First Aid Crew Given Vehicle By Local Club

The Charlotte Life Saving and First Aid Crew was given a big boost yesterday when the Charlotte Exchange Club gave them a brand new Plymouth station wagon that will be used as an ambulance.

Bill Scott, president of the Exchange Club, made the gift announcement today. The vehicle will be worth $3,500 to $4,000 fully equipped.

Exchange Club members will sell copies of the May 20 issue of The Charlotte News at advanced prices to raise money to equip the vehicle and to buy other equipment vital to keep the volunteer unit.

Mr. Scott said the club has already received calls from many businesses and individuals saying they will purchase The News on May 20. "We have about $100 promised us already," he said.

Mr. Scott said persons wishing to buy a May 20 copy of The News can make their intentions known by calling ED 4771, or by writing to the Charlotte Exchange Club, P. O. Box 4, Charlotte, N. C.

"We're going to make this vehicle a first-class thing," Mr. Scott said, "and we need every one's help to do it."

Flights To Russia?

UN Plans Probe Of Bomber Runs

BY WILLIAM N. OATIS
UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.—U.N. Security Council delegates prepared today for debate on the Soviet Union's charges—denied in Washington—that U. S. bombers were courting global war.

The Russian Council will meet Monday on the Soviet request that it study "urgent measures" to prevent flights of American jet bombers armed with nuclear weapons toward Soviet borders.

U.N. observers predicted that the charges probably would end as have similar Communist charges in the past—with overwhelming rejection.

U. S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge, Council president this month, called Monday's meeting at the request of Soviet Delegate Arkady A. Sobolev. Sobolev sought a Council session today but a U. S. Secretariat pool of Council members showed they preferred Monday, thus giving time to check with their governments.

A Council debate on these charges would demonstrate that the Soviets are using the technique of the "big lie" to incite fear among the peoples of the world while proclaiming that they, the Soviets, want to relax tensions.

FIRST CHARGE
Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko first made the charges at a Moscow news conference Friday. He said his government knew U.S. planes with nuclear bombs flew over polar regions toward the Soviet Union.

He cited a United Press story from Clint Air Force Base, April 7. The story described U. S. Strategic Air Command procedures in dealing with suspected radar targets.

Gromyko said nuclear war could result from the "smallest error" of an American technician.

White House press secretary James Hagerty labeled Gromyko's statements untrue. The State Department denied—as Gromyko charged—that the United States was "conducting provocative flights over the polar regions or in the vicinity of the U.S.S.R."

ONLY PRACTICE
The department said SAC was engaged only in practice to keep up its deterrent power and would attack only on President Eisenhower's orders. It did not dispute that U.S. bombers on training exercises sometimes fly toward the Soviet Union but said the Air Force's safeguards to prevent an unprovoked attack are foolproof.

Sobolev asked Lodge to convene the Council to consider "taking urgent measures to end the flights of the U.S. military aircraft carrying atomic and hydrogen bombs toward the frontiers of the Soviet Union." He ex-mobile by trick or fraudulent representation.

The charge is based on Thatcher's renting of a car before the pair disappeared. The car was found later in a Boston parking garage.

A HOLIDAY
Because today is Patriots Day in Massachusetts, a holiday marking the battles of Concord and Lexington, Thatcher's arraignment was deferred until Monday.

Polly's statement that her plans at present involve no other individual was somewhat at variance with the tone of a letter she left Thatcher when she fled from him.

The letter, disclosed in Boston, said, "I'm sure we can settle this quietly, love. I'll be in

Moon For Checkpoint Possibility

BY LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (P)—U. S. scientists are on the threshold of being able to take a remote control look at any spot on the globe. The Navy's research chief says. He agrees it soon may be possible to use the moon as a reconnaissance satellite.

Rear Adm. John T. Hayward acknowledged this Friday at a hearing of the Special House Space Committee.

He refused details other than to say such possibilities result from breakthroughs in electronics development achieved in the last six months at Naval Research Laboratories. He said anything more "they'll shoot me," Hayward told newsmen.

The allages into space developments came when Hayward replied "Yes, sir," to these questions from Rep. Fulton (D-Pa.): "Our present research developments do we in the United States have it within our power soon to monitor the whole world, including countries behind the Iron Curtain...?"

NO VISITING

"Don't we in the United States have the capability through electronic means soon to use the moon as a reconnaissance satellite, so we don't have to wait for production of satellites in orbit, or a moon 'hit' or a landing on the moon?"

Hayward did say, however, the breakthroughs would permit monitoring of the world by earth orbit or sound. He did elaborate.

Another witness before the committee was Rear Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, the Navy's nuclear power boss, who committed against big programs for space exploration.

Instead, Rickover advised Congress to keep its feet on the ground in appreciating money for space projects. The outspoken admiral also said the entire defense establishment is too big and costly.

On the space exploration question, Rickover said "I think we should start this thing in a small way. I certainly do not see any need for vast crash programs."

Meanwhile, the Navy reported spectacular results in the testing of its air-to-surface Bulpup missile.

"I said a carrier pilot destroyed a four-ton space target two miles away on his first shot with the Bulpup missile on his missile," he said.

Wayne Smith of Fort Dodge, Iowa, last February during severe cold weather tests in the North Atlantic, the Navy said.

The Air Force identified the locations of the third and fourth targets in the testing of the Bulpup missile. They are Offutt Air Force Base near Omaha, Neb., and Fairchild AFB near Spokane, Wash.

Colorado authorities said he had been listed as a parole violator since his disappearance.

The girls' father, overjoyed over their return, brushed off questions about her activities by saying:

"She's prevailed in only one thing, and that is my daughter's welfare. Let's just say she was sent away to a boarding school and waiting to run away."

Olive Seeks Seat In NC Legislature

LEON OLIVE, 33-year-old Charlotte attorney, today announced he will be a candidate for the North Carolina House of Representatives in the May Democratic primary.

A native of Alabama, Mr. Olive has been a North Carolinian since 1951 when he accepted a scholarship to attend the Law School at Duke University.

In his announcement today Mr. Olive said "Some of those who are in the so-called political know have stated that it would take a lot of money to win in this campaign. Of course, that I don't have, but I can't help but believe that the people will not make that a prerequisite to my serving them."

TAX VIEWS

He said, "We are taxed to the hilt and our national debt continues to grow. This trend, unless reversed, can only lead to bankruptcy and financial calamity."

There are (tax) inequities between the rich and the poor, and even between male and female in the state on the amount of exemption. Such inequities must be corrected.

He pointed out that "It would be well to examine the records of all candidates to determine what their past contributions have been to the good of the great community of young men: the Charlotte Junior Chamber of Commerce, of which I have been privileged to serve as president for the past year. I firmly believe that 'service to humanity' is the best work of life. I have always attempted to do my duty in life in complete accord with this creed."

NEED CORRECTIONS
"Concerning Mecklenburg's constitutional right to more adequate representation in the Senate based on its population," he said, "our legislators should assert themselves to correct this haunting of the constitution."

And he said he is "one hundred per cent behind our court study plan. As it now stands in Mecklenburg County, it takes up to one year from the time of filing a lawsuit in the Superior Court to get it tried. Anything that will improve the administration of justice, I am for it."

In Charlotte, Mr. Olive has been associated with Allstate Insurance Co. as a sales agent, and sales trainer and administrator of the part-time agency program, and finally to the post of sales management training.

Last year he entered into a law partnership with W. F. A. Jones, which is known as Barnes & Olive and is located in the Johnston Bldg.

His civic and religious activities include offices and committee work in the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Charlotte Chamber of Commerce, the Central YMCA, and Third Presbyterian Church.

Evening Prayer

Eternal Father, we thank Thee for the mighty power of the resurrection. We thank Thee for those who put that victorious news to every possible test—even the test of their own poor, dispirited lives. We rejoice that the risen Christ is ever greater than our sin. In His name we pray... Amen.

KITE-FLYING LAD FINDS BODY ON HOUSE ROOF

FEMBERTON, N. I.—The body of an accident victim was found on the roof of a home today some eight hours after a car had crashed into a tree in the yard.

The body was identified as that of Herbert Haines, 21. His car was headed east on Magnolia Rd. last night when it left the road, rolled over several times and landed out of sight.

Police said his body was tossed to the top of the 18-foot high roof of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bush.

Another victim of the accident, Leroy Eganoff, 26, was found unconscious beside the car at the time of the wreck. Police were unable to question him about the mishap and, hence, did not learn that Haines had been in the car.

Eganoff was taken to Burlington County Hospital in serious condition. Both men are from Chatsworth.

Donald Chambers, 11, a next door neighbor to the Bush family, went out this morning to fly a kite and saw the body on the roof.

They said the door apparently flew open as the car flipped over and Haines was thrown through the branches of some trees about 30 feet up. He landed near the peak of the roof and rolled down the side of the roof opposite to the accident, a total distance of about 45 feet.

of her whereabouts nor any correspondence from her. However, he said "the door has always been open all the time she was away."

Since Polly's disappearance the Associated Press has published frequent stories concerning her absence and AP wirephoto has transmitted her picture on its national network several times. Only last Thursday she said "My picture is all over the papers and I'm going home."

Thatcher was working as a $20 a week clerk in a Boston hardware when police found him after the girl's return.
