Congress to tell the truth. Some of the writers have been planning to fill the columns of history by bringing out the suppressed facts. But the State Dept. has also been kept open all year of non-sensational and irrelevant charges.

A good example of this process is the recent, thousand-page memorandum from Sen. Homer Ferguson of Michigan, that all our China policy from 1944 onward was based on the false memorandum from Vice President Henry Wallace.

In the first place, a brief inspection of the Wallace memorandum, as it does not substantiate Ferguson's charge. What the former Vice President was saying was that there was simply the need for thorough investigation of the political situation of the Chinese National Government. This was advocated as imperative by every available expert and supporter of aid to Chiang Kai-Shek.

In the second place, Sen. Ferguson's charge is supported by the other recommendation that to strengthen Roosevelt from China by the itinerant Wallace. This was a recommendation that the President followed with a vigor that replaced Hill with Gen. Albert Wedemeyer. In short, Wallace wanted Roosevelt to get rid of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

It is clearly proved, however, that there has not been any continuity of policy of the Communists in 1944. It also shows that Sen. Ferguson has been taking his information from the same stricture apply to the attitudes being on all year of non-sensational and irrelevant charges.
