

Friends, Relatives Recall O. Henry's Boyhood Days In Greensboro

ALREADY STARTED HIS CAREER HIM ON TEMPERATURE

City Has Provided No Suitable Memorial For Writer

By W. P. Price

GREENSBORO, July 25.—The Greensboro Chamber of Commerce has sponsored the placing of a granite headstone on the site of the "Zempelet farm" near the town of Greensboro, N. C., which was the birthplace of the famous writer O. Henry. The headstone is to be placed on the site of the farm which was the birthplace of the famous writer O. Henry. Some 12 years ago city and county leaders sponsored the placing of a granite headstone on the site of the "Zempelet farm" near the town of Greensboro, N. C., which was the birthplace of the famous writer O. Henry. The headstone is to be placed on the site of the farm which was the birthplace of the famous writer O. Henry.

There is no other public memorial to O. Henry in Greensboro, and so a hotel and a drugstore. Various committees have been organized under the name of O. Henry, but they have all failed to do anything more than to pay for a granite headstone on the site of the farm which was the birthplace of the famous writer O. Henry.

Miss Rowe is very truly interested in the life of O. Henry. She has been instrumental in the collection of material for a biography of the writer. Here Are Ties That Linked O. Henry To North Carolina

O. Henry, (William Sydney Porter), is buried in Asheville. His widow still resides here. These facts, with the above pictures, tell why North Carolina claims O. Henry as her very own. Upper left: O. Henry Memorial Tablet in State Capitol at Raleigh. It is the work of Lorado Taft and was dedicated Dec. 2, 1914.

Upper center: Miss Line Porter, O. Henry's aunt and school teacher who did more to influence his life in his youth than any other. O. Henry's childhood sweetheart, Sara Lindley Coleman, also attended Miss Porter's school—and some 25 years later O. Henry and Miss Coleman were married.

Upper right: The O. Henry marker in Greensboro on West Market street. It stands on the site of the house in which the author was born. Dr. W. P. Beall, standing to the left of the marker, was one of O. Henry's closest boyhood friends. He, before his death, gave the Greensboro public library numerous letters from O. Henry and also a number of the sketches which O. Henry drew in Greensboro. The child is Charlotte Porter, a cousin of the author. This picture was made in 1924. The memorial tablet in West Market street, Greensboro, where O. Henry and the little girl who later became his second wife, were taught by O. Henry's aunt. The building, long since removed, stood on the yard of the Porter homestead. O. Henry attended no other school.

Lower left: Cradle in which Will Porter was rocked as a child in the back of the wagon which was also used by him and his brothers. It's legs were cut off so it could be pulled in the yard of the house and used by the children when the front seat was too full.
