Concert Illustrates Beauty Of Voice

By DICK BANKS
Observer Arts Editor

The Oratorio Singers of Charlotte usually sing the big ones. Their performances usually build up to the power of an Atlas missile aimed at Saturn.

Not so Sunday Under the direction of Paul Langston they sang three little ones, which in many ways disclosed beauty of voice, balance, and pure technique better than the blockbusters.

Including Eunice Platen Berg's organ solo, "Ora de Octava Tena Alto" by Sebastian Aguilera de Heredia, the whole concert lasted 50 minutes, within the acoustically delightful arches of Myers Park Baptist Church.

Langston had the musical resources at his command well in hand. "Johanna Deo" by Gabrieli came off fairly well, a charmingly simple work of religious fervor with trumpets serving as musical eye-men all the way through.

"Psalms 136" by Schütz was my favorite, with the brass talking back to the choristers and the organ grumbling along beneath it all. A delicious "Alma" climax had voices, brass and organ united in a re-creation of exquisite tone.

As for Benjamin Britten's

"Hymn to St. Cecilia" she could only say that while he didn't understand it, he liked it.

It was surprising, right there in church, to hear all these good people singing.

"Blind Aphrodite" rose up excited.

Moved to delight by the melody.

While as an orchid she rode quite naked.

In an oyster shell on top of the sea.

The solo work was pleasing. Judith Thompson, soprano, Wilma Gemmell, contralto, Wayne Leazer, tenor, and Bill Thompson, baritone.

The music continued to be more comprehensible than the words. Like these, for instance:

"I cannot grow / I have no shadow / To run away from / I only play / I cannot see / There is no creature / Whom I belong to / Whom I could wrong."

Fragments of pleasure made up much of the goodness of Britten's "climax had voices, brass and organ united in a re-creation of exquisite tone."

sofly resonant, the soprano soloist, poignant and true.

Youth Will Enjoy College Romance

NEW YORK — Tonight's top television shows as previewed and selected by TV Key's staff who attend rehearsals, watch screenings, and analyze scripts here and in Hollywood.

FATHER KNOWS BEST — "Not His Type." This episode about collegiate romance should amuse the younger set. Diane Miller, a real looker, pushes her boy friend around so much that he decides to switch to Betty. Though she doesn't end up by stealing the man, Betty does teach him how to be one. 8:30 p.m. CHANNEL 3, 2.

BOURBON STREET BEAT — "Suitable for Framing." OK says. When Rex picks up a sweet young 'ing chick at the track, he finds himself neatly framed as her rich husband's murderer. The movie seems to be — if you're looking for someone to frame, don't pick on a private eye, or he'll untangle you before the faintest. However, the play easily sustains interest, and when it doesn't, there's always Ella Moreau's oversized eyes to look at. 8:30 CHANNEL 12.

DANNY THOMAS — Nasty handoff tale. A middle-aged school student spends some time with the Williams family so Rusty can get a bit of discipline. The idea backfires quickly when the guest turns out to be somewhat of a devil. Rusty, as usual, steals all his scenes, and Lee Acker from Rin Tin Tin plays the house guest. 9 p.m. CHANNELS 3, 2.

JACK PAAR — James Cagney joins Jack's adoring panel for the first time tonight, with Jim Bishop, Genevieve, Shari Lewis and her puppets as his colleagues of the evening. 11:15 p.m. CHANNELS 4, 9, 12.

Of the thousands of questions received each week, the TV KEY staff selects the most interesting and representative to be answered in this daily column.

QUESTION — Please tell me the relationship of Alex and Margie King on "Alex in Wonderland." T. R. G. Evansville, Ind.

ANSWER — They are man and wife.

QUESTION — Is Leonard Bernstein married, and to whom? They have any children? How long has he been in New York? Philharmonie? — B. and F., Baltimore, Md.

ANSWER — Bernstein is married to actress Felicia M. Teagle — a Chilean beauty who frequently appeared in live TV dramas in its early days. They have two children — Alexander Serge and Jamie. The 1950-51 season was Bernstein's first as permanent conductor of the New York Philharmonie.

QUESTION — Could you please tell me where I could get a picture of Steve Reish and the Barbarians? — E. N. San Antonio, Texas.

ANSWER — Write to the film's releasers — American International Pictures, 8255 Sunset Blvd., Hollywood 46, Calif.

QUESTION — Is the TV program, "Bourbon Street Beat," filmed in New Orleans or is it filmed in Hollywood? Is there a real street called Bourbon Street? — P. R. Paterson, N. J.

ANSWER — The show is filmed in Hollywood, but there is a real Bourbon Street in the Creole city.
