Tar Heel Charges Duke, UNC Center Of Activities In 1930's

WASHINGTON — A North Carolina born former Communist has testified that the Communist Party had "a very large organization on the campus of the University of North Carolina in the 1930's."

Fred Crouch, who said he was a native of Moravian Falls, Wilkes County, told a Senate internal security subcommittee that during that time there was a large number of Communist professors at Duke University in Durham and a small number of Communist students there.

Crouch's testimony, given months ago, behind closed doors, was made public last night by the Senate group.

The University of North Carolina News Bureau said that Erickson received his Ph.D. from Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore and the U.N.C. faculty in 1930 as an associate professor of English and taught until 1946 except for a one-year leave which was connected with the Ft. Devlin division of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The News Bureau added that he left Chapel Hill to become a faculty member of Augustus Abbot College in Raleigh.

(The News Bureau said that Williams was a graduate of Notre Dame University, class of 1920, and was a part time instructor at U.N.C. from 1920-1923. The bureau said he left Chapel Hill to become an instructor at Michigan State College at East Lansing.

The bureau said Erickson was a native of Monroe, N.C., and that Williams was a native of Englewood, Colo.

He identified two University of North Carolina professors of the Communist Party in the 1930's as were Dr. Irving E. Erickson and Dr. Arnold Williams. Their present addresses were not given. He said Erickson was a member of the Communist Party in the period under discussion.

He had been critically ill since last Wednesday. Mr. Marshall, who lived at 500 Hermitage Rd., became 76 years old on Sept. 3.

After three years with that railway, he entered the banking business in the period under discussion.

He testified that he was "located in a rear room of the Intimate Bar, owned and operated by Milton and Minna Abernethy. He said the press was 'purchased with money furnished by J. Peters of the underground structure of the Communist Party, the money being given to Alton Lawrence, a member of the district committee of the Communist Party of North Carolina, an undercover member of the Communist Party in the state secretariat of the Socialist Party of North Carolina at the time.'"

Sharks Battled With Fists

Survivors Tell Story

Alman 1/2 Norman E. Prosser of Durham, N.C., enjoys a glass of fresh water in Charleston after spending more than 24 hours drifting in the Atlantic Ocean in a one-man sloop. Prosser and eight fellow crewmen aboard the B-29 hurricane landing plane were picked up Saturday by the Georgia. He suffered arm and body burns from the flash fire which engulfed the plane Friday. NEW YORK (AP)—Two air force officers and two air force sergeants were among six survivors of a B-29 hurricane hunter which caught fire and crashed in the Atlantic last Friday. They arrived here aboard the Home Lines cruise ship, Nassau. Three other survivors, who were previously rescued by the Coast Guard, were among the survivors.

The Coast Guard is continuing the search for seven missing B-29 crewmen. Sgt. Charles Graybill of Landdown, Pa., said he and another crewman, James B. Henderson of Fushing, Mich., floated for 21 hours in their inflated Mae Wests. They had lashed themselves together with Graybill cord.

Graybill said they developed a seal one-two-punch to keep sharks away. But the 21-year-old sergeant said even so a shark nipped one of his hands. "Something rushed by me," said Graybill, "and then I felt one hand in a mouth. So, I took a poke at him to get loose."

Graybill said he and Henderson would "kick and splash" when sharks swarmed around them. Graybill wore bandages on both hands.

He said the United States was "responding to the proposals of Mr. Dulles." Vishinsky "reached into the pocketbook of the United States and handed out various old items." He said the Soviet delegate made a lot of complaints about United States actions and deplored tensions but gave no hint of Russian willingness to do anything specific under agreement and end any of them.

Korean Pilot Lands MIG Jet Fighter At U. S. Base

SEUL — A daring North Korean pilot today landed the allies a sleek MIG jet fighter — one of the deadly Red warplane for which the United States offered $100,000 last February.

The MIG's guns were still aimed when it raced unheralded from the sky to land at a U.S. air base near Seoul.

The U.S. command said the $100,000 reward offered for the first MIG to bolt to the Allies is still in effect.

There was no quick reaction from the Communists. At first the Allies refused to identify the pilot, but later in Tokyo Gen. O. P. Weyland, Far East Air Forces commander, said he was a North Korean.

Vishinsky Proposes U.N. Stop Output

Russian Spokesman Lays Down Policies

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — Vishinsky called upon the U. N. today to impose an unconditional ban on the production of atomic and hydrogen weapons without delay.

The Soviet proposal was said before the 40-nation General Assembly during a major policy declaration by Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei V. Vishinsky. The speech lasted one hour and 3 minutes.

The Soviet delegate also served notice that Russia was ready to make a vigorous fight to get the assembly to revise its earlier decision having nuclear and other representatives at the Korean peace conference. The Communist demand for this, he said, are justified and must be met.

The Soviet proposals on atomic control included hydrogen weapons by name, but otherwise followed closely Soviet disarmament resolutions of previous sessions.

Vishinsky recalled the United States as the real cause of world tension, charged Western policy in Germany, threatened to touch off a new war and declared the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was aimed at weakening the U. N.

Vishinsky "reached into the pocketbook of the United States and handed out various old items." He said the Soviet delegate made a lot of complaints about United States actions and deplored tensions but gave no hint of Russian willingness to do anything specific under agreement and end any of them.

Lawmakers Would Curtail Communist Propaganda

WASHINGTON — Senate proposals have called for tighter security laws to plug loopholes in permit Communists to flood America with propaganda in peacetime and set up underground press for use in war.

One step they urged is designed to force Reds to disclose printing equipment they allegedly have stored away for use in case the Communist party is outlawed or a war with Russia breaks out. Another would require diplomatic and consular officers putting out political propaganda in this country to register under the foreign agents registration act—thus labeling any propaganda they disseminate.
