Feverish and delirious, his poisoned body covered with a red rash, Tatum fought his last downhill hours valiently and virtually alone. Only his doctors were permitted at his bedside in the isolation ward of the North Carolina Memorial Hospital.

When Tatum died, his wife, Edna, lay ill at home apparently suffering from the same type of virus infection. She took a turn for the worse today and was taken to the same hospital.

Shortly after her admission, the hospital said her illness was still undiagnosed. It said it expected to have a report from her doctors later in the morning.

Tatum was visiting in Canada with his friends, Coaches Clyde (Peahead) Walker of Montreal and Frank Howard of Clemson, when he was called home after the death of sister last week.

HOSPITALIZED SATURDAY

Tatum was hospitalized with the virus last Saturday. Since then, his condition worsened rapidly. Physicians said the virus "overwhelmed" Tatum, affecting such vital organs as his liver and kidneys.

Because they could not be specific, they performed an autopsy.

Always the center of controversy, Tatum returned to his alma mater here just four short years ago. He wanted to rebuild the school into a national football power.

Tatum, always talkative and jovial, soon became embroiled in a controversy with the student newspaper over professionalism in football.

It was in Winston-Salem a few weeks later, that Tatum finally made his now-famous rebuttal to the paper.

"It is a sad occasion when academic leaders don't have a sufficient education in athletics to realize the benefits athletes receive from the field of sport," he said.

"I don't think winning is the most important thing—I think it's the only thing," he declared.

S. C. NATIVE

Tatum first came to the University of North Carolina in 1931 from his home in McColl, a South Carolina hamlet. Playing under Carl Snavely, Tatum was an All-Southern Conference player. He was graduated in 1935, followed Snavely to Cornell, but later returned to North Carolina as director of freshman athletics, becoming head football coach in 1942.

He entered the Navy, served as an assistant to Don Faurot at the Iowa Pre-Flight, and then became coach of the Jacksonville (Fla.) Naval Air Station.

He went to Oklahoma in 1946, guiding his team into the Gator Bowl.

Then he moved to Maryland. In nine years at Maryland, his teams won 73 games, lost only 15, and played four ties. His teams played in the Orange, Sugar and Gator bowls. In 1953 his team was named national champions and Tatum was voted Coach of the Year.

Tatum went into a coma during the afternoon and did not regain consciousness. He died at 10:40 p.m. (EST).

The funeral will be held Saturday morning at 11 o'clock at the Chapel Hill Methodist Church.

Berlin Truce Terms Talked

GENEVA (AP)— Soviet and Western foreign ministers began discussing the terms of a possible Berlin truce agreement in a secret session of the Big Four conference today, but western informants said they made no progress.

This was the first time since the second phase of the conference started two weeks ago that the Soviet Union's Andrei A. Gromyko had been willing to engage in an exchange of views on the problems directly involved in a truce instead of insisting on priority for his proposal for creation of an all-German committee.

Nevertheless, American officials said this progress in the procedure of the conference does not mean a thing, because Gromyko still insists the West would have to accept his committee proposal in some form before he would make a firm agreement to suspend the Soviet threat to West Berlin.

POSITIVE VIEW

With the conference's eighth week nearing an end, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd took a far more positive view of achievements to date than Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville.

The Soviet Union and the Western powers, he told Gromyko, have already succeeded in laying down the broad outlines of a Berlin agreement, covering such matters as limitation of forces and armaments in West Berlin with a pledge of no Communist action against the city for a fixed period of time, the Soviet offer being 18 months.

"I believe that it should be possible here or at some other meeting, perhaps at another level (the summit), to get final acceptance of this interim agreement," Lloyd said.

RED CHIEF, NIXON STAGE HOT DEBATE

Geneva Failure Seen As Great Blow To Peace

MOSCOW (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon told Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev face to face today, in a rough and tumble public debate, it would "be a great blow to peace" if the Geneva conference were allowed to fail.

Nixon traded barbed comments with the Soviet leader while escorting him through the American exhibition in Moscow's Sokolniki Park.

At one point, Khrushchev accused Niron indignantly of threatening him. Nixon denied this, but said:

"I don't believe the cause of peace is helped by your reiterating the point you just made — that you have more strength than we have, because that is a threat, too."

"Let us not beat around the bush," Khrushchev said. "The main thing is that we want to put an end to bases on foreign lands. This is the main thing.

"I repeat — until that happens we will speak different political languages. The one that is for putting an end to bases on foreign lands is for peace. The one who is against this is for war.

OFFERS PEACE

"We have offered to make peace with Germany and eliminate the point of friction in Berlin," Khrushchev said.

Nixon stood toe-to-toe with Khrushchev batting back his arguments one by one. At the end Nixon apologized for being "a poor host at the exposition and allowing a ceremonial visit to turn into hot foreign policy discussions.

Khrushchev apologized for speaking so frankly to Nixon. But Nixon, recalling some of his political campaigns, told their interpreter:

"Tell him I have been insulted by experts."

When the debate got really rough, Nixon said bluntly:

"I trust the premier has understood all the implications. What I mean is that the moment we place either one of these powerful nations through the ultimatum in a position where they have no choice but accept dictation or fight, then you are playing with the most destructive power in the world.

"'And this is very important in the present world context. When you sit down at the conference table it cannot be all one way."

KHRUSHCHEV FLUSHES

Khrushchev flushed red and looking sternly at Nixon he said:

"Who is giving ultimatum?"

Nixon tried to shift the argument saying the two men should discuss this touchy issue at another time.

But Khrushchev, obviously irritated, would not stop.

"Since you raised it while people are listening why not now?" he demanded. "We know something about politics too."

"You talk about an ultimatum, you put great emphasis on an ultimatum. What do you mean?

"It sounds like a great threat. We too are giants. If you want to threaten we will answer threat with threat."

"That is not my point," Nixon said. "Who wants to threaten? I am not threatening, I'll never engage in threats."'

FBI Checking Girl's Story Of Kidnaping

Sobbing Jackie Hart Comforted By Friend Mrs. John Kellog At Chicago Police Station

Missing Socialite Is Found In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP)—New Jersey heiress Jacqueline Gay Hart, missing since Wednesday, ran up to a policeman in Chicago's Grant Park early today. She sobbed out hysterically that she had been kidnaped in Newark.

Police and agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation immediately began a searching check of her story.

Lt. Charles Pierson, Chicago deputy chief of detectives, indicated that no discrepancies were found in her story of ordeal as the prisoner of two kidnapers.

"If she's acting, she's a hell of an actress," Pierson said.

Miss Hart, 21-year-old daughter of Ralph A. Hart, executive vice president of the Colgate-Palmolive Co., ran sobbing to a parked police car in the post-midnight darkness, and cried:

"Where am I; where am I?"

Policeman Jack Blakeslee told her she was in Chicago.

"My name is Gay Hart," she told the surprised officer. "I want to call my dad in New Jersey."

RAMBLING ACCOUNT

She gave a distraught, rambling account of two days' terror since she bade farewell to her fiance, 25-year-old Stanley Gaines of Fayetteville, W. Va., at the Newark Airport and vanished.

Richard Auerbach, FBI chief in Chicago, said the bureau was "conducting a large scale investigation to see whether any federal law has been violated."

Miss Hart's arms were bruised. There was a dark welt under her left eye. Her ash blonde hair was dishevled. But her gray sheath dress showed only wrinkles of long wear.

She said she was seized by a man at the airport as she was about to get back into her own car, and shoved into another car where a second man bound and gagged her, then pushed her to the floor where she was covered with a blanket.

A long auto trip followed, during which she was kicked sharply in the sides when she stirred.

She related that she was confined in a bathroom for several hours before she was taken into the car again, and pushed out in Grant Park.

Lt. Pierson, who said the story appeared incredible at first, questioned her in harsh terms.

"Is this a hoax—a publicity stunt?"

WOULDN'T DO THIS

"No, I wouldn't do this to hurt my parents," she replied firmly. "I love them too much."

"I went over her story 20 times," Pierson said. "There were no discrepancies. She offered to go on the lie box (take a polygraph lie detector test). If she's acting, she's a hell of an actress."

Pierson said Chicago police would step out of the investigation after the young socialite is re-united with her father who flew to Chicago from Newark, turning it over exclusively to the FBI.

Miss Hart told police that her captors had discussed making "a lot of money" through the kidnaping, and then deciding to get rid of her because she was "too hot."

She said that during nearly a day and a half of continuous driving, she was fed a diet of candy bars. She said she was not sexually molested.

She said she felt certain that she would be slain, but was powerless.

COULDN'T SCREAM

"I was gagged so I couldn't plead or scream," she said. "With the blindfold, I couldn't even cry."

Miss Hart said she never got a good look at the kidnapers who took a 1¾ carat diamond engagement ring, an amethyst ring, a gold bracelet and a gold brooch.

During the long period she lay in the automobile, Miss Hart said, she heard sounds when the car paused which she took to be dropping coins into an automatic toll road collection box.

She said she thought the bathroom where she was confined was a room in a private home in Chicago.

Ex-Con Slays Child's Father, Babe In Arms

BASSETT, Va. (AP)—An ex-convict was accused of the early morning slaying of a Henry County man and his infant daughter and the wounding of the adult victim's mother, shot while cradling the infant in her arms.

Sheriff Morton Prillaman said the man who did the shooting with a .30-.30 caliber rifle was Earl Smith, 28, of Ferrdm, Va., recently released from the Lewisburg, W. Va., federal reformatory after serving 30 months on a whisky conspiracy charge. Prillaman said Smith had been due in Franklin County Court today to answer a charge of assaulting his wife.

Victims of the 6:15 a.m. shootings were Marvin Lee Whorley, in his early 30s, and his daughter, Delia, 8 months. Whorley's mother, Mrs. Marjorie Lee Whorley, was wounded when a bullet passed through the baby's body and struck her in the chest.

The sheriff said Smith was married to the sister of Whorley's wife.

SMITH APPEARS

Prillaman said Whorley and his wife, Louise Whorley, had left their cabin to walk to their jobs in Bassett Furniture factories. He said about 150 yards down a dirt road Smith stepped from behind a clump of bushes and said:

"It's been a long time."

Then, the sheriff said, he fired once with the rifle and Whorley fell dead.

Mrs. Whorley fled back to her home with Smith in pursuit, dashed inside and locked the door. She screamed for her mother-in-law to run and herded her three oldest daughters out the back door.

GRABS INFANT

The elder Mrs. Whorley dashed into a front bedroom and grabbed up the infant.

Smith had by this time broken in the front door. Prillaman said, and confronted the older woman and the infant in the bedroom. He fired one shot, which killed the baby and wounded the elder Mrs. Whorley, the sheriff said.

The younger Mrs. Whorley had reached the safety of a neighbor's home with her other three daughters.

The elder Mrs. Whorley was reported in "fair" condition in Martinsville General Hospital. Police are still searching the area for Smith. Bassett is located in Central Virginia near the North Carolina-Virginia line.

3-Count Convictions

Dynamite Plotters Given Stiff Terms

HENDERSON (AP)—Eight members of the Textile Workers Union drew long prison sentences Thursday after their conviction for conspiring to dynamite facilities of a struck cotton mill.

The eight included Boyd Payton, 51, Carolinas director of the union who led the long and often violent strike at the Harrie-Henderson cotton mills here.

Superior Court Judge Raymond Mallard sentenced Payton to 6 to 10 years at hard labor. Judge Millard said: "I hope all of you gentlemen will some day come to understand that the law is bigger than you, bigger than the union, bigger than any organization. The good people of North Carolia will not tolerate anyone holding themselves above the law."

Payton's aide, Lawrence Gore, and Charles Auslander, 47, of Spray, a minor union official, also received 6 to 10 years at hard labor.

All eight were convicted on the counts of conspiring to blow up an office building, the boiler room and a substation feeding power to the South Henderson plant of the mills.

The other defendants and their terms: Warren Walker, 38; Robert Edward Abbott, 21; Calvin Ray Pegram, 22; and Johnny Martin, 37, each received 5 to 7-year terms; and Malcolm Harrell, 23, received 2 to 3 years.

Notice of appeal was given for all eight by their lawyers.

Judge Mallard, who has a reputation for being hard but fair, told the defendants and their lawyers:

"We need unions in the United States. We do not need an union or union officials who think and act like they are above the law. Fear has run rampant in Henderson and Vance County the last few months. I don't know who caused it, but it must end right here."

Appeal bond for Payton, Auslander, and Gore was set at $25,000 each. Bond for Walker, Pegram, Martin and Abbott was set at $20,000 each. Jarrett's bond was $10,000.

Judge Mallard, who presided at previous strike-connected trials, told Gore, "According to the reputation I got when I was down here before, you were the man in charge of the violence in Henderson."

Irritated by the public criticism, attorney Schoenlaub resigned. So did all of his assistants.

So far, only council president Landis has defended the ordinance in public.

Hastily, the council began looking for a way to modify the new ordinance. An "informal" meeting (closed to the public) was called to discuss new plans. It was reported that the five councilmen — who incidentally approved the new ordinance unanimously — had agreed on modifications.

The citizenry was outraged.

Foreign Aid Bill Signed

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Eisenhower signed today a $3,556,200,000 Foreign Aid Authorization Bill.

The total is $353,200,000 short—or within 10 per cent of the amount Eisenhower recommended.

But there is every indication that Congress will cut deeper in the forthcoming Foreign Aid Appropriations Bill to provide the actual funds for the program through June 30, 1960.

The bill signed today sets maximums and defines policies.

BIGGEST CUT

The biggest cut was in authorization for military arms to allies. Congress set the limit at $1,400,000,000 instead of the $1,600,000,000 Eisenhower recommended. Moreover, it directed that for a two-year trial period military foreign aid be treated as part of the U. S. defense budget rather than a separate item.

Congress also authorized only 155 million dollars, instead of the recommended 200 million dollars, in the fund for the President to spend in unforeseen contingencies.

—BUT DON'T TRY TO BUY PEANUTS—

Law Approves Beer Sales On Sunday

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)— If you are in St. Joseph Sunday and would like a beer, you'll have no trouble buying it. But just try to buy a sack of peanuts to nibble on. Or a package of cigarettes.

A new city ordinance governing business on Sunday was adopted recently by the city council of St. Joseph, a city of 78,883 souls in northwest Missouri.

LIBERALIZED LAW

It was drafted by city attorney Fred E. Schoenlaub and his staff of five to liberalize an old blue law which said in effect don't buy, don't sell and don't play on Sunday.

The new version exempts businesses which provide emergency, necessary or recreational services. Hospitals, hotels, service stations, drug stores, theaters and restaurants are among those businesses allowed to open on Sunday.

But drug stores can sell only medicines. Grocers can sell fresh produce, dairy products and soft drinks but not packaged foods such as peanuts. Service stations can sell only gasoline and oil.

Legally, you can't buy tobacco in any form — or matches for that matter. You can buy oil for your car, but not an oil filter. You can buy a soft drink or an ice cream bar at the movies — but no popcorn.

And, you can buy 3.2 per cent beer. Restaurants are exempt. Missouri law requires all taverns to serve food.

One clever restaurant owner got around the tobacco ban. He simply boosted the price of a glass of milk from 10 to 35 cents and threw in a package of cigarettes as a premium.

The new law caused no public concern until last Sunday. That was after Schoenlaub, acting on orders of council president Garth Landis, ordered police to enforce the ordinance.

And enforce it they did. Five persons were arrested for selling various items — such as a bottle of ketchup. All were re-
