Kohler Counsel Tells Of Curses

WASHINGTON (AP)—Liam C. Conger, counsel to the Kohler Co., told the Senate Rackets Committee today he had been cursed in its hearing room by Emil Mazey, secretary-treasurer of the United Auto Workers (UAW) union. Conger's angry protest set off a round of heated shouting. At one point chairman McClellan (D-Ill.) threatened UAW attorney Joseph L. Rauh with expulsion from the hearing room. McClellan said all concerned he would seek contempt of Congress prosecution if he finds anyone threatened Conger or other witnesses.

EXCHANGE ACCOUNT

Rauh told the committee the exchange between Conger and Mazey had occurred in the hearing room last night. He said Conger had told Mazey he "had spies following Mr. Mazey."

Mazey finally told all a quarrel. "You folks who want to have a quarrel and cuss each other out, get out of here," Conger told the committee yesterday the company hired private detectives "to get information about violence" which has marked the 47-month-old UAW strike against the Wisconsin plumbing fixtures firm. The committee is investigating the strike.

RECOUNTS APPROACH

Conger told the committee today that shortly after the hearing recessed last yesterday, Mazey "approached me in a threatening manner and unloaded against me such foul language I would not repeat it here unless instructed by the committee to do so."

"It didn't intimidate me," Conger said, but he added that "such things could intimidate others if they are subjected to it."

Sen. McNamara (D-Mich.) said in advance of today's session there should be a vigorous inquiry to determine whether it was legal for the Kohler Co. to hire detectives to check on UAW pickets.

Evening Prayer

Our Father, we thank Thee for this day, for the light of Thy love, reach out to us through the darkness of our doubt and despair and bring us to the brightness of Thy presence. In the name of Christ, the light of the world. Amen.

Five Kids Killed--And Here's Why

NEW YORK (AP)—"I didn't want to fight, but I had to."

"I was told to go."

"I had no other choice."

So the confessions went. One after another, five of them finally.

And thus unfolded in court the personal stories of five more boys found themselves enmeshed in another tragedy of modern youth in the big city, youth lacking a normal, happy outlet for its eternal energy.

THE FIVE YOUNGSTERS and two colleagues, for lack of better pursuits, had turned to the excitement provided by juvenile gang membership on the teeming streets of New York. Now they are on trial for murder—the park playing of polo-crippled Michael Farmer, 15.

Two are white, two Negro, two are Puerto Rican and one came from the Dominican Republic.

Hour after hour yesterday their words were repeated in court in the cold, unemotional voices of two assistants to the District Attorney. But the boys' statements, taken shortly after their apprehension, carried an impact that shocked many a courtroom spectator.

One after another, their accounts related how young Farmer was beaten, kicked, slashed and stabbed, with fists, knives, chains, sticks, heavybuckled belts. The pitiful victim, on crutches and unable to defend himself, had just happened along as one gang was seeking vengeance on another.

EQUALLY AS DISTRESSING to court listeners were the stories as to how they came to take part.

"I wasn't willing to take part in the fight, but I would fight if I had to," 16-year-old George Melendez was quoted as saying. "I had no other choice but to go."

John McCarthy, 15, said he also "had to go there to fight." He, too, said he was told to go and he went.

Richard Hills, 17, summed it up with a different word. He was, he said, "drafted" to go and fight.

And Charles Horton, 18, related that once into the fray he swung a heavy bladed knife at young Farmer "to show the others that I was doing something."

Another, Lencio Delzon, 17, added an extra touch to his account. After the attack, he said, he went home, watched television and then went to bed.

The gang leader was Louis Alvarez, 17. What prompted him to lead his youthful minions into the fray? He didn't say. But he did say he was "groggy"—from drinking wine.

ABDUCTORS 'HOLED UP' IN THICKET

Two Men Cornered In Dense Woods South Of Monroe

By JOHN KILGO
News Staff Writer

Police were using an airplane today to search wooded country south of Monroe for a pair of gunmen who robbed and abducted a Charlotte used car salesman.

The men are believed "holed up" after a hectic chase that left a bloodhound "faded-out" and three officers injured in an auto mishap.

The bandits headed for the woods about 10:30 last night after State Trooper H. N. Smith ran down the stolen 1953 Mercury they were driving.

Police cars have the area off Highway 601 South surrounded to make sure the men don't leave the woods without being seen. An airplane is circling over the woods trying to find them.

"We spotted the men in a honey-suckle thicket about 10:30 last night," Deputy Sheriff Shelby Griffin told The News today.

"They fired five times at the bloodhound that tracked them. They didn't shoot at us because we weren't close enough, but they would fire at us if they're desperate men."

CARS COLLIDE

Deputy Griffin said another deputy sheriff, H. C. Dutton, State Trooper J. F. Sholar, and Special Deputy Reece William Funderburk were injured last night when their cars collided as they rushed to the scene to help trap the robbers.

"That's why they got away from us when we spotted them," he said. "Our cars that had the area covered had to go to the wreck scene and hit the two officers."

Deputy Dutton suffered a shoulder injury in the wreck, and Officer Sholar a broken nose, and Deputy Funderburk fractured ribs.

"We lost the trail of those guys about 4 a.m.," Officer Griffin said. "We didn't have but one bloodhound tracking them and he just pooped out."

DOG 'FELL OVER'

"He fell over. Couldn't run another step. That's when they lost us."

The two men forced L. E. Patterson, used car salesman at Folgers on Vance St., into the car after they had robbed him of his wallet at 8 p.m.

They stopped on N. Tryon St. to buy gasoline and then took Mr. Patterson to a new housing development 11 miles north of Charlotte and tied him to a vacant house post.

They gagged him and drove off. He freed himself after about 15 minutes and called police.

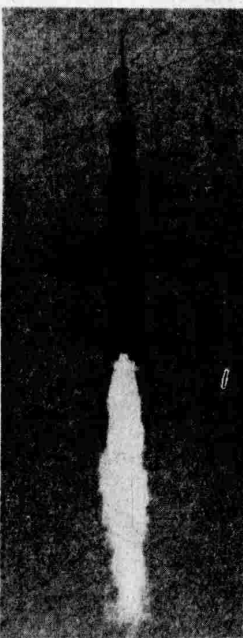

The men fled to the woods after their car was forced to a stop by Trooper Smith.

In their hurry, they left a .22 caliber pistol in the car. The gun is being processed by Charlotte police today. Identification Officers said the gun had nine rounds of ammunition in it.

Surprise Witness Tells Of Shooting

By BILL HUGHES
News Review Reporter

SANFORD—A surprise witness at the second murder trial of Frank E. Wetzel today testified he saw the shooting of Highway Patrolman J. T. Brown from a distance of "three to four hundred yards." However, V. J. Bean of Jaffrey, N. H., said he was inable to identify Brown's killer.

Bean, a well-dressed book match manufacturer, said he was driving from Southern Pines toward Sanford on Nov. 8 when first a "black" Buick, it was a late model, passed him, followed a few moments later by a Highway Patrol car.

Moments later he said he saw "a flash" from the shot which killed Brown.

A car, which Bean said was parked in front of the Highway Patrol car, "left rapidly" moments before Bean, who was driving with his wife, arrived at the scene.

He said he saw the patrolman lying on the pavement. He heard a cry of "help me." Brown was propped on one elbow waving the other hand, Bean said.

He described helping Brown to the seat of the Highway Patrol car where he said Brown "broadcast a description" of the other car.

Another witness this morning was Francis Bacha, a Barnesboro, Pa., hardware salesman who testified a 44 caliber magnum revolver was stolen from his store the night of Nov. 3.

The high-powered pistol, which the state alleges was used to kill the state's witnesses, was used to kill the state's witnesses.

Plane Downed; Captives Freed

OSAN, Korea (AP)—Communist batteries shot down an American Sabrejet near the Korean truce line today and the pilot reportedly parachuted "just over the Communist side of the line." Meanwhile the North Koreans released two American pilots and 34 others from a South Korean airplane hijacked 18 days ago.

The first brief Air Force announcement on the jet fighter did not say whether the pilot who bailed out was seen to hit the ground safely.

A second F-86 accompanying the downed Sabre returned to its base. The pilot reported he "saw the Sabre get hit and crash, and then immediately saw a parachute with the first pilot floating toward the ground just over the Communist side of the line."

The 26 returnees, who also included a West German businessman, his wife and 22 South Koreans, were turned over at the Panmunjom truce headquarters after allied representatives gave the Communists receipts for them.

One of the Korean passengers, Maj. Chung Moo Yung, confirmed that the plane was seized by Communist agents, one armed with a 43 caliber pistol and another with a rifle. The major said he and another Korean were hit during the struggle on the plane.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Moonwatchers today for a sky launched and mysteriously missing satellite Explorer II.

At the same time the conviction grew that the six-inch metal cylinder, 80 inches long and weighing about 32 pounds, never achieved an orbit.

There were persistent reports that signals from the Jupiter-C launching rocket convinced some Army missile experts, within the first hour after yesterday's firing at 1:23 p.m., that the final stage of the four-stage vehicle had failed to fire.

Officials of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency and of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, which built the high speed upper stages, were unavailable for comment. Werner von Braun, German-born head of the Army space program, left for Huntsville, Ala., before reporters could question him about the launching.

Experts said that failure of the final stage to fire on cue would have meant that the satellite, even though it was at orbital altitude of 200 or more miles, would achieve a velocity of only about three miles a second as against the five miles a second needed to maintain an orbit — 10,800 miles an hour instead of 10,000.

This in turn could mean that the satellite would tumble into the South Atlantic, or into Africa or the Indian Ocean beyond.

The cylinder would have traveled less than halfway around the world before tumbling down through the atmosphere.

In Washington last night Dr. Richard Porter, chairman of the earth satellite panel of the U. S. National Committee for the International Geophysical Year, told newsmen there was "some indication that the satellite is not functioning normally."

Porter said there had been indications from the Minutaur radio tracking station here and at one other point that the fourth stage did not function.

There is other information, however, that it probably did and that the difficulty is more probably the radio transmission equipment. Porter added.

At Pasadena, Calif., Dr. William Pickering, head of JPL, said there was every indication that the satellite was not functioning properly and that there was a probability that it was not in orbit.

Pickering said it probably would take several days to interpret technical data sufficiently to find out what had happened.

In Cambridge, Mass., the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory said it was alerting Moonwatch teams to be on the lookout for Explorer II even though it had not been determined whether it was in orbit.

Earlier Mr. Crosland had indicated that the individual observations of Thanksgiving Day would not be affected.

Charlotte merchants, who hear the Carroussel expense, also would like to have the parade on a day when stores are open.

Earlier Mr. Crosland said that the parade would probably be a football game on Thanksgiving Day and a final wind-up of festivities in the Coliseum with "some sort of tree show."

Directors and members of various Carroussel committees will meet later to decide the actual hour of the parade.

Big Carroussel Parade To Be On Saturday

By DONALD MACDONALD
News Staff Writer

Carolinians Carroussel directors broke the tradition of Thanksgiving Day parades in Charlotte today by unanimously setting the date for the 1958 Carroussel parade on Saturday, Nov. 22.

Moreover, the Carroussel celebration will last for an entire week rather than two-day observances of the past.

M. W. Crosland, president of the Carroussel, said the week's festivities will begin on Friday, Nov. 21, and will continue until the following Thursday, Nov. 27, which is Thanksgiving Day.

The parade will be held on Saturday as only one feature of the week-long series of events.

Preparations will be worked out later, Mr. Crosland said. But the directors indicated that events beside the parade will include musical events, sports events and "tree" entertainment.

The parade has had tremendous drawing power in the past. But Carroussel directors said they believe even more people will be able to come to Charlotte for the parade if it is held on a Saturday.

Charlotte merchants, who hear the Carroussel expense, also would like to have the parade on a day when stores are open.

Earlier Mr. Crosland had indicated that the parade would probably be a football game on Thanksgiving Day and a final wind-up of festivities in the Coliseum with "some sort of tree show."

Directors and members of various Carroussel committees will meet later to decide the actual hour of the parade.

Navy Escapees Taken With Girl

HIGHTSTOWN, N. J. (AP)—State police arrested three young sailors in a stolen car early today and identified them as escapees from the disciplinary barracks at the Norfolk, Va., naval station.

A 16-year-old girl was with them. Police quoted the youths as saying they had kidnapped the owner of the car near Kingston, N.C., and left him bound and gagged in the woods. Two pistols were found in the car.

The youths were identified by police as Robert Vernon Chivers, 18, of Boston; Franklin Samuel Hill, 17, of Hickory, Va.; and his brother, Delmar, Lawrence Hill, 18, and Delmar's girl friend, Carol Ann Clancy, of Hickory.

All four were sent to the Mercer County jail at Trenton pending further investigation. They were charged with possession of a stolen car and having concealed weapons in their possession.
