

Hurricane Warnings Raised Along Coast

Area North Of Morehead City Alerted

Storm Warnings Up From S. C. To Maine

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane warnings were hoisted at 11 a. m. today from Morehead City, N. C., to the Virginia Capes as Hurricane Edna whirled its 115-mile winds in the direction of Cape Hatteras.

Storm warnings flew north and south of the hurricane area from Myrtle Beach, S. C., to Eastport, Maine.

Grady Norton, chief storm forecaster in the Miami Weather Bureau, ordered the warnings up in an 11 a. m. (EST) advisory and said the center of the tropical storm should pass near but slightly outside of Cape Hatteras by or before midnight.

"Precipitation should be taken for very high tides and dangerous winds on the North Carolina and Virginia Capes this afternoon and tonight," he said.

The storm at 11 a. m. (EST) was centered about 225 miles south of

BULLETIN

NEW YORK (AP)—The Weather Bureau reported today "It will be a miracle if hurricane Edna does not hit New York City head-on tomorrow."

The bureau said it would be one of the "most serious hurricanes in New York Weather Bureau's history."

Hatteras and moving about 10 miles an hour on a course slightly east of north.

WIND RANGE

Hurricane force winds extend 100 miles out from the center in the eastern semi-circle and about 50 miles to the west. Gale winds extend outward 150 to 200 miles from the center in all directions.

"Dangerous gales and high tides should be felt along the North Carolina Capes during the afternoon, increasing until the storm passes," said Norton.

Norton's forecasting territory ends at Cape Hatteras and predictions for areas north of there are made at Washington. Norton was reluctant to discuss the storm's possible effect on the North Atlantic coastal area "because it would tie the responsible forecasters' hands."

Residents of the New York and New England coasts were jittery as the hurricane lumbered in a northerly direction 30 to 12 miles an hour. Norton said it will begin to speed up its forward movement during the day.

Winds were expected to reach gale force (16 to 34 miles per hour) along the Carolina and Virginia coasts this afternoon and early tonight, reaching about 200 miles.

Edna, named for the fifth letter of the alphabet, had hurricane force winds 75 miles an hour or more outward from the center 100 miles to the north and east and 50 miles to the west. Gale force winds reached out 200 miles.

Earlier, a high pressure area to the north blocked Edna's forward progress and the big storm inched northward at five to six miles an hour. When the high pressure system moved out to sea, it cleared a path for Edna.

Very rough seas were reported over the Atlantic between the storm and the east coast.

Two ships rode out the storm as it crept northward off the Florida coast. The SS Fairland, out of Mobile, Ala., put into Miami after passing through the eye of the storm Wednesday. It encountered winds estimated at 120 miles an hour.

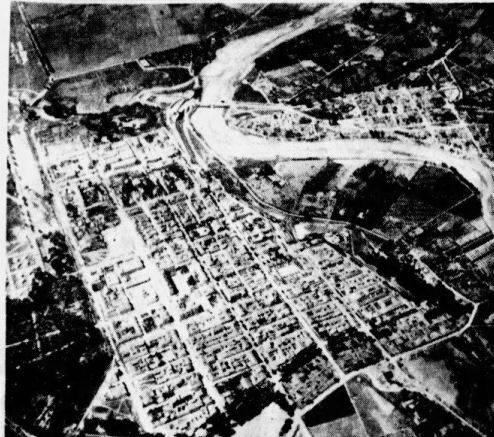

The Norwegian steamship Askvin reported herself in the hurricane's eye" yesterday and asked the Miami Coast Guard to stay tuned to her radio frequency. Later the Coast Guard said the vessel apparently came through safely and continued to Barranquilla.

An "area of suspicion" was reported in the Gulf of Mexico before

EVENING PRAYER

Gracious Lord, forbid that we should attribute to ourselves the accomplishments of man. Teach us to remember Thee in all things and to look to Thee who makes everything possible, including men's achievements. In Christ's name is our prayer. Amen.

Aid Rushed To Quake-Hit City

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP)—The earth still trembled at Orleansville today, more than 24 hours after the disastrous earthquake that wrecked a death toll estimated at more than 1,000 Europeans and Algerians.

Another 2,000 were believed hurt. Shocks less violent than the first were felt five times last night and this morning. One lasted several seconds, bringing down unsteady houses and great pieces of shattered walls. Blasted buildings in the heart of the town were crumbling into the streets.

There were 2,000 rescue workers and as many more troops, on the spot about 100 miles west of Algiers. The French army, which rushed all available troops and ambulances to the quake zone.

The French Interior Ministry said last night 590 deaths have been confirmed officially, but that most of them appeared to be European residents of the area. They said an accurate accounting of the quake toll will take many weeks.

With railways cut and many highways impassable, aid was flown in from Algiers and Oran. Two thousand soldiers from Oran and Algiers — bayoneted and prevented looting.

Planes which rushed doctors and medical supplies to the area returned with the most severely injured.

More difficult by the fact that many Moslems were burying their own dead without sending in any report.

The pickets were everything from adaptations of the latest Parisian styles.

Union picketing began in July when the employer declined to renew a contract and hired other workers. Last month the employer obtained a court order reducing the number of pickets from a high of 150.

Garment Firm Pickets Put On Fashion Show

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The garment workers added a high sartorial touch to a picket line, doing things up, of course, in fashion.

The AFL Garment Workers Union, switching its emphasis from numbers to color, yesterday paraded four women and two men in an impromptu fashion show on the sidewalk outside the Holmes of California office. Upstairs on the 11th floor, Holmes was holding a real fashion show.

Atomic Arms Arsenal Boosted, Says Strauss

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission says the United States has more atomic weapons in its arsenal than it did a year ago.

Strauss said the production of atomic weapons is proceeding rapidly but that they were having more difficulty with the Moslem dead. Casualty estimates were made.

U. N. Council Agrees To Hear Plane Case

Red Objections Are Turned Down

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The U. N. Security Council today overrode Soviet objections and agreed to full discussion of an American complaint that Soviet fighter planes shot down a U. S. Navy bomber off Siberia last Friday.

The vote was 10 to 1, with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky casting the only vote against. Vishinsky said a discussion of the incident might intensify international feelings rather than lessen it.

The debate was requested by U. S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., who charged the Russians violated international law by shooting down the bomber over open waters. The United States already had protested to Russia.

CHARGES DENIED

Vishinsky denied the U. S. charges and told the council the American plane had violated Soviet territory and had opened fire on two Soviet MIG fighters which were attempting to warn it away. The MIGs then returned the fire, he said, and the bomber flew out to sea.

Immediately after the council agreed to take up the U. S. complaint, Lodge took the floor to press his charges.

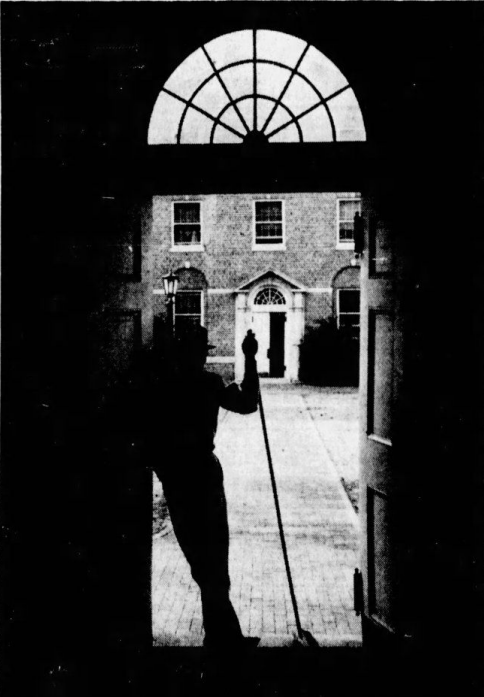

"The gravity of the situation caused by this attack is compounded by the fact that this is not the first time such attacks have been made by Soviet aircraft," he said.

He listed a number of incidents and added:

"These Soviet attacks show a continuing disregard for the generally accepted standards of international conduct."

Lodge did not call for any specific action by the Security Council, but urged Russia to enter into direct negotiations on the damages claimed by the United States or to consent to impartial adjudication of the issues by the International Court of Justice.

"This is exactly what the United States itself is prepared to do in similar claims which the Soviet Union might present," he said.

In His Own Defense

M'Carthy Finishes Testimony

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. McCarthy finished testifying in his own defense against censure charges today, and won agreement from the special Senate hearing committee to examine the "hot document" of the McCarthy-Army dispute and decide whether it will be accepted as evidence.

Chairman Watkins (R-Ill.) ordered a recess of the hearings until 1 p. m. (EDT). He said the committee would examine the paper meantime and announce when it reconvened whether it would admit the 2 1/2 page paper which has been gingerly handled by two Senate committees.

Also scheduled for the afternoon was a set of cross-examination of McCarthy who has been his own star defense witness. His counsel, Edward Bennett Williams, asked him only a couple of questions before the public session was called off today. Then he announced that McCarthy was ready for cross-examination.

TO 'INSPECT' PAPER

At a closed-door session just ahead of the brief open hearing the committee decided "at least to inspect" the controversial paper which McCarthy has been trying to get into the current case.

The disputed paper was produced by McCarthy at the recent hearing on his dispute with Army officials, but members of the committee which investigated that quarrel refused even to look at it. And Atty. Gen. Brownell ruled it should not go on any public record.

McCarthy offered it at that time

Gaffney Merchant Will Ring Bell On Brown

GAFFNEY, S. C. (AP)—State Sen. Edgar Brown who is scheduled to make the main address in Gaffney's sesquicentennial celebration here Monday night has been asked not to come.

Brown, nominated as a Democratic candidate for the U. S. Senate in a move that has stirred up statewide repercussions, received the invitation from officials of the sesquicentennial committee.

But at least one official—J. W. Smith, chairman of the hat division—didn't like the move.

Smith wired Brown: "I have learned that you have been invited to the Gaffney sesquicentennial as a speaker. Since I am chairman of the hat division, I sincerely ask you to decline the invitation as I feel since your name has been used so frequently by at least one-half of the population of Cherokee County, your presence will not be of any help to the Gaffney sesquicentennial. We have tried hard to let politics die down here."

Smith said he tried to telephone Brown before sending the telegram but couldn't get through to him, and then sent the wire.

Since Brown has given no indication that he will heed Smith's request, the Gaffney merchant said he is making other plans for his visit.

"I've purchased a big brass bell that I intend to ring continuously while he is speaking," Smith declares.
