Faubus Warning: Don't Try Entry

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus said today violence may break out again in Little Rock this year if attempts are made to enroll Negro children in the high schools when they are reopened.

"There may be violence again," Faubus said in a news conference.

The city is preparing to vote Saturday on whether to reopen the schools on an integrated basis. If they vote against that proposition, the governor said he would reopen them as private schools, and segregated.

Reporters asked if he expects trouble, should anyone attempt to bring Negro children to the school. He said there might be, but he would not say whether he plans to call out the Arkansas National Guard, as he did last year.

"That depends on what happens," Faubus said. He added, "The thing that is keeping the peace now is that we are keeping this thing in the legal arena."

Preceding the news conference, five clergymen read a statement they said was signed by 50 ministers backing Faubus' position on the schools. It said in part:

"We believe that integration is contrary to the will of God. Our beliefs are not based on prejudice or bias, but on sound Bible interpretation which integration is based on a false theory of the 'universal fatherhood of God and the universal brotherhood of man.'"

"This statement is not made with any enmity or hatred in our hearts for the Negro race. We have an abiding love for all people and it is because of this love that we want the best interests of all races, and we believe the best interests of all races are best served by segregation."

The group was led by Rev. M. L. Moser Jr., missionary pastor of the Central Baptist church.

Faubus said he will speak on television tonight about tomorrow's referendum.

—HAS INTERVIEW WITH GOVERNOR—
Doomed Man Pleads For Life

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Jimmy Wilson got his chance today to ask Gov. James E. Folsom to save him from the electric chair.

The 52-year-old illiterate Negro handyman was taken before the governor in a tensely dramatic emergency hearing that will determine whether he must die for the $1.95 robbery of an elderly white widow.

Unless the governor or the courts intervene, he is scheduled to pay with his life in Kilby Prison on his electric chair Oct. 24.

The Negro was brought to the capitol dressed in a white convict suit and flanked by two prison officials. He has been at Kilby Prison since Folsom ordered him transferred from Moore Prison three days ago.

Sources close to the governor said in advance of the hearing they expected him to commute the Negro's sentence to life imprisonment. Wilson then would have to serve 15 years before he could be eligible for parole.

Two brothers of the condemned Negro, Lemon and Roy Wilson of Tusculoo County, came here to testify in his behalf. Also present was his newly employed Negro attorney, Fred Gray of Montgomery.

Wilson was given the death sentence for robbing Mrs. Estelle Barker, 82, at her home at Marion, Ala. The woman testified Wilson threatened her life, choked her and tried to rape her. Wilson took $1.95 in the robbery.

Instead of being charged with attempted rape, which carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison, Wilson was indicted for robbery and nighttime burglary, both capital offenses. He was tried only on the first indictment. He had served two prison terms for grand larceny.

Hurricane Warnings Gulp From Georgia To Cape Fear

Coast Folk Ready For Big Blow

By JULIAN SCHEER
News Staff Writer

"We're hoping for a miracle, an act of God."

H. T. (Pres) Wilcox, Myrtle Beach municipal secretary, expressed his emotions as residents in the Myrtle Beach area today as they anxiously but calmly awaited word on Hurricane Helene.

"Everything is calm and quiet here," he told The News today. "We will be ready if we get a warning, but right now the sun is streaming in through my window in City Hall, the breeze is gentle, there are only a few clouds in the sky and the seas are calm."

FLAG POLE WATCHED

Myrtle Beach residents are also watching the flag pole on the ocean front in the Spivey Beach area, just a few hundred yards from the center of Myrtle, where flag displayman Dr. Waldo Jones will hoist the storm warnings. Early today the laundry was hanging limp with no flag attached. When and if a flag is raised today it will be the storm warning. The Weather Bureau's storm warning. Then they'll wait for a hurricane flag—and hope it will never be flown.

There has been no rush to board up or close down the few places that are open on the waterfront. Residents along the Carolina coasts know how to move swiftly, they say, if the need be.

TEAMS READY

At Myrtle Beach, Civil Defense director E. A. Anthony will have his teams of men and women schooled then ever before.

Helene's sluggish and uncertain course is giving plenty of time for preparations and residents await word without emotion.

"They tell us," Mr. Wilcox said, "that the odds—and hope for the best."

At Charleston, S. C., naval units are on a hurricane alert. The Atlantic Fleet Mine Force Base moved most of its minesweepers to shelter moorings up the Cooper River.

There is a marked pickup in the height and number of waves along the North Carolina coast. Wrightsville, Carolina and Kure beaches expect above normal tides late today.

Ready To Batten Down

Some Charlotteans were heading to the coast today to secure beach cottages against Hurricane Helene—just in case. Two who left today were Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Killian, above, of Colony Rd., who have a home on the South Carolina coast. They packed nails and hammers to batten down "Kat's Cottage" at Crescent Beach. Mrs. Killian got the word from grandson Larry Hunter before she left: "Please save my kite," he said. "It is in the closet."

Expected To Hit By Midnight

MIAMI, Fla. — (AP) — The Weather Bureau ordered hurricane warnings flow today from Cape Fear, N. C., to Savannah, Ga.

The bureau said hurricane Helene centered 200 miles southeast of Charleston, S. C., at 11 a.m. EST.

It was moving northwestward at 14 miles an hour.

"Safety precautions should be started immediately and completed by sunset," the emergency warning from Charleston to Cape Fear, to heights of 4 to 6 feet above levels reached by normal tides for this date.

EVEN HIGHER

"In some local areas tides may be even higher."

The bureau said also that "destructive winds and dangerously high tides should begin by early this evening and are expected at the latest by 10 p.m., with maximum winds 75 to 100 miles near the center of the hurricane beginning around or shortly after midnight."

"Present indications are that the hurricane center will reach the South Carolina coast near or at a distance north of Charleston."

"People within the reach of the forecast tides and sea floods should evacuate immediately before rising water cuts off escape," the bureau said.

The bureau said no important identification of the storm's position.

Ready To Batten Down

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — (AP) — A weather probing Vanguard satellite was blasted into space today and preliminary instrumentation showed the rocket's three engines performed normally.

That meant the huge rocket blazed some 30 miles high in space, probably reaching a speed of 18,000 miles per hour.

An official announcement said, however, that it was not yet known whether orbital height was obtained. This should be determined within about 2 1/2 hours.

The first word on whether the United States had placed a fourth satellite in orbit was expected to come from the National Academy of Science in Washington in two hours.

Quemoy Supply Line Unbroken

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Fresh supplies poured to Quemoy's defense yesterday as the island heavy Communist artillery fire today.

The buildup came as the Chinese Nationalist announced another aerial victory that boosted their claimed kills to 29—without a Nationalist loss—since the Aug. 23 flareup of the offshore war.

Pilots reported one MIG-17 shot down and another possibly damaged by air force jets yesterday off Swatow between Formosa and its offshore island Quemoy.

The first Nationalist ship convoy to cross Formosa Strait since Monday sailed through a Red barrage and sent amphibious vehicles racing to Quemoy's beaches with cargo to replenish garrison stocks. Four correspondents witnessed the operation on a flight bank to Taipei.

Transport planes parachuted high-priority supplies to the island overnight through ships peppered by bursting shells. It was the third such operation in three nights.

Though the supplies are flowing again, the big questions are how much is getting through and how long the blockade puncturing can be kept up.

These are vital questions because a Communist policy of containing the Red's chance to starve out Quemoy. Warships of the U. S. 7th Fleet are escorting the convoys. Destroyers make the run today with the supply ships. Newsmen sighted two or three flying the American flag. The warships sailed well outside the three-mile limit.
