more attention, and to appear in substantial agreement.

Spaaking to the New York Herold Tribune Forum, General Eisenhower urged "a new economic alliance of free nations", Governor Stevenson called for American lead in developing a "coalition of free nations". Both pointed out the undestrability of foreign aid, calling for expansion of free markets. Both recognized the growing Soviet move to split the Western allies, and the need, not only for participation, but leadership, by the U. S. in cemeating the free world.

There is a growing recognition, voiced by Administration officials and leaders of both parties, as well as Europeans, that more trade will mean less aid, that the free native trade will mean less aid, that the free native trade will mean less aid, that the free native trade will mean less aid, that the free native trade will mean less aid, that the free native trade of an integrated particular community. The lack of ergons at present atribes home when one energy lists its various overlapping international organizations.

THOUGHTS FOR TODAY'S VOTERS

HERE are some direct quotes from an American political leader which have a direct bearing on the current campaign.

First, on Federal spending:

We are not getting an adequate return for the money we are spending in Washing-ton, or to put it another way, we are spend-ing allogether too much money for govern-ment services that are neither practical nor necessary. And then, in addition to that, we are attempting too many functions. We need to simplify what the Federal Gov-ernment is giving to the people.

"The experience of nearly 150 years under the Constitution has shown us that the he Constitution has shown us that the recoper means of regulation is through the tates, with control by the Pederal Government of the tates, with control by the Pederal Government of the tates of the Pederal Government of t
