Nixon Answers TV Questions

care all the nation's ailments overnight.

Nixon got perhaps his biggest round of cheers when he declared, "We don't think America is a second rate power, or a second rate country in any respect."

Nixon touched off another burst of cheers and applause in saying again that America can't afford to use the White House as a training ground to give a man experience.

Nixon concluded by calling on the audience to "go out and work hard for 24 hours and win this election."

The vice president swung into the Midwest from Alaska for a marathon final day of campaigning in his quest for the presidency.

By midnight tonight he will have sped 7,000 miles in 32 hours by chartered jet airplane in a barnstorming blitz, circling from Los Angeles to Alaska, the continental heartland and return.

VOTERS in all sections of the country have been asked to fire queries at him by telephone or telegram at the Detroit TV studio where he will appear 10-6 p.m. EST.

(The telecast will be carried locally through 6 p.m. on WSOC-TV.)

Nixon's jam-packed day also will include an airport address at Madison, Wis., his first stop today in the Midwest, a rally talk in downtown Detroit and an election eve bid for votes on network television from Chicago.

He will be joined in the evening telecast by President Eisenhower from Washington and running mate Henry Cabot Lodge from Boston.

He will vote tomorrow morning in his home town of Whittier, Calif. Then he and his family and a few friends will await the election returns in the Nixon suite at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles.

Kennedy Hits New England

a change in the balance of power in the world.

U.S. productive power "up to great purposes" is the answer to communism, Kennedy said.

"In my judgment the United States will be best served by a candidate and a party which recognizes the basic issues of our times, and that is that this country has to go back to work again," he said.

Kennedy said it doesn't take polls "to tell us that the balance of power is not shifting in our direction."

The Republican Party "has never been" committed to progress, he charged.

"Which way do you want to go?" he asked. "Do you want to drift or do you want to start to go forward and build U.S. strength?"

KENNEDY FOUND another overflowing crowd as he started his day's campaigning.

An estimated 30,000 gathered in City Hall Mall, a great open square in Providence.

Shortly before he appeared, a group of about 100 Nixon supporters skirted the crowd, carrying placards and chanting, "We want Nixon." Rhode Island, however, is considered a swing in Kennedy's column.

The senator's next scheduled stop was Springfield, Mass.

There, he renewed his flashing attack on Nixon on the same three points that he has been hammering for the past three days.

These, he said, are a decline in the economy, the falling prestige of the United States, and the danger of a widening gap in nuclear weapons between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Kennedy charged Nixon denied that all three of these are valid facts.

Louvre Expanding

PARIS (AP) — The Louvre has nearly doubled the number of paintings on exhibit in the past year, Culture Minister Andre Malraux reported today. Malraux said the number of paintings in France's greatest museum increased from 1,300 in 1959 to 2,500 this year.

The race is between Republican Rep. Charles R. Jonas and Democrat David Clark. Clark lost to Jonas two years ago by a narrow margin.

R. Hunt Parker, associate justice State Supreme Court; Clinton L. Moore, associate justice.

Rudolph I. Mintz, Judge Fifth Judicial District; Albert Cowper, Judge Eighth Judicial District.

A RACE which has attracted little attention is the U. S. Senate affair between incumbent B. Everett Jordan and Republican Kyle Hayes.

Republican candidates for state offices include Robert L. Gentry, governor; S. Clyde Eggers, lieutenant governor and David L. Morton, Charlotte, secretary of state.

Dallas Reese, state auditor; Fred Keith, state treasurer; Mary Jo Zachary, public instruction; Donald L. Paschal, attorney general; A. H. Farmer, agriculture commissioner; Paul Messick, labor commissioner; J. E. Cameron, insurance commissioner, and Paul West, associate justice Supreme Court.
