Keep Bending, Girls

New England physicians are experimenting with a drug which promises to be almost as great a boon for human vitality as that elusive elixir, a hair tonic that would actually grow hair on bald heads.

has the sulphamide case taught the medical and chemical professions the lesson of ultra-cautiousness. They're not going to let the public in on this new reducing drug, which makes you feel good, too, until they've made double sure that it won't bring on any sort of softening of the arteries or decomposition of the bone structure.

Without being able to approve this, we're not to say that it simply isn't so. Saving the die-hards and the constitutionally opposed, there are signs that ever so many prudent and patriotic business men have made the discovery that they can continue to operate without undue difficulties, taking the National Labor Relations Board, the Wagner Act and organized labor in stride.

Is a South Carolina Representative, then, a less hungry soul than a member of the United States Congress, which regularly appropriates 30 cents a mile for travel allowance?

For the Federal Government to collect a tax on gasoline and oil, says Frank L. Dunlap, State Highway Commissioner, and not to hand out the revenue to the states to be spent on roads, would be "the most obvious type of diversion of highway revenues."

Okay, call it diversion, just to be agreeable. At the time this "emergency" tax on gasoline and oil was imposed, the Government like wise put a tax on cosmetics.

Mr. Dunlap's argument, reduced to an absurdity, is precisely that—an absurdity. And yet, it is a telling argument, nevertheless, in that diversion is a word that has acquired a bad name and is a whole argument in itself.

According to the official Japanese account of the attack, the Japanese did not intend to land on the mainland, but to capture the island of Wake.

Japan is not a democracy, and we cannot in common politeness presume to doubt it—according to that account, you will remember, the Fenay, drawing 300 tons and mounting a one-three-pound gun, went steaming all alone into the upper reaches of the Yangtze and holed, and without provocation, opened fire on the whole Japanese navy.

IT SEEMS TO ME

By KEYWOOD BROOMS... An interesting incident I have just read in the House's first Parliament adjourned last Wednesday. Legislative score? Not a single piece of legislation was adopted.

This is perfectly legitimate criticism and can hardly be called "hot-headed." But it is also pertinent to remember that the seventy-fifth Congress of the United States has just adjourned for the third session.

This is the 19th session of Congress, and what is the legislative record? Solicitor General Reed has been confirmed by the Senate for the vacancy in the Supreme Court. But not a single piece of legislation has been passed.

By the way, the legislative record? Solicitor General Reed has been confirmed by the Senate for the vacancy in the Supreme Court. But not a single piece of legislation has been passed.

Middle Class Ought To Use Power It Has

It is the backbone of the Country But It Is Far Too Sleepy In These Roaring Times.

City Hall Topics

City Hall newsmen had a hunch for several weeks that the Sunday question was again going to be sprung at a Council meeting, and that the necessary 3,000 votes would be marshalled.

There wasn't much that the opponents could do, and the effort of Councilman Huntley to postpone action was brushed aside and the vote quickly taken. The results, now well known, are that baseball, tennis, golf, swimming and other outdoor sports will be permitted on Sunday.

This brings back the same situation that existed prior to July 24, 1932, and I am wondering if the same cry of discrimination will not be raised by the bowling promoters and motion picture theater operators. That is the question that is most likely to arise, and if too much dust is stirred up, may go back to the "airtight" blue law.

Councilman Griswold, who was the first to raise the question of the blue law, is right when he says that morals can't be legislated into existence.

On the other hand, it is right when he says that morals can't be legislated into existence. On the other hand, it is right when he says that morals can't be legislated into existence.

RECONSTRUCTION The Richmond Dispatch is surprised at the talk of reconstruction, which comes to us daily from the North in the speeches and writings of the "peace party."

It cannot understand how they can dream of such a thing after all that has passed. We should be surprised also by the "reconstruction" views lately advanced by the Richmond Inquirer, which are doubtless regarded at the North as the expression of the desire of the great body of the Southern people, who think nothing of the kind except with horror, and will under no circumstances submit to it.

Other cases considered, it is surprising that the editors of the Inquirer for printing Graves' letter and advocating reconstruction.

The Northern mind is no doubt also influenced and "bided and encouraged" by the slanders of the Inquirer and its abettor which represent that there is a "plot" to break down the Confederate government among the great body of the people of North Carolina, who already Governor Vance.

We have no idea that these slanders themselves believe their chief object being merely to advance certain personal and party propaganda, but it is not surprising that the North should believe it and take courage from it.

General Hunt, Minister from Texas, near the United States, has returned to his adopted country and in his address declares that Texas will form commercial relations with Great Britain and France.

It is said that the project of annexing Texas to the United States is losing favor among the people of the former country. All the measures of late have an eye to the establishment of a separate and independent republic, with the chance of packing a majority of territory on the South for its enlargement.
