French Sign Cease-Fire Agreement With Reds

agreements would not be published for several days, but their contents already were generally known.

YEAR TO MOVE

Civilians on either side of the partition line will have one year to move to the other side if they desire.

The French have the next 300 days to move out of the big northern cities of Hanoi and Haiphong. Until that day next May they will hold an enclave in the Red River Delta around those two major centers.

Cambodia and Laos will remain under their French-supported royal governments. Vietnamese troops which have invaded their territory—an estimated 10,000 in Laos, fewer in Cambodia—will withdraw in 60 days.

For military security reasons the date for the end of hostilities was not announced. One Vietnamese official said, however, that cease-fire orders would become effective in a week for the regular forces on both sides. Guerrilla fighters in the jungles and mountains would be given a longer period, he added.

ALONG RIVER

The partition line across Viet Nam runs along the Song Ben Hai River. It leaves Highway No. 9, a principal road leading from the coast across the country to Laos, in the hands of southern Viet Nam. The south also retains the major port of Tourane and ex-emperor Bao Dai's royal capital, Hue, both in central Viet Nam.

Cambodia did not join in the early-morning armistice ceremony because of a last-minute burst of independence on the part of her delegation. Cambodian Foreign Minister Tep Pan demanded until nearly 2 a. m. that his nation's courts be permitted to try Communist sympathizers for working with the Vietnamese invaders.

He agreed to drop the demand after the issue was ironed out in a long session with Mendes-France, Soviet Foreign Minister, V. M. Molotov and British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

The armistices for Viet Nam and Laos cover the area where most of the Indochina fighting took place. There was little fighting in Cambodia.

During the 300 more days the French hold Hanoi and Haiphong, the Vietnamese will hold five pockets south of the partition line. Then they must pull out for the north.

Neither side may bring in troops or war material, and no new military bases can be set up on either side of the line.

This prohibition applies particularly to any bases for the South-East Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO), which the United States and Britain are preparing to check any future Communist aggression in this area.

However, the organization, once formed, is expected to bring south Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos under its protective wing.

Signifying disapproval of the partitioning, the U. S. government had decided not to join in the general declaration which the other conference delegations were to issue later today taking note of the agreement terms.

Instead, the United States planned a separate declaration, noting the terms with which it agrees but ignoring officially those which it disapproves.

The U. S. delegation carefully avoided expressing any opinion publicly about the provisions of the armistice agreement, but from Washington Associated Press Diplomatic Correspondent John High-tower wrote that the terms were generally regarded there as a victory for the Communists and defeat for the free world.

The Vietnamese government of Bao Dai shared the U. S. attitude.
