Without Filibusters

Is meanly as we can make it out, the indirection has at length arrived in Russia. The first parliament united in Russia. The first parliament united after a sension of only eight large. Abandonment of Mr. Willkie

Mr. Wendell Willkie, president or Coramonwealth & Southern, is a glutton for the hair of the dog that this having fought all the way up to the Supreme Court against Prederal Gans and gittle to municipalities for power plants, and having learned at the last that the court could find no reason to grant him related. He was that the court could find no reason to grant him related. He was that the court could find no reason to grant him related. He was a country to advance of the theoretic of the country of the coun

y-owned power plants wi ney that it raises in part fro publicly-owned power plants with the money that it raises in part from heavy taxes on privately-owned utilities. But more than the redemption of investments in Commonwealth & Southern is involved in Mr. Willkie's proposition. It acceptance by the Government on either of his terms would mean, utilitately, government ownership of all utilities. And we doubt exceedingly that the country care to adopt any such policy merely as an expedient to save Commonwealth & Southern stockholders from harm. Mr. Willies's outh thas been the goat, it is true, of a nebulous and impulsive Federal power policy— or lack of policy. We feel sorry for Mr. Willies At the same time, business is business; and the business primarily in hand at this juncture is is business; and the business pri-marily in hand at this juncture is not to put the Federal Government all the way into the power business for the sake of a relatively few in-jured stockholders, but to keep it out for the sake of private initiative. Mr. Wilkie, in short, for all of us, may stew.

The Case of Dean Noe

It's a queer thing that organized society, which is to say the state, oftentimes steps in and forcibly progrides medical attention for ill children whose parents are opposed on religious scruple to medical treatchildren whose parents are opposed on religious scruple to medical treatment, or pute away where he can do no harm some demented soul with a mania for injuring himself, or collars a would-be uitcle to keep him from taking his life — it's a queer thing, we say, that organized society, which is to say the state, will go so far to save its distreased wards from themselves, yet will stand by and permit an obviously lill mind such as Dean Noc's publicly and the body that nourishes it. It cannot be argued that the state hangs back out of fearful respect for a man's religious ferror, for it semisby interferes in such affairs where lower orders of intelligence are involved. And the church itself—well, the church has come a long—well, the church has come a long—well, the church has come a long.

And the church itself—well, the church has come a long way in respect for the Individual since those dark ages when a saicide had his body staked to the unhallowed ground of a public readward, his goods conficated. But it still is debatable that the church has no right to Interfere when one of its officers sets out to consume himself by starvation.

And the plain fact, as set forth And the plain fact, as set forth in the letter to Dean Noo systerday by his bishop, removing him from the deanthjor of 8th Marry's Cathedral, is that the fasting cleric is not a present his "normal self." Whether the state or the church owes it to this poor man and his family to intervene and forcibly to treat his abormshifty is a question that a thousand precedents answer in the affirmative.

Study in Immediacy

President Roosevelt reaffirming his support of legislation for extension of the civil service system, said today that the establishment of a sound presonnel program was "one of the most important constructive steps in the improvement of government administration today."

That from an Associated Press dis-patch of Wednesday, January 19, in this year of 1939. And this from the Democratic platform of Friday, June 28, 1938:
