Laborer On Grill In Chicago Death

CHICAGO (AP) — Police have revealed that the detective testified that Barry Cook, a busy union construction worker, has guilty knowledge of the unsolved lakefront bludgeoning-slaying of a woman on a sunbather.

Shortly after Cook, 24, appeared in Criminal Court on another case yesterday, Frank Felie, first assistant state's attorney, said two persons made at least tentative identifications of Cook in connection with the slaying of Miss Margaret Gallagher.

Chief of Detectives Patrick J. Deely made the lie test disclosures while Cook was appearing in court.

The 36-year-old woman was beaten to death July 22, 1954, by a bare-chested man who pounced on her from a clump of bushes while she was sunbathing alone in Lincoln Park.

SAW ASSAULT

Arthur Kirk Besley, an apartment dweller, testified he watched the assault through his binoculars from his 13th floor living room, was one of the persons who viewed Cook in court, Felie said. Besley had been watching sailboats on the lake.

The prosecutor said Besley, 32, reported Cook "looked like a

Truman To Note Presidential Rise

BY ERNEST V. VACAROW
WASHINGTON (AP) — Harry S. Truman was back on familiar slumping grounds today for the 13th anniversary of his rise to president of the United States.

It was on April 12, 1945, that Franklin D. Roosevelt died at Warm Springs, Ga., and the responsibilities of wartime presidency fell on the shoulders of the erstwhile farm boy from Missouri. The former president celebrates the anniversary tonight with a foreign policy speech to a banquet of American Veterans of World War II.

Truman, approaching his 74th birthday next month, is much gratified by the man who went prayerfully to the White House 13 years ago.

Nearly eight years in the presidency and the applause of fellow Democrats have given him increased confidence, and even a trace of cockiness. He has become one of the most sought after speakers on the political stage.

Truman arrived in town yesterday. He planned to stay over into Monday, when he is billed as the leadoff witness in House Banking Committee hearings on legislation to limit the recession.

HELP HOPE

Congressional Democrats were hoping to get mileage out of Truman's views on the economic situation. Banking Committee Chairman Spence (D-Ky.) spoke of Truman's "great capacity for decision and for leadership in time of crisis."

In talking with newsmen yesterday, Truman indicated he was a cool to the idea of a tax cut and challenged the view of some Eisenhower administration officials that a public works program might be inflationary.

Insurgents Lose 18 In Battle

BY LARRY ALLEN
HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — Government troops killed 18 rebels in an air and ground attack on a sugar mill today outside the town of Sagua la Grande near the northern coast of Los Villas Province. Seven rebels were killed there yesterday.

About 200 rebels fighting for Fidel Castro against the regime of President Fulgencio Batista swept into the town yesterday and barricaded themselves in a school. Reliable reports said the rebels had landed on the southern coast of Las Villas three weeks ago and pushed toward Sagua la Grande, about 30 miles northeast of Santa Clara.

A Cuban Army fighter plane swooped down on them with bombs and the rebels fled before government reinforcements from Santa Clara. But the insurgents in their flight burned two electric power plants, four or five gasoline tanks, a small lumber mill and two railway baggage cars.

This was the latest major outbreak in Castro's total war. Yesterday rebels raided the copper center of El Cobre, 12 miles west of Santiago and touched off a dynamite explosion in a warehouse.

Santiago itself, heart of rebellious Oriente Province, was quiet under the heavy guard of Batista's men.

Rebel raiders from Castro's strongholds in the Sierra Maestra invaded El Cobre before dawn, reportedly burned the city hall but left after residents pleaded that further burning would destroy the town, one of Cuba's most holy places. As they left they set off the dynamite.

Reports on the uprising in Santiago indicate it was more widespread and tenacious than the one quickly crushed out in Havana. The Santiago death toll was put at 17 rebels and 2 government troops. There was no estimate of the wounded.

But before dawn on Wednesday women swarmed into downtown stores passing out leaflets calling for a general strike. Police rushed in to respond business places shut their doors but few employees returned to work.

Rebels raided the telephone company and killed a censor. Traffic vanished and by nightfall sabotage and bombings continued.

A downtown area of four blocks was turned into a battleground for two hours. Rebels raged through Santiago burning gasoline bombs at government forces and official buildings.

But other patrols ran down and shot rebels Thursday, the police and army claimed the situation was well in hand by noon.

Eight Convicted In Dope Case

Eight Carolinians, including Wagner, S. C., doctor who induced $10,000 were given prison terms here yesterday at the close of a state trial in Federal District Court on narcotics charges.

Dr. Oliver Wayne Wilkison also gave 3-year suspended sentence besides the lie. Narcotics agents had told the court an examination of the doctor's records showed more than 5,000 morphine tablets unaccounted for.

The defendants were charged with conspiracy to purchase, sell and dispense narcotic drugs. Other defendants' narcotics cases disposed of yesterday were: John Alfred Johnson and Harry Lee Gray, both of Charlotte, 5 years in prison each; Dewey Gould, Greensboro, S.C., 18 months; Ruth Martin Star, $1,000 fine and 1-year suspended sentence; Ray Wilton Somersett, 2-year suspended sentence; Bessie Lou Foulk, Charlotte, 3 years.

Edward Joseph Clementine, 5 years suspended; Luther Sidney Gentry and John Wilcox Mullis, Indianapolis, suspended; German Ward Walters of Kannapolis, ordered held in custody pending disposition of case; and case against Faye Grant Beck, dismissed.

Future Uncertain For Lana's Girl

BY JAMES BACON
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A coroner's jury found the slaying of Johnny Stompanato justifiable, but the big question still remains today—what will happen to Lana Turner's teenage daughter?

In a scene wilder than any of her movie premises, blonde movie queen Lana was the star witness yesterday in detailing the fierce arguments and threats that preceded Cheryl Crane's knife thrust into the abdomen of her mother's underworld boy friend.

But Cheryl, 14, today followed the same routine as the other inmates of Juvenile Hall.

The coroner's verdict is not binding in any way upon Juvenile Court, which will hear her case privately on April 24.

It is not likely, legal sources agree, that the court will decide to try her as an adult on a murder charge, but it could. Most likely matter to be considered at the hearing will be whether Cheryl lacks proper parental control.

Dist. Atty. William B. McKesson, who has no legal jurisdiction under California law in the juvenile cases, is the most outspoken. "It appears to me that Cheryl never had a real home life," he said.

The ceremony was held at 8 p.m. as scheduled. But the nuptials took place privately in the bride's home instead of the Presbyterian Church, which had been decked with flowers for the occasion.

NC Senate Seat Appears To Have Solid Jinx Label

By JULIAN SCHIEER
News Staff Writer

Ed O'Herron, for a while the top dog in Mecklenburg's Raleigh brigade, is the Forgotten Man in local politics.

Or at least it appears that way. O'Herron has been swamped with business deals (his drug stores are blossoming all over the place) and has given little thought to politics in the past two years. His name is seldom mentioned.

But you can expect the sharp politician to be a Big Man behind the scenes in the David Clark campaign. He and Clark are close buddies and were roommates at the Sir Walter Hotel in Raleigh during a couple of General Assembly sessions.

WHAT NEXT in announcements? Arthur Goodman appears pretty much out of the picture. John Plaisance is weighing the matter and Leon Oiler will have something to say shortly. All are interested in the House race.

SEN. W. Kerr Scott's heart attack Wednesday added to the thought in the state that North Carolina's Senate seat is jinxed.

It takes but a casual look at the record to indicate the seat hasn't been a lucky one for many men in recent years. It was just before Christmas in 1946 that Sen. Josiah Bailey died of a cerebral hemorrhage in Raleigh. He had served 16 years in the Senate.

Then the chain reaction began. William B. Umstead was appointed in 1947 and he failed to win the seat in 1948. He died in the office of Governor in 1954.

J. Melville Broughton defeated Umstead and he died of a heart attack just two months after taking office.

Charlottean Frank Porter Graham was appointed in 1949—and this was a big surprise — and he was defeated in 1950 when he sought the job in an election.

WILLIS SMITH was the man who defeated Graham (getting strong support in this county), and he died in office in 1953.

Alton Lennon, also a Mecklenburg favorite, was appointed in 1953 and he also lost in his bid for election.

Sen. Scott defeated Lennon and now Scott is ill.

In less than 12 years the Senate seat has been occupied by seven men and four of them are now dead.

IN RALEIGH they're hating the selection of H. P. (Pat) Taylor, the former lieutenant governor from Wadesboro, as keynote speaker at the state Democratic convention May 15.

They like Taylor as a colorful speaker—and admire his brevity. Seems keynote speeches seem to drag and drag, but Taylor is on the spot for a short one. Secretary of State Hugh Earle holds

Woman Dies From Fumes

A 39-year-old woman died from carbon monoxide poisoning early today when the rear of the car in which she was riding jammed into a ditch on Catawba Colony Rd., county police said.

Officers identified the woman as Lola Belle Reese, 112 Dr. Carver Rd. She was taken to Good Samaritan Hospital by the Charlotte Life-Saving Crew where she was pronounced dead on arrival shortly before 2 a.m.

An Air Force sergeant from Arlington, Va., died from a similar freak accident early Thursday morning when his car's exhaust pipe became jammed in the side of a ditch on Center St.

Sandra Clawson, 44, of Belmont told police he picked up the Reese woman at a club in

One Killed, Four Hurt In Wreck Near Newton

NEWTON — One man was killed and four persons critically injured in a pre-dawn two-car collision today near the Catawba-Governor line.

Dead is Robert Kincaid, 57, of Newton. The injured were identified as Ray Alfred Kincaid, 17, of Newton; and Lou Ellen Devine, 25, of Newton; both passengers in a 1951 Chevrolet driven by Robert Kincaid.

The two men in the other auto, a 1938 Ford, one was identified. He is Earl Joseph Keller, 32, of the Lake Hickory Apts. in Hickory.

At noon today the four victims of the accident were still in the critical care at Catawba Hospital in Newton. No major surgery has been required, and the four have undergone X-rays.

State Highway Patrolmen George M. Simmons and Dave Davidson investigated the 3:45 a.m. accident.

Patrolman Simmons said from initial investigation it appears that Robert Kincaid may have been distracted for an instant, with his car leaving the center line of the road and colliding with the Ford.

He said there was no evidence of brakes being applied by either car.

Patrolman Simmons said he was told that Kincaid was driving his son, Ray, to Charlotte to catch a plane back to his Navy station. The Ford was heading toward Newton.

Dad Drowns On Son's Wedding Day

MANNING, S. C. (AP) — A tearful wedding — instead of the happy ceremony that had been planned — was held here last night a few hours after the groom's father drowned in a boating accident.

A diving team from the Charleston Naval Base was to search the 3-foot depths of nearby Lake Marion today for the body of John B. Feinley, 60, prominent Bloomington, Ill., contractor.

He tumbled from a small boat and was lost less than five hours before his son, Lt. Jerry Feinley, on leave from the Air Force, was to have been married. Feinley was to have been married in a formal church ceremony to Miss Rose Weldon, daughter of Manning School Supt. W. H. Weldon.

The ceremony was held at 8 p.m. as scheduled. But the nuptials took place privately in the bride's home instead of the Presbyterian Church, which had been decked with flowers for the occasion.

The wedding service, and a subdued atmosphere of sorrow, was read by the Rev. John E. Presley, a Columbia Presbyterian minister who is the bride's uncle.

Feinley, his wife and their daughter came from Manning a few days ago to attend the wedding. Feinley decided yesterday to forgo the fishing at Lake Marion, part of South Carolina's vast State-Cape Fear waterway system.

Clarendon County Sheriff T. J. Jackson said Feinley was fishing alone in a small boat about 200 yards from shore in 50 feet of water.

Witnesses on shore heard Feinley cry for help after tumbling into the water but were unable to reach the spot before the Illinois contractor disappeared.

The sheriff said the onboard motor on the boat had been pulled out of the water, indicating Feinley was trying to make an adjustment and lost his balance.

Lt. Feinley is stationed at the Charleston Air Force Base.

Evening Prayer

Heavenly Father, as we look out across the world, we see so much need that our hearts cry out. Send us forth with love and compassion to minister to the needy and bring the love of Christ to all. In His name. . . . Amen.
