Mayor Smith: A Point To Sharpen

Welcome Sides of concern and initiative the City Council decisions concerned with parks and recreation. If Council's political antennae are functioning, its 43 vote to give the park board that disputed penny on the tax rate must mean that most Charlotteans are determined to maintain and, where possible to expand the recreation program. And if its appointment of a citizens group to study creation of a countrivide park commission means anything it must signal the advent of a sharper appreciation of the necessity of coordinated action and planning in providing ademate recreation. Both Council decisions should be welcomed by the community. But whether here is any lasting significance in either action remains to be seen. That penny will do little to expand terceration facilities in the city, and even less to begin providing some facilities in the perimeter. That citizens group could verwell succumb to committeelists unless it and a similar group to be appointed by the country are moved by some herefore lacking sense of urgeacy in facing the problem of the major that the country are moved by some herefore lacking sense of urgeacy in facing the problem of the park board, it is given being the problem of the park board, it is given being the problem of the park board, it is given being the problem of the park board, it is given being the problem of the park board, it is given being the problem of the park board, it is given being the problem of the park board, it is given being the problem of the park board, it is given being the problem of the park board, it is given be an expectation of the park board, it is given be problem to the park board, it is given be a problem to the park board it is given be a problem to the problem of the park board, it is given be a problem to the park board, it is given be a problem of the park board, it is given be a problem of the park board in given be a problem of the park board.

goals.

Merely to say that we are for peace, security and freedom is not enough. We owe the Arabs, Israel, the neutralist bloc, our Western allies and our own people an explanation of what precisely we have in mind for this tortured region and how military intervention will promote these definable goals.

Where are we online?

Now that the United States is irrevocably involved in a military adventure half a world away it owes its own clinices and the world a full residence.

Nature abhors a vacuum. So do people and their politicians.

The vacuum that has passed for a Middle East policy has suddenly been filled by this nation's hold intervention in Lebanon. In a general sort of vay.
President Eisenhower and Ambassador Lodge have outlined the reasons for the troop landings on Beirut's beaches Tuesday. Yet neither has been willing to confide what the intervention means in terms of the future.

What is needed now is a ciear and concise expression of specific long-range goals.

Merely to say that we are for peace, security and freedom is not enough. We owe the Arabs, Israel, the neutralist blee, our Western allies and our own people and their politicians.

Charlemagne Would Have Fired Adams

Took some doing, but Sen. Neuberger's office has finally linked the Sherman Adams case with Charlemagne. Seems that influence peddling was as great a problem in the Ninth Century as it was a thousand years later. Hans Linde, an assistant of the Oregon Domocrat, offers instorical profit in the form of an old document:
"INSTRUCTIONS FOR THE USE OF STEWARDS OF THE ROYAL PROPERTIES OF CHARLEMAGNE.

Paragraph 3. "Our steward shall not presume to put our people to their own service... and shall accept no gifts from them; either horse, oc. cow, piz, sheep, little pig, lamb or anything else excepting bottles of wine or other beverage..."

THE TEA BUREAU WOULDN'T APPROVE

VOULDN'T APPROVE

Next one should realize that lack of infusion i telling the tea hew or stand is the biggest factor in flavor. After the boiling water has been poured on the tea the pot should then be allowed to stand for five minutes where the ritual of tea serving begins. However, there is the question of ouerying the guests. One should not neglect to ask those whom one is serving whether they like milk before or after It's poured from the pot. Milk? (Ugh). We gather that milk should better begin in "after" At a translating contest organized by the fea Bureau in Manchester, a teataster said he could not see how you judged the strength of tea if here was milk aftered with a grade of 9d who like your tea strong or weak?

Finally, all these instructions, injunctions and prohibitions leave us in such a state that we are inclined to abandon the idea of English teamaking before we even take it up.
