Chilly Night Will Follow Record-Smashing Warmth

32-Degree Drop Seen For Tonight

Warm, sticky air from the South put the feel of spring in the air today as the temperature headed for a record-breaking 72 degrees.

The Weather Bureau said if the mercury hits the expected 72 it will break the present record of 71.8 degrees for the date set in 1947.

It was warm everywhere. On the coast Wilmington reported a morning 72, and it was 71 in Greensboro. Hatteras was surprisingly chilly at 65 and Asheville got by with a 68. But Raleigh was 70, Columbia 69, and Charleston 74. Miami recorded 79 and Jacksonville was almost as warm at 76.

But while it was warm in the Southeast, the rest of the country was cooler. New York City, for instance, shivered in a near-freezing 33. It was 36 in Washington and Memphis was cold at 44.

Even as the temperature rose more cold air was bearing down on the Carolinas, promising to end the three-day spell of unseasonably warm weather.

A low of 49 degrees is forecast for morning, with the mercury expected to rise to 50 in the afternoon.

Skies should be cloudy through tomorrow, although no more rain is expected after tonight.

Gray and grumbling, shower clouds scowled down on the Carolinas for the 10th straight day today and squeezed out a mile more rain.

The Weather Bureau said only nine inches of rain had fallen here since clouds moved in Jan. 20. A few quick showers should bring the total over the inch mark today.

Low temperature this morning was 59 degrees.

New Light Shed On Missiles

NEW YORK (P)—The armed services shed new light on their missile programs today by announcing hitherto unidentified projects and showing motion pictures of some of them publicly for the first time.

The disclosures occurred at the annual meeting of the Institute of the Aeronautical Sciences.

Maj. Gen. B.A. Schriever, head of the U.S. ballistic program, said the program was "beginning to pay dividends"—and that the Thor, Atlas, Intermediate Range Ballistic Missile had entered its flight test phase, while the Atlas and Titan 5,000-mile Inter-Continental Ballistic Missile programs had met "major milestones on schedule."

Schriever announced the existence of, and showed films about, two research vehicles, the Lockheed X-17 and the North American X-10.

Gen. James M. Gavin, chief of Army research and development, announced—and showed films of—a new Army "field artillery guided missile," the Lacrosse.

DREDDY ACCURATE. Gavin said the Lacrosse was "a deadly accurate missile for close tactical support of ground troops in the field."

Schriever also provided the first film shots of the Air Force Thor—an unrevealing view of the missile in the process of fabrication.

Schriever described the X-17 as a "re-entry test vehicle designed to provide information on problems which arise when the warhead of a ballistic missile re-enters the atmosphere."

He said the X-10 was a research vehicle for the North American firm, which is a supersonic guided missile as distinguished from the non-guided ballistic missiles.

Of the X-17 Schriever said the full story of this "highly successful re-entry test vehicle cannot be given since its flights are providing data of considerable military significance."

However, the X-17 is known to have re-entered the atmosphere at the Patrick facility.

A combination of Sergeant and Recruit charges against the X-17 missile nose cone high in the air and, as it descends, accelerates it tremendously with delayed booster charges.

These simulate at comparatively low altitude the temperatures and air resistance an ICBM will encounter in returning to earth from its flight trajectory hundreds of miles above ground.

Bogart Estate Over Million

HOLLYWOOD (P)—Humphrey Bogart's business manager, Margaret Marce, says the late actor's estate will involve holdings of $1,000,000.

He denied reports it would approach $8,000,000.

Marce declined to estimate the exact figure, saying this would not be known until all of Bogart's holdings had been surveyed.

He said last night that a percentage of the estate will be used to establish a foundation for various charities with Mrs. Bogart (actress Lauren Bacall) herself and a bank as trustees. The charities were not disclosed.

The business manager said the will is to be filed for probate in United States District Court in New York City on Feb. 1.

Sheriff Faces Inquest Tonight

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS. MARION — Sheriff Ashby Robinson of McDowell County faces a coroner's inquest tonight after the fatal shooting of a Martin construction worker last night.

The inquest is set for 7:30 at the courthouse. It could result in formal charges against the sheriff—or exoneration.

Coroner S. J. Westmoreland reported Sheriff Robinson shot Cohn Sprinkle, 43, in the abdomen. The wounded man died later in a Marion hospital.

The shooting was the latest incident in a long and turbulent period of office for Sheriff Robinson.

The report of the State Bureau of Investigation investigated Sheriff Robinson and his deputies.

SPRING HAS NOTHING to do with the calendar, as every three-year-old knows. Spring is when your mother doesn't make you put on your coat before you go out. Spring is when the wind dries up the puddles and blows your hair in your face. Spring is when the sun shines. For three-year-old Patti Rene Sparrow, climbing on the "Jungle Gym" in the First Presbyterian Church yard, today was the first day of spring.

Mideast Review Scheduled

WASHINGTON (P)—The Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees voted unanimously today to conduct a complete review of U. S. foreign policy in the Middle East over the last 11 years.

The vote was 90-0. Senate GOP Leader Knowland (Calif.) and Sen. Wiley (Wis.), ranking Republican member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the White House and State Department had no objection to the inquiry.

The action apparently cleared the way for ultimate Senate adoption of a resolution giving President Eisenhower authority to use U. S. forces to combat any Communist aggression in the Middle East. The Eisenhower resolution would authorize 200 million dollars of aid to Middle East nations.

The vote by the Senate committees came as the House began debate on the Eisenhower program with prospects of its approval in that body tomorrow.

When the King arrived at the Waldorf-Astoria there were only some 50 persons standing by to see him.

Known as a single person picket, the King's arrival, as had been expected.

If the monarch himself took any note of the excitement by the city, he did not indicate it.

Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., U.S. ambassador to the United Nations and personal representative of President Eisenhower, greeted the Arab ruler at the pier and said the King replied: "I am very glad to be here."

Several members of the two committees said they wanted clarification of what that meant. But it was generally agreed that the committee would not be bound by Dulles' language.

Knowland had told reporters earlier in the day, after a conference of Republican legislative leaders at the White House, that the administration would make an effort to cooperate with the review of Middle East policy.

Knowland called the idea of the review "acceptable" to the President and Secretary Dulles.

IDEA "ACCEPTABLE" Knowland emphasized that an original proposal advanced by Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark) was not acceptable to the administration.

Asked whether the proposed review of American policy in the Mideast in advance of any Senate committee action on the administration's Middle East program.

Knowland noted today that the Fulbright resolution has been amended to carry the proposed inquiry back to 1946, when the Democrats were in power.

Asked whether the President feels such an investigation would accomplish some good, Knowland said the consensus at a meeting of Republican congressional leaders with the President this morning was that "every effort should be made to cooperate."

The general meeting of minds as to a senatorial review of Middle East policy for the last 10 years seemed likely to speed action on the Eisenhower resolution.

RADIO A HELP BOLLING SPRINGS (P)—Police victim Martha Mason, 19, student at Garden-Webb College, died today.

She had a 97.2 average.

Swollen River Batters Town

BARBOURVILLE, Ky. (P)—The rain-swollen Cumberland River overtopped its flood stage by almost three feet early today, putting about 30 per cent of Barbourville under water.

Mayor W. C. Asher said he had called for the Kentucky National Guard to aid in evacuating the population of almost 3,000 persons.

Many of the town's streets were under 6 feet of water by 9 a.m.

Fire and police departments were helping remove citizens from their homes. By mid-morning, no deaths had been reported.

The staff of Barbourville radio station WBVL said the waters were rising at the rate of a foot an hour.

By early morning, the Cumberland's crest was 32.2 feet—two and a half feet above flood stage.

A floodwall is under construction here now, but not enough has been completed to help check the water.

Everett Lawson, an engineer at the radio station, said it was still raining.

Auditorium Alteration There's Reason For Hole In The Wall

A big hole, jagged and ugly, has been cut through the front wall of the projection booth of Owens Auditorium.

Manager Paul Buck said the hole was cut to provide a port for a spotlight needed for various stage productions.

"The booth had but one spotlight port," he explained. "We needed two. So we cut the hole. This was done some time ago."

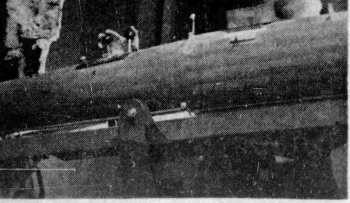

And recently windows were cut through the tiled Coliseum wall near the concourse leading to the auditorium.

"We needed more ticket booths," explained Mr. Buck. "So we cut these in."

Thus the two buildings, now less than two years old, are already being altered, though years of planning went into them.

Said A. G. Odell, architect who designed the $4,688,000 structures:

"We made a thorough survey of auditoriums before designing Owens. We thought one

U. S. Goes All Out To Welcome Saud

NEW YORK (P)—King Saud of Saudi Arabia got an all-out welcome from the U. S. government as he arrived today on a state visit. New York City, however, gave him only a cold stare.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner had vetoed any official city ceremony such as is usually given visiting dignitaries. Wagner said it was because the King is anti-Jewish, anti-Catholic and upholds slavery.

As a result, the robe-clad monarch was treated to a one-sided reception—bleaker in many ways than the cold, raw weather on his arrival aboard the liner Constitution.

Although a U. S. destroyer squadron passed in review and fired a 21-gun salute as the Constitution reached the harbor entrance, the customary cacophony of toots from other harbor craft was missing. No city fireboats showed up to spew water.

And when the King finally reached Manhattan, he got only a salute police escort of 10 cars—no fleet of motorcycles with sirens screaming.

Moreover, the police had been directed to halt the motorcade whenever it encountered a red light at an intersection on its way to the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, where the King is staying tonight.

Citizens themselves paid little heed to the potentate's arrival. At the pier on the Hudson River,

YULE PRESENTS COULD TOTAL 96 THIS YEAR

INDIANA, Pa. (P)—How would you like to be Tom K. Fleming, 86, when it comes to buying Christmas presents for grandchildren?

One of Fleming's sons, Harry, became a father at Erie, Pa. yesterday. It was his seventh child.

About those grandchildren. Well, Tom, has 76 now.

Evening Prayer

Dear God, we thank Thee that we do not need to be self-made men, but that Thou Thyself dost desire to refashion us according to Thy will. We pray Thee to make plain Thy will for us, and grant that we may allow Thee to use us according to Thy will and purpose. In Jesus' name. Amen.

Where's Charlotte Going From Here?

What will Charlotte be like in 1967? Will the city's unprecedented growth in the 1946-56 decade be matched during the next 10 years? What do business, civic, governmental leaders think of our prospects for future growth?

To get the answers to these—and dozens of other—million dollar questions, The News for weeks has been questioning the experts in many fields.

What we found out appears today, in The News' big Annual Business Review and Progress Edition. It's a fat 60 pages, Section C, of this copy of The News.
