He Couldn't Lose

Last night when it, war established that La Guardia had won the Mayorality of New York, the President of the United States called up to congratuitate him. What he said we don't positively know, but it probably ran like this: "Fine and dandy, Protesia. I'm tickled pink you did it. Of course, I had to play along with the Democrats more releas, But all the while I really wanted you to it, since both of us stand for Ideals and Clean Government. Great going, boy!"

going, boy!"

The Frasident, you comprehend could talk that way because the Fresident had "refused to intervene in the New York municipal election." in the New York numbripal election; in the New York numbripal election. Reference to interrunt, that is, personally. His good man Priday, Jim Parley, chair and Bob Wagner, heart committee, and Bob Wagner, keytone of the New Deal in the Senate, hast intervened, indeed, and noutsituatively. They had you not far as to lell the New York electorist that the contest was essentially one between the New Deal and reaction, that if the Temmany-backed Mahonay was deteated and La Guardia elected, the Democratic Dearty, and with it the New Deal, would be greatly weakened the country over.

would be greatly weakened the country over. 2

In the face of this, the President called up the triumphant La Guardia, that arch threat to the New Deal, and said, Nice going. Florelia. Down in my heart I wanted you to win... What material strategy this was and what a hedge the President had against any eremunisity If the Tiger and the spoils system and corruption, had come over and work sealously for that very conclusion? And since Ideals and Clean Government prevailed, weren't they identical with the aims of the New Deal which is incarnated in this person of the incarnated in the person of President himself? Do you see?

They Shot Back

Monday at Shanghai the British shot back. Early the week before a British soldier had been killed by Japanese buillets, three others wounded. Then last Fidday, three more were killed by Japanese buillets. So Monday — when Japanese buillets began once more to whis into the British section of the International Settlement front, the Tommies Joosed four volleys from their riflets. That settled that for the time.

time.

Maybe that is what is really needed in the whole international set-up, not war but a little bit of abouting back by way of warning. Surely conferences and promises have been tried to the point where the world is almost sick of the mere manilon of the world. Over and the world is almost me point when the mere mention of me world. Over and over sealin, it has been over sealin, it has been over sealin, it has been mediated litar—that when he gives his soleran word to abandom murder and piracy as the primary base of his policy, he simply goes in for higher and better murders and piracies. (It was shown all over again this week in the bombing of the 'British frightlets by an Italian planel. The same holds for littler, and as for the Japa, they politicly laugh in the worlde face.

Yet what life behind all this is world's face.

Yet what lies behind all this is simply the belief on the part of these powers that Britain and France these powers that Britain and France are to determined mit to have war are to determined mit to have war that they will stand for anything rather than risk war that it possible the standard of the standard to the standard to the more of the three to the to the standard to them longether can afford actually to force a war, for, win or lose, it means their ruin as certainly as it means their ruin as certainly as it means their ruin as certainly as means ruin for the democratic powers. And so—maybe a, little abouting back, by way of notice that, if it must be, force will be answered with force, would be the very healthlest thing that could happen.

The attuation is terribly mixed and unpredictable because of a great number of artificial and attitutary controls that Congress has granted to the 4d-ministration. We have a tramendous board of gold. If any such "flight from the dolls" respit sataret on foreign exchanges, there are many things the government could by lo do to stop it. Whether they would be mosque to convenience of the control of Whether they would be enough to con-trol it is anybody's guess.

If the price of gold goes high-enough abroad above what we pay fol-1t hera; presumably we would export gold and sell it in sufficient quantities to iry to hing the price in dollars down again to the point at which we desire in keep if sationary. That is what is called "managing the currency" or why we say we have a "managed currency."

EXPERIMENT IN CONTROL.
What that means is that the President has power both directly and timedirectly to requiste the purchasing power of the dollar. But since what a dollar will buy depends on the price of what it buys, that is just another way of saying that the President has the power of regulating or at least strongly affecting general price levels.

And what most the engages on which right to work when he comes to the plant and finds the gates are tooked? Can the plant and finds the gates are tooked? Can the plant that pipe and smoke it or broil it to keep his family from hunger?

Some will say that he can go elsewhere and take another job until times limprove. But that may be a very long walk, a walk right to the edge of the world and over. The mechanical control of the plant is now only a few steps away from being practical. When It is put into use, more than a million men will be thrown out of employment, and all it has will remain with them will be the God-given right to work. God until that will remain with them will be the God-given right to work. God until the world of the control of start to marek they may find the men to longer peeded in cotton fields meeting them half way. And I suppose that community might set up a trading poet and exist by taking in each other's right to work, and it is only fair to mote that the sugged individualist in labor often preserves his right only at the expense of this fellows. Very often he site in the boat without pulling an one, and at the ent of the next when
