It is now proposed that the State cut out the Saturday holiday for schools and have a six-day week, a proposition that has, however, failed to meet with the approval of the young-sters, we understand.

Will Hays says there is no comparison between the morality of the motion picture of today and that of a few years ago, but no can a man with no greater memory than Will recollect anything about the kind of pictures that held sways a few years ago?

We do not know, of course, what foundation there may be in fact for the claim of Senator Simmons that Tammany is trying to crush alm, but if it has this objective, it should have consulted some of the leaders of political movements in North Carolina in recent years that had the same end in mind.

Humboldt is credited with the wisdom em-bodied in the statement, "What you would do for the State, do first for the child" at the suggestion of a great truth that should rive the interest of all citters on whatsoeve things have to do with the implanting of better schools in their communities. These are the factories in which the civilization of tomorrow is being made.

STAYING AWAY FROM CHURCH
Is it a fact that the radio authorities have put a ban on the broadcasting of morning church services in the larger centers of population?

We see a line to that effect and with the explanation that compaplaint had been made by eccletainties that the project was injuring attendance at churches.

That's strange logic. If it be followed to its rightful conclusions, now would asy that the radio is the poorest possible medium of adversome would asy that the radio is the

If the churchmen have intervened, therefore, they are either wrong about the matter or those who continue to give publicity to their products and their events arong. Both ean not be right.

Ours's own motion about it is that the broadesating of one uncommonly good sermon is worth a great deal more. religiously, to the people than the mass of purely inicidental activities of the churches within the course of a whole year, owners seeing circles and everything else that is foatered under the name and for the sake of promining attendance upon and interest in wonlingle activation.

EDUCATING FOR JAILS
It is a favorite theme of the "mative-borns" to contend that the unprecedented spell of crime that is being indulged in this Country comes about because of the large foreign population. They will not admit, of course, that the old Anglo-Saxons are wicked and re-beilious enough to break so many of the laws that they would have to be sent to populate the penitentaries.
