-Congress- Atomic Gifts Asked For Is Urged To Give Allies A-Secrets

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration asked Congress Monday for authority to give U.S. allies hitherto secret atomic weapons information, as well as raw materials and weapon components.

The Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) offered proposed legislation to carry out the President's recommendations for building up the free world's atomic defenses and avoiding duplication of scientific work among allies.

AEC chairman Lewis L. Strauss proposed that the President be given discretion to exchange any atomic weapon information with any ally which is making "substantial and material contributions to the national defense and security."

The authorization provided by AEC's proposed amendments to the Atomic Energy Act would stop short of providing for transfer of complete atomic weapons to other countries.

Strauss said "it is not the intent... to promote the entry of additional nations into the atomic weapons field." The proposed legislation is worded to encourage "exchanges" of information with nations already active in the field—presumably Britain, and possibly Canada and France.

Hearings
Rep. Durham (D-NC), chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, and Sen. Pastore (D-RI), chairman of its subcommittee on international agreements, said the legislative proposals were referred to the subcommittee and will be considered at executive sessions Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Public hearings will be held later, they added.

Eisenhower emphasized in his State of the Union message Jan. 9 what he termed the importance of removing restrictions on exchange of scientific and technical information with friendly countries. He said this would mean that all the efforts of the free world could be mobilized to speed up the Soviet bloc in technological war readiness.

The proposed amendments would remove from the act prohibitions against revealing "information concerning the design or fabrication of the nuclear components of an atomic weapon." Also deleted would be a ban against turning special nuclear material to another nation for military purposes.

The law as AEC proposed to have it amended would authorize non-nuclear parts of atomic weapons, military reactors and nuclear materials to be furnished to allies. Nuclear components of U.S. weapons would be retained in U.S. custody.

Military reactors could be made available to allies for both military propulsion and power purposes.

Navy Try At Space Given Up

Army Effort To Orbit Satellite Said Near

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—An attempt to launch the Army's Jupiter-C earth satellite appeared near Monday night.

The Navy plainly has deferred its own try with the Vanguard rocket and the Army effort conceivably could come any time between Tuesday and next week.

Unusual activity around the Army launching area—particularly in the movement of large cranes and other vehicles—could be observed from beaches near the closely guarded missile test center.

Furthermore, personnel identified with the project have reappeared here after absences of various times.

Dismantled indications of renewed Army preparations for a Jupiter-C launch attempt this week or next coincided with the partial dismantling of the Navy's Vanguard satellite-bearing rocket. The Navy was observed removing the second stage of its 72-foot rocket, obviously for corrective work.

Watchers guessed that there was little doubt that the Navy had given up for the present its effort to put a 6.4-inch satellite into orbit, and thus had left the field wide open for the Army Jupiter-C effort.

This new development in the misfortune-dogged Vanguard program became evident only because, after days of rain and fog, the launching towers on the cape again were highly visible in bright sunlight.

Secrecy
Secrecy cloaking plans for the two satellite projects remained as strict as ever. The Defense Department and the civilian scientists assigned to the programs are trying hard to prevent a buildup of the pressures and tensions which surrounded the Dec. 8 Vanguard launch attempt.

In that earlier try, the chances of success were vastly exaggerated. The result was disappointment and uncalculated bitterness when the Vanguard blew up on its launching pad.

The Navy tried valiantly much of last week to get its complex test vehicle through the last stages of its pre-launching program.

Heavy rains and high winds, day after day, compounded their problems, as did a series of mechanical difficulties. Many of the latter stemmed from the unreasonable dampness, and from the need to retain corrosive propellants over long in the rocket's tank.

At a last draw, two men were injured while working on the rocket Sunday.

Tax Committee Has Spent $1,467

... Terry's Group Expenses Largest

By BETTY PERSON
Star Staff Writer

Sen. Otto Liebers of Lincoln, chairman of the executive committee of the Legislative Council, Monday reported to the press figures showing expenditures of each legislative committee, with the Tax Law Violations Committee heading the list with expenses of $1,467.

Liebers had said last Friday, following a meeting of the executive committee, "One committee has come pretty close to its share of the funds, but I don't think it's fair for me to say which one," adding that to do so "would just cause the committee to lose some of its effectiveness."

The Groundwater Committee, was second on the list with expenses of $445, and the Secondary Boycott Committee was third with expenditures totaling $437.

The Installment Loans and Retail Credit Practices Committee has reported expenditures thus far of $200; the Healing Arts Committee, $148; Sales and Income Tax, $122; Fish, Game and Recreation, $117; and Retirement Systems, $15.

"The remaining four standing committees have not yet held any meetings."

The $14,000 Budgeted—The list released Monday shows a total of $14,750 budgeted for all 12 committees, and divides it on the basis of $2,500 for mileage and $6,500 for board and lodging. The expenses of the Tax Law Violations Committee were broken down to show that its chairman, Sen. Terry Carpenter, has listed expenses totaling $974. Other members of the committee have expenses listed totaling $121, and a third category for the committee lists "transcripts and miscellaneous" as $274.

Sen. Liebers said last week the total budget were divided equally it would give each committee "about $1,200," and said there would be attempts to help a committee that needed more than that amount.

Sen. Norman Otto of Kearney, chairman of the Sales and Income Tax Committee, said Sunday that he "would have no objection" to "sharing half of his committee's funds with Sen. Carpenter."

Three members of the Lincoln-Belmont family—apparently the victims of a triple murder—were found dead about 4:30 p.m. Monday in two sheds behind their home at 924 Belmont.

Dead here: Marion Bartlett, 57; his wife, Velda, 37; and their daughter, Betty Jean, who would have been 3 on Feb. 11th.

County Attorney Elmer Scheele said a preliminary autopsy report showed the parents died as the result of small caliber bullet wounds in the head. There were also cuts "about their bodies" which "may have been made by a knife," Scheele said.

The little girl apparently died of a skull fracture, it was reported. There were no bullet wounds.

Scheele said no one has been taken into custody in connection with the crime, but added authorities are seeking—Mrs. Bartlett's daughter by a previous marriage and her boyfriend for questioning. He identified them as Carroll Fugate, 15.

Carroll Fugate, 15.

Checked—Found Nothing
Mrs. Bartlett reportedly then returned to the home about 10 a.m. with two police detectives, but found Carol had gone. The police entered the home through a window, and finding nothing apparently wrong, they left. They did not check the two sheds at the rear of the house, which later yielded the bodies.

Bartlett's body was found wrapped in rags and discarded quilts in a chicken house and the bodies of Mrs. Bartlett and young Betty Jean were found in an abandoned outbuilding. Scheele said the bodies were not dismembered.

A hand-written sign on the woman's front door had this warning: "Stay a way. Every Body is Sick with The Flu."

Strike Is Staged By 275 Inmates At Montana Pen
DEER LODGE, Mont. (AP)—About 275 inmates of the Montana State Prison staged a sit-down strike Monday. Warden F. O. Burrell said there was no violence.

It was the first reported disturbance at the institution since a violent riot last July 30 in which several guards were held for a while as hostages.

Burrell said Monday night he did not know what caused the strike.

The warden said the strikers represent less than half the number of prisoners in the institution. The population is 414, he said.

The prisoners began their demonstration quietly and without warning shortly after breakfast.

The warden said they reported for work shifts at the prison and then the ringleaders apparently passed the word.

Armed guards herded the strikers behind bars to the maximum security cellblock without difficulty, Burrell said. However, the strikers resisted efforts to make them return to their individual cells at night.

Rogers Confirmed
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Monday confirmed President Eisenhower's nomination of William P. Rogers as attorney general of the United States.

The action came without debate and by unanimous consent with no vote as the Senate acted on a long list of nominations.

son Bros. Lincoln office where Bartlett was employed, said Bartlett had not been to work for more than a week. "Someone had called in and reported him sick," he added, "and Bartlett had no phone so nobody called him to see what happened."

The county attorney said it had not yet been determined how long the Bartletts had been dead before their bodies were found.

The car Charles Starkweather reportedly was driving was described as a 1949 black Ford, 1957 license number 2-15928. The car has its grille missing and has no hubcaps, police said.

The slayings recall the recent unsolved murder of Robert Colver of Lincoln, 21-year-old service station attendant also shot in the back.

He died from a shotgun blast early the morning of Dec. 1, after apparently being robbed at the Crest Service Station at 1548 Cornhusker—which is only about a mile from the Bartlett home.

U.S., Russ OK Plan On Swaps

...2-Year Exchange

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and Russia Monday agreed on a momentous two-year swap of films, radio-television broadcasts and about 500 experts in everything from ballet dancing to horse doctoring.

Soviet Ambassador Georgi Karabin, called it the most important achievement of his five years in Washington.

President Eisenhower applauded the accord, saying he hoped it would be carried out in the same spirit which has animated the negotiations.

"I sincerely trust," Eisenhower said in a statement, "that through such agreements, a better understanding will result between the peoples of the United States and the Soviet Union."

The State Department issued a statement hailing the agreement as "a significant first step in the improvement of mutual understanding."

The department, mirroring Eisenhower's words, declared: "It is sincerely hoped that it will be carried out in such a way as to contribute substantially to the betterment of relations between the two countries, thereby also contributing to a lessening of international tensions."

Conspicuously absent from the agreement were the two things the United States most wanted: An end to Kremlin jamming of Voice of America Russian language radio broadcasts to the Soviet Union, and regular unmonitored radio-TV communications on world events.

Not Fixed
The radio-TV broadcasts agreed upon will include discussions of "international political problems." But these will be at no fixed period and will be subject to a veto of the U.S. State Department.

The Russians did not get everything they sought, either. In the past, the talks which started Oct. 28, like the U.S. proposals, were deferred to possible later negotiations.
