W. a. Has 2nd Day Of Quiet

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI)—Virginia moved peacefully into its second day of token race mixing in its public schools today with no serious incidents reported. As on Monday, 17 Negroes filed calmly into six previously white Norfolk schools and four into Arlington's Stratford Junior High. There were no incidents of any kind.

A reduced band of police officers stood outside Stratford as the four seventh graders arrived and drove up in a car and entered a classroom.

White students at Norfolk's six integrated schools stood chatting in groups as on any other school day. Negro children entered for their first day of classes. Monday's first day session was for reception only.

President Eisenhower, Gov. J. Lindsay Almond and other leaders expressed gratification that there was no further violence. Crowds Monday when the seven schools began the first in Virginia both white and Negro students.

No incidents reported. The day passed without an incident reported. It could well have been a normal school day except for the quiet crowds of curious spectators and the swarm of reporters and photographers who gathered at the schools to record the historic event.

There were no jeers, no disturbances inside the schools. Authorities predicted the orderly integration would continue just as it began, peacefully although perhaps painful to the ardent segregationists.

The deaths in the state Legislature made to override Almond with some last minute plan to thwart integration, called it a "day of anger" and "several" days further race mixing would be resisted.

Difficulties Ahead. Almond, without mentioning the segregation barriers in the two cities, told the General Assembly Monday night he was confident they could find some new anti-integration program through cooperation. He predicted the "new" program would be a "strong" program with serious difficulties.

Both the President and Almond said they were gratified that there were no disturbances such as those that marked the opening of Little Rock's Central High School in September, 1957.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the President thought it was a "fine thing" that this was all orderly and that authorities "were determined that there would be no disorder."

Norfolk School Supt. J. A. Brewer said he was proud of the Negroes in the busy school city for their calm acceptance of the new plan for six schools which had been "massive resistance" since the state's new desegregation law.

Arlington County Manager A. T. Lundberg said: "The conduct of the students and all others in the area was what we all hoped it would be. We believe that the general atmosphere which prevailed will continue."

Four Negroes entered the seventh grade at the previously all-white Stratford Junior high in Arlington, just across the Potomac River from Washington.

A telephone bomb threat was received at Stratford shortly after noon but was dismissed as a hoax after a careful check.

In a decision handed down in Forsyth Superior Court, Judge Olive affirmed the Zoning Board of Adjustment's action in granting a permit for the project.

In so doing, he denied the petition of homeowners in the area who asked that the project be halted.

But the project will not be free to go ahead immediately since the petitioners served notice in court of their objections. A ruling will be appealed to the State Supreme Court.

Called Illegal. The petitioners said the zoning project is illegal because the Zoning Board used powers given illegally by the Board of Aldermen. It permitted the project in an unincorporated area and it did not comply with provisions of the zoning ordinance.

Judge Olive did not find any facts in the case regarding these allegations. He said he would not find any facts unless required by law to do so.

Specifically, the homeowners said the Zoning Board of Adjustment granted the permit which could only be given by the Board of Aldermen. The petition said zoning is vested in the Aldermen and they cannot delegate the power.

Cold Rain Gives N.C. Icy Coat

From Sentinel Wire Reports
Freezing rain and sleet gave North Carolina an icy bath this morning. Snow clung to at least two counties as road conditions became hazardous.

The State Highway Patrol said a nurse, Remma A. Pollard, 22, of Cary, was killed in a traffic accident caused by ice on a road near Cary.

The freezing rain began over southwestern North Carolina and was expected to spread over most of the state before turning to rain over the south portion late this morning over the northern portion of the northern portion of the north.

In the Asheville area, roads were icy in some spots. Runcombe County schools remained closed. City and county schools also were closed at Winston-Salem.

The Weather Bureau at Raleigh-Durham Airport said the rain and sleet would make road conditions hazardous, particularly in the mountains and Piedmont until temperatures climb above freezing and the rain melts the accumulated ice.

A meteorologist there said a recent warm snap which heated highway pavements probably could be credited with keeping most North Carolina roads free of ice.

Mountain Roads Bad. The Weather Bureau said road conditions were worst along the eastern slopes of the Blue Ridge. The storm causing the precipitation was in the Gulf of Mexico. The Gulf disturbance spread precipitation northward to the mountain of cold, high pressure centered along the coast of Virginia.

The high pressure system was moving eastward and the Gulf disturbance northeastward. The Weather Bureau said that as the storm system develops and the high pressure moves eastward, somewhat warmer air will be transported northward to lift temperatures gradually above freezing.

At dawn today, it was below freezing across the state. There was an inch and a half of snow on the ground this morning covering Mt. Mitchell. A light snow still falling. The temperature there at 8 a.m. was 30 degrees below zero.

The weatherman predicted a somewhat warmer temperatures for tonight and tomorrow, with the temperature going to the mid 50s tomorrow.

Small craft warnings were displayed along the coast this morning. The coast had 20 to 30 miles of the north and 20 to 30 miles of the south.

A low pressure storm, which has paralyzed parts of west Texas under a six-inch coating, was expected to move eastward into Missouri.

The combination snow and ice storm was expected for Texas, along 14 in traffic accidents on slick highways, three in the crash of an ice-packed plane and one by drowning.

The temperature climbed to 29 degrees at 10 a.m. and at noon it had reached 31 degrees. The weatherman said that the threat of freezing in the Twin City should be past by early afternoon but that the ice might continue in some sections of the state.

Rain is expected to continue tonight and tomorrow, with the temperature going to the mid 50s tomorrow.

The Coast Guard reported the fire was out. The tanker Skotland is loaded with oil and was coming north either from Curacao or Aruba.

The master of the 559-foot motor tanker realized there were men injured and his ship's condition was "satisfactory."

The Coast Guard said the cutter Alseco was 120 miles north, northwest of the Skotland when the fire and explosion occurred shortly after 10:30 p.m. Monday night.

The Danish vessel, in its original all-spills message, said the fire and explosion broke out in the engine room and it was impossible to enter that area. The master of the ship said the fire was under control and it expected to proceed to port.

U.S. Truck Convoy Led at Red Border

BERLIN (UPI)—Armed Soviet guards today held a U.S. Army truck convoy and five American soldiers at a checkpoint on the East-West Germany border despite repeated protests and demands for their release.

The convoy was prevented from crossing into West Germany Monday. The U.S. lodged two protests Monday. Today, an American official went to Soviet headquarters in East Berlin to register another protest.

"Our objective is to get the Soviet out of West Germany," an Army spokesman said when asked if the trucks would return to West Berlin.

The U.S. Army said a four-truck convoy was halted by Soviet guards at the Marienborn checkpoint on Monday (7:05 a.m. e.s.t.) Marienborn is in East Germany, at the western end of the 110-mile Autobahn from West Berlin.

U.S. Army sources denounced the Russian blockade. They said the Soviet action was designed to create an incident. It emphasized the stranglehold the communists have on isolated Berlin's lifelines to the west.

The convoy, carrying jeeps, cleared the Russian Babenberg checkpoint just outside of Berlin without incident. It made the run to Marienborn but was halted there as it was about to cross into West Germany.

House Speaker Race Lennon Politicking for Hewlett

LENNON and Hewlett rounded during the 1951 General Assembly when Lennon was in the State Senate and Hewlett was a freshman in the House.

Lennon later was appointed to the U.S. Senate, was defeated by the late Sen. W. Kerr Scott and scored a political comeback by getting elected to the U.S. House of Representatives.

During World War II, Astor also returned to active duty and served on the staff of the Eastern Sea Frontier Command, engaged in anti-submarine warfare.

Astor is survived by his third wife, Brooke, daughter of the late Maj. Gen. John H. Russell, Marine Corps commander from 1934 to 1938. They were married at Bar Harbor, Maine, in 1953.

Astor's first marriage was to Helen Dinsmore Huntington in 1924. She obtained a divorce in Wyoming in 1949 on grounds of mental cruelty.

Astor then wed Mary Cushing, one of three daughters of the famous King, Feisal I, founder of Iraq, who died in London, Sweden, last week. A seven-day mourning period was announced here Monday.

Some say he has further political ambitions—perhaps the U.S. Senate again or even governor, come 1960. *

"Miss Blanche" is up and about in time to greet the legislators. As anybody who has ever stayed at the Raleigh's quite a while knows, "Miss Blanche" is Mrs. Blanche Manor, the ageless arbiter of all things political and social.

"Miss Blanche" took a bad tumble a few months ago, was in the hospital for weeks. Most people here (she positively declines to be interviewed) would have receded in the sick bed the rest of their lives.

But not "Miss Blanche." She's back at the Sir Walter, moving around on a walker and looking just as chipper—though hardly as agile—as ever.
