City Board Has Month To Appeal

Legislators Get Stand by Order

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—The city board of education today has a month to appeal a state court order which would require the city to desegregate its schools by September 1, 1959.

The board was granted a stay of the order until the city has had a chance to appeal the order. The board is expected to appeal the order within 30 days in order to make the stay effective before the September 1 deadline.

The board's announcement came as a day of tension and civil unrest in Little Rock. The city is surrounded by troops and the integration crisis has led to a state of emergency.
