WBTV To Screen Games

Tar Heel Fans Can Follow Team On TV

Charlotte basketball and television fans will be treated to two more telecasts of NCAA championship ball this weekend after successful negotiations by WBTV for rights to carry top-ranked North Carolina's final two games from Kansas City on Friday and Saturday nights.

games from Kansas City on Friday and Saturday nights.

WEIV officials have been fairly confident of arranging the telecasts all this week. However, they did not wish to make "premature announcements" and then not be able to carry the games.

Thus, Tar Heel enthusiasts, who watched WBTV's broadcast of the Chapel Hill warriors win in the NCAA Eastern Division championships last weekend in Philadelphia, will be able to follow their team right through to the bitter end, win or lose.

to the bitter end, win or lose.

The telecast of Priday's game, pitting the Tar Heels against Big Ten champions Michigan State, will begin at 8:30 p.m.

If Carolina wins Friday, the 10 p.m. championship game will be telecast Saturday. If the Tar Heels lose, the consolation contest (8:30) will be screened.

Sam Molen, a veteran Midwest sportscaster with station KMBCTV in Kanasa City, will handle the play-by-play commentary for television.

An All-American Team

The Charlotte News Sports Department received this letter from Buddy Chandler, Charlotte insurance salesman. It is self explanatory:

"In thinking about this great UNC basketball team I'm thoroughly convinced it is indeed a real ALL-AMERICAN TEAM in the fullest sense of the word, and should certainly be a shining example to the true, real spirit of America.

In History?

KANSAS CITY—The North Carolina team walked into the lobby of the Continental Hotel here last night looking neat and tall but obviously haggard from a seven-hour ride through the clouds. They carried their own bags, registered in the fashion of tired businessmen and hopped the elevator for their rooms.

Today they work out at nearby Municipal Auditions, and then begin the long walt for their biggest test—the adventure of trying to reach the NCAA championship finals. No tournament in recollection, says officials of the event, has the prestige of this one beginning tomorrow.

"After all," pointed out Art Bergestrom, who, incidentally, the chief investigator of the Jackie Moreland episode, "we et he No. 1 team (UNC) and No. 2 team (Kansas) of nation here.

have the No. 1 team (UNC) and No. 2 team (Kansas) of the nation here.

"The No. 3 feam (Kentucky) isn't present because Michan State knocked them off-said State now has apparison of doing the same to the Tar Heels. The No. 4 team (SMU) is missing because Kansas eliminated the Mustangs. As for San Francisco, the Dons could just be the Golden Boys of the group. Dont count them short by any means."

This fournament needs press agent treatment like a fellow medis to be told he's lucky when his blind date turns up as Minityn Mource. It has been sold out for weeks and you can get scalper tickets by pawning your Cadillac.

Green 'Made' Michigan State

Green 'Made' Michigan State

THE group discussing the coming event began growing with visiting coaches and publicity men and radio voices and the press from four corners of the nation. One of the lateroness was from Fred Stabley, a good-will merchant formers was from Fred Stabley, a good-will merchant for Michigan State. The Carolina contingent cornered him. "Well, what?" who the Act Stabley allow did you do it? How did you lock Kentucky after being down by 12 points at halftime. And at Lexington."

Stabley assumed the role of a man who had just found to form who will be formed a little awed by it all.

"We played great," he finally blurted, "I guess Kentucky will say they went to pot, That's right, But we played great. This is a hot team. We've won 11 of our last dozen."

Why the late start? Michigan State toused away seven of its first 1, games, then went to town in a big way.

"Fact is," said Fearless Freddie, "this John Green did for us. He was ineligible for the first half of the season. When he joined our squad, we started winning, He's a Negro boy who stands 65 and is only a sophomore. He can stand backboard."

-Nail 'Kangaroo' To Backboard

SEVERAL hours later not too far from the spot Stabley had stood to extoll the kangaroo efforts of Green, two of the Tar Heels appeared. Their coach, Frank McGuire, was with them.

"Hey, look at this," piped Lennie Rosenbluth, the supreme scorer of the Blue and White. "The reading the paper and it says this guy from Michigan can touch the top of the board.

"That's right," a bystander agreed. "Fellow was just telling us about it earlier in the evening."

"I'd like to see that," said Lennie, highly impressed with information. "Chamberlain can't get that high."

the information. "Chamberlain can't get that high."

Bob Cunningham, the lean guard and ice-nerved member of the team, looked disdainful.

"We have the sum of the sum of the sum of the sum of the high, they want me and Kearns to drive a nail through him and keep him on the board?"

McGuire shrugged his shoulders. He looked around the lobby and, noting it was after eleven, said he would go upstairs and get some sleep. He paused for a moment, as if in a "About that Michigan State boy imming so high," said the coach"—Two been wondering what to do about him. I'll tell you what. When he gets to the top of the board, we'll just have to dunk him in the basket."
