150 Held By Police In Incident

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Two bombs exploded in a crowded vegetable market here today. Many persons were killed and wounded.

Security forces moved swiftly into the area and arrested about 150 persons.

The vegetable dealers had defied an opposition general strike order and opened for business. For 10 days, housewives have been unable to buy fresh vegetables, fresh meat or other foods in the face of rioting, bombing, sniping and a general strike by foes of this country's pro-western regime.

COMPARATIVELY QUIET

For the last three days, however, Beirut has been comparatively quiet. In contrast to the northern city of Tripoli, and some merchants decided to defy the opposition and try to recoup some of their losses. The vegetable market was the first to open and was bustling with activity when the bombs went off. Within minutes it was deserted, except for security forces and a handful of onlookers.

Few other businesses opened. In Tripoli, the government again held control after a weekend of bitter fighting.

At least 60 persons were reported killed in the bloodless fight of Lebanon's internal strife. Government forces finally stormed it through the twisting streets of the northern coastal city to end the fray.

Another reported factor was an order by Rachid Karami, a top opposition leader, for his forces to stop fighting because casualties were growing.

CHARGES MADE
President Camille Chamoun, who leads the pro-western government of this tiny Middle Eastern nation, charged President Nasser's United Arab Republic with inciting Lebanon's Muslims to revolt.

The Muslims want the government to align its policy with Nasser's. They also fear that Chatterman, a Christian, will have the constitution amended to permit his re-election to another six-year term.

Tripoli has been the chief center of resistance to the government. It was there that rioting first broke out 30 days ago, and the U. S. Information Library in the port was sacked.

Solid line on map shows route of planes from Greenville, S. C., to Frankfurt, Germany.

Hurry Call

Big Planes Ready For Mideast Use

FRANKFURT, Germany (P)—Eighteen huge U. S. Air Force Globemaster transports today had arrived at various bases in Germany and France for possible use in the troubled Middle East.

The Globemasters were ordered to West Germany by the U. S. government Saturday, possibly to evacuate Americans from Lebanon or to ferry arms to that strife-torn nation.

The exact whereabouts of the giant three-decker C124s was an Air Force secret. At least five of them landed at Frankfurt's Rhein-Main airport last night, then left this morning for other bases in Europe.

"There have been no orders yet for them to fly to Lebanon," an Air Force spokesman said. "They will sit on their haunches over here in Europe in case there is a need for them to be used."

Several of the planes which passed through Frankfurt reportedly went to a base near Chaumont, in France. A spokesman said they could not be kept in Frankfurt because of the "parking problem."

The Frankfurt base also has on alert six of the 12 Globemasters which are regularly stationed here as the 3rd Troop Carrier Squadron.

When the United States sent arms to Jordan and Tunisia last year, the Rhein-Main air base was used as a loading point.

WASHINGTON (P)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee starts an inquiry today into the factors behind such recent anti-American demonstrations as those which marred Vice President Nixon's good will tour of South America.

One purpose of the inquiry is to determine whether the attacks on Nixon, the burning of U. S. information agency libraries in Lebanon and anti-American outbursts elsewhere were part of a worldwide Communist pattern.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said the attacks on Nixon definitely were inspired by Communists who, he said, are but a very small minority in the South American countries.

There has been a concerted effort throughout the vice president's trip to embarrass him, Hoover said in an interview today.

He rebellion extends into prison. After letting his hair and beard grow for 13 months, he recently shaved his head and face bald to jolt prison officials who ordered his hair trimmed.

His execution will be Utah's first hanging in 40 years.

"I chose hanging instead of the firing squad because of the publicity," the movie star said. "I put the state to more inconvenience," he said.

Kirkham spends his last days listening to radio music, reading books and scanning newspaper clippings about his case which he keeps pinned to the wall of his cell.

"I am scared," Kirkham said. "I am scared with the thought of dying so young. You get used to it. I may get shook up at the last minute, but I don't think so."

French General Denies Ideas Of Dictatorship

PARIS (P)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle today repudiated the role of dictator but said he remains ready to try to lead France out of chaos.

The wartime hero described himself as "a man belonging to nobody but belonging to all" and added:

"Have I ever attacked the fundamental liberties of the republic? No, I restored them. Would you have me at 67 start a career as a dictator?"

But he made it clear he feels the present situation, with party enemies in Paris and the Army in near-revolt in Algeria, is hopeless. He said the parties have betrayed France.

He explained his views at a news conference. As he spoke, the first signs of a Communist-called order to stop work were being felt in Paris. Some subway lines halted and many buses returned to their garages. Police were on the alert at every nerve center in the city.

The general, dressed in a gray suit, spoke in a firm voice. He made a statement and cut off questioning after half an hour.

"I am going back to my village but I remain at the disposition of the country," he said.

At his left, "de Gaulle to power" shirts were heard outside the house where he met the press.

At the outset, de Gaulle made it clear he felt that the present regime encompassing many parties, could accomplish nothing.

He recalled that he took power legally in postwar France after returning here with the Allied armies.

De Gaulle said he had kept silent until the moment when he felt he could serve the country.

The general spoke to a room packed with an audience of nearly 700. He stood behind a table and before a battery of microphones.

He started the news conference with a brief statement. He then said he would answer questions only concerning French institutions and relationships with Algeria.

EXTREMELY GRAVE
Referring to the last four years in North Africa, he said the present situation could lead to an extremely grave national crisis.

"But it can also be the start of a kind of resurrection," he said.

He said that in "this moment of grave confusion, all should be aware that the party regime could not and would not solve the enormous problems confronting France—the association of France with the peoples of Africa, and within the communities living in Algeria."

De Gaulle said the fighting in Algeria and the boiling emotional fever there grew out of the failure of the regime in Paris.

"The population of Algeria sees in Paris crisis upon crisis. How does one avoid rebellion in this population of Algeria? The population of Algeria is looking somewhere else, outside the parliamentary combination, for a way to end its troubles," he said.

DISORDER PREVENTED
"In these conditions the party, which was able to see its feelings prevented disorder. The army has acted."

He said the army sees the "indiscipline" which prevails.

"I understand perfectly well the attitude of the high command in Algeria," he said.

De Gaulle implied that if he assumed leadership of the French nation he would insist only on those powers freely given him.

"If things continue the way they are going," de Gaulle said, "we all know perfectly well that the regime as it is can not accomplish anything."

It might produce programs, intentions and even make efforts to ward actions but it would not achieve anything, de Gaulle said.

"I am a man alone, with no party, with no organization, with no party for six years has engaged in no political action and for three years has made no declaration. I belong to no one and I belong to all," he said.

'Perfect Shot'

Re-Entry Puzzle Appears Solved

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (P)—The Jupiter intermediate range missile apparently is the first ballistic weapon to solve the challenge of re-entry into the earth's dense atmosphere.

Army rocket men at the nation's missile test center agreed the re-entry success was due to an almost perfect shot of the Jupiter shortly after midnight yesterday.

Some 4½ hours after the launching of the huge nose cone—the first full-sized warhead ever mounted on a Jupiter IRBM—was slotted out of the Atlantic by tugboats and the crew of a Navy auxiliary submarine rescue ship.

First reports indicated the re-entry test was a complete success. The precious nose cone was taken to Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Ala., where Army scientists will study its intricate instruments to learn the secrets of re-entering the earth's atmosphere without burnout after a cruise through space.

FIRST TIME
It was the first time a full-scale ballistic missile nose cone has been recovered intact. The only other recovery came last Aug. 4, when a four-foot nose cone was retrieved from the sea.

Most details of the missile's latest performance are classified. But it was reported unofficially that the Jupiter was fired at a range of just over 1,600 miles.

The launching ran like clockwork. The 66-foot missile lifted off with a mighty roar and billows of white flame.

Stationed along the south Atlantic test range helped pinpoint its location through signals relayed by telemetry equipment in the missile's bulky nose cone.

The firing was so accurate that Army and Navy observers aboard ships as far as 10 miles from the impact area traced the nose cone's streaking course as it re-entered the earth's atmosphere.

Cole To Seek Write-In Votes As SC Governor

GREENSBORO (P)—The Rev. James W. Cole of Marion, S. C., self-proclaimed Grand Wizard of the North Carolina Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, today said he will announce his candidacy today as a write-in candidate for governor of the state of South Carolina.

Cole, a native Tar Heel, lived in Greensboro in "evangelistic" speaking engagements at Wayside Baptist Church near Summerville and Buffalo Baptist Church, told a Greensboro reporter, he would wage an active campaign to receive write-in ballots in his race for governor.

Asked about his platform, Cole said: "There are only two issues in South Carolina—the race issue and the Communist Party. And everybody knows how I stand on both."

Cole's appearances around the state have been few since he was convicted in March by a Robeson County jury of inciting to riot among Lumbies Indians Jan. 18. He was sentenced by Judge Clarence Williams of Sanford to serve 18 to 24 months in Central prison. He is free under $5,000 bond in pending an appeal to the North Carolina Supreme Court. The case is not scheduled to be heard in the high court until December.
