They'll Shoot All Hope Abandoned For Moon On Sunday For Crash Survivors

35 Bodies Recovered From Sea

SHANNON, Ireland — (AP) — All hope was given up today of finding any survivors among the 99 persons aboard the giant Dutch airliner that crashed in the Atlantic off Ireland's west coast.

The Canadian destroyer Crusader announced the search was being abandoned after a scouring of the area where the KLM airliner Hugo de Groot crashed yesterday failed to show any sign of life. By mid-afternoon, 35 bodies had been recovered.

Evidence piled up that the Super Constellation, carrying 91 passengers including 52 Americans, either exploded or hit the sea with terrific force.

WRECKAGE SCATTERED

Pieces of wreckage were found scattered over an area of four miles. Life jackets had been ripped to bits.

The plane, en route to New York, had climbed into a violent storm. A KLM official said what occurred came suddenly, possibly an explosion. An undertaker said the condition of the first bodies brought ashore indicated an explosion.

Ships and planes of five nations were in the area about 100 miles off Galway Bay. Ships were picking up bodies and wreckage. One body recovered was that of a boy wearing a lifebelt.

A spokesman for KLM, announcing the search for survivors was being given up, said, "Nothing further has been seen today in the area."

He said that in the event of "some special circumstances developing there, a further search may be carried out, but at the moment there is no possibility of this arising."

The search went forward under a bright sun. The seas were calm after yesterday's storm.

The deaths of all 99 — including 53 Americans — would be the highest toll of any single-plane commercial accident. The American-built Super-Constellation was the first commercial plane to go down at sea on the North Atlantic route flown by more than five million people since World War II.

KLM began an investigation to find out why the plane crashed 35 minutes after taking off from Shannon Airport for Gander, Nfld., after a refueling stop. Capt. P. A. E. Roelofs radioed that it was flying normally at 15,000 feet.

RADIO SILENCE

Then silence. Some 10 hours later a British airline pilot saw spots on his radar screen. A Royal Air Force patrol plane flew over and sighted wreckage.

The French tanker General Le Clerc sped to the scene and picked up eight bodies.

The British tanker B. P. Distributor picked up another three bodies plus a passport, personal papers and other flotsam. Twelve other ships hurried into the area.

The search continued without end to the night. "It was an eerie scene lit by our flares," said Flight Lt. Keith See 35 on page 2-A

Six Missing After S. C. Fishing Trip

By JULIAN SCHEER
News Staff Writer
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Back home there were plenty of party jokes.

"What if the man in the moon shoots back?" "Don't forget to send a post card by Lunar Delivery." "Don't volunteer for any rides."

Just four hours by air south of Charlotte—and there are no jokes, no quips. Looking across six miles of green-blue Atlantic from a beach here you see a 100-foot rocket standing like a pine tree in the scrub of a sand-spit.

It is wrapped in a colorful, barber-pole of a scaffold and men climb like ants about its rigging.

FINISHING TOUCHES

Today they tensely put on the finishing touches, checking 300,000 details with knowledge gained from 300 years of accumulated information and 15 years of intensive rocket research.

Sunday — we are led to believe—they will fire this rocket toward the moon. The odds are only 10 to 1 that it won't make it, but, even if it gets far out into outer space, American scientists will have achieved one of their greatest triumphs.

The target is the moon, a ball which turns only one face to the earth, which circles the earth some 238,000 miles away, and which is about the size of the Atlantic Ocean. It is a body of extremely hot masses at one point and masses much colder than anything we know on earth in others.

Since the beginning of time, the conquest of the moon has been a dream.

Trucker Fills Well, Dump Truck And All

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Dump truck operator Lawrence McMahon filled a well yesterday with his dump truck.

He arrived at a new construction project and looked out of the cab for instructions. A man motioned for him to back up and then signaled a halt, shouting "Okay, dump 'er right here."

Suddenly, there was a great rending and crashing and McMahon found himself, truck and all, at the bottom of a rock-walled, 20-foot farm well.

Evening Prayer

Lord, help us this day to hear Thy voice in the wonder and beauty of Thy world. Open our eyes to consider the beauty of Thy handwork, our minds to the spiritual meaning to be discovered in the wisdom of Thy creatures. Through Christ our Lord ... Amen.

Let's Go Houseback Riding

(From AP Reports)
Contractor Arnold White of Salt Lake City, who makes a practice of checking each new structure before quitting for the day, was surprised to find a young riding a horse under construction.

"What are you doing here?" White asked. "I've always wanted to ride a horse through a house," the boy answered as he rode away.

In trying to avoid a collision Arthur Black of Charleston, S. C., pulled his truck off the road and overturned.

The injuries: A swollen hand suffered by Flips, who got stung after all.

Hurricane Cleo Packing Wallop

MIAMI, Fla. — Persons in the Windward and Leeward Islands of the South Atlantic Ocean were told today to ready themselves for quick action if Hurricane Cleo should threaten their area.

Cleo, first hurricane of the season, marched along today at 15 m.p.h. bearing west northwest about 700 miles east of Martinique, French Antilles, or about 2,200 miles east southeast of Miami.

Hurricane watch was in effect for the Windward and Leeward Islands. The weather bureau advised that persons in the area should keep in touch with latest advisories and bulletins in case the hurricane watch is changed to hurricane warning.

The change, if it comes, is made by the weather bureau forecast in San Juan, Puerto Rico, when he feels the area faces immediate danger from hurricane force winds.

Highest winds in Cleo were estimated at 145 m.p.h. over a small area near the center. Hurricane force winds extended 75 miles to the north of the center and 50 miles to the south.

In its latest advisory, the weather bureau said the hurricane is expected to maintain its present intensity and decrease slightly in size during the next 12 hours.

"This is a severe hurricane," the weather bureau said.

At the Air Force Missile Test Center at Cape Canaveral on Florida's east coast, Cleo was seen as no threat to the Air Force's attempt to launch a moon rocket.

Informal sources said the Air Force will try to shoot a satellite around the moon Sunday morning.

Cleo's predecessor, Becky, was brushed off by the weather bureau as a wide area of squalls with few if any characteristics of a tropical storm.

The weather bureau said highest winds were 40 m.p.h. in scattered squalls and announced it would issue no more advisories unless the storm developed.

Feet On The Ground

Teenager Worry? Not About Judy

LONG BEACH, Calif. — (AP) — Worried about teenagers?

Well, consider the case of Judy Moore. She's 15 and cute. She has a steady boy friend and likes rock 'n' roll. She grew up in a twice broken home. She lives in a low income housing project.

Her mother is in a hospital after major surgery. Neighbors called juvenile officers to the Moore home the other day.

NO TROUBLE AT ALL

Trouble? Not at all. They thought Judy was carrying too big a burden for a 15-year-old.

This is what amazed juvenile officers found: Judy in charge of seven younger brothers and sisters. All were clean and well fed. The refrigerator and cupboards were stocked with nourishing food.

Judy's role as head of the house began when her mother, Mrs. Bonita Moore Kenny, went to the hospital 15 days ago. The mother gave Judy $20 for food and left more money with neighbors.

In Judy's care were 8-month-old twins Darlene and Debbie; Randy 2; Jacqueline, 5; Nancy, 8; Billy, 9; and Bonnie Jean, 10.

The officers took the children to Juvenile Hall. They kept them a day and sent them back home with a housekeeper to oversee things.

JUDY'S BIG EXECUTIVE

Judy had proved herself quite a homemaker executive. She delegated duties—dry the dishes, make the beds, dust and mop—to the older children.

Judy and the housekeeper are running the house together. But it's easy to see who is still at the helm: Judy ordered: "Billy, I told you to change that shirt. Bonnie Jean, the dishes are ready to dry. Nancy, go bring Randy in here so I can wash his face."

Three Injured As Trucks Hit

CONCORD N. H. — Two tractor-trailer trucks collided on busy, four-lane U. S. Highway 2 near here early today. Three persons were hurt and damage estimates ran to $17,000.

The accident occurred about six miles north of here just after midnight. Both vehicles were traveling south.

One lane of southbound traffic was blocked for about nine hours by the wreckage of the trucks and the rated machinery strewn about the highway from one of them.

Clayton Moser, 35, of 1925 Merriam Ave., Charlotte, driving an Associated Transport rig, told police he was traveling about 25 miles an hour when he noticed a truck coming up behind him and apparently making no attempt to pass. Moser started pulling onto the shoulder of the highway.

The second truck, driven by Francis Lee Knott, 41, of Rt. 1, Sewanee, Tenn., and owned by Zimmerman Bros. of Leesburg, Fla., crashed into the rear of Moser's rig.

Police estimated damage to Moser's cab, trailer and load at $4,300-$5,000. Officers said Knott's rig was completely demolished and plied the load at $12,000. Moser was hauling crated machinery and Knott was hauling lumber.

Moser escaped injury, but a companion, L. W. Williams, 37, of 107 N. Sycamore St., Charlotte, was admitted to Cabarrus Memorial Hospital here with hip and back injuries and cuts on his chin.

Knott and his 12-year-old son, Richard, also entered the hospital. Knott suffered arm injuries, a cut leg and multiple bruises. Richard suffered cuts on the forehead and right leg and multiple bruises.

A-War Surrender Thought Called Ridiculous By Ike

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower today described as "ridiculous nonsense any thought that the United States might surrender in an enemy in the event of atomic war."

Reacting to published reports of such a study, Eisenhower authorized his press secretary, James C. Hagerty, to say: "As far as the President is concerned all this talk about surrender is nonsense."

The whole subject was heated by Hagerty said today. He said, with Chairman Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) of the Armed Services Committee leading a fight against vetting any funds for possible surrender study purposes.

There has been no public money spent to study how or when the United States might surrender," Hagerty said. "There will be no such money spent for such a purpose."

Hagerty said Eisenhower, after approving the prepared statement, authorized him to say in addition: "Even if (Eisenhower) were given money for this purpose it would not be spent. The whole matter is too ridiculous for any further comment."

MORE DEBATE

A new flurry of Senate debate was in prospect for today.

The subject set off a veritable storm of criticism in speeches last night. At one point an attempt was made to close the galleries to the press and public because of the seriousness of the topic, Knott it wasn't done.

The United States has never lost a war and the legislators were indignant that the military should be having even the slightest thought of any American surrender.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) proposed tacking onto a $3,504,000 supplemental appropriations bill a rider that would nullify any surrender study contract and bar any payments in connection with it.

Russell, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said most Americans would rather die than see their country under the yoke of another power.
