Joint City-County Collector Of Taxes on Obvious Move

The County Commissioners may have difficulty finding a new Tax Col-at a salary of $200 a month to some difficulty finding a new Tax Collector at a salary of $200 a month to presen the collection of $1,400,000 a year
the decimal figures out to about .00003,
This is an important job. It involves average accounting and record-keeping, responsibility for money, handling the salar. What's more, the diffigures and measurefulness of the Tax Collector, or it lack of those qualities, has a direct first upon the lax rate which all propity-owners must pay. More than $500,— is delinquent taxes for 1849 and to years is fainting on the County's day. While that money in hand, tax distriction would be automatic.
The City's books are in somewhat beter thapp, and that brings up a suggestion which the County Commissioners mobally would find be inclined to acmission. The county is a suppossible of the control of the control

James 7.

It would be economical; four out of the County taxpayers pay City taxes on the same properly. It would be convenient; City and County taxes could be same properly. It would be convenient; City and County taxes could be said at one office instead of at two. It would be business-like; and both our said governments esteem efficiency. The experiment was tried some years and osteraisly did not work satisfactify. Maybe some et the political every didn't want it to work and so reduce the number of paying jobs. To maybe the combined office wasn't set we the right basis and under the one the right basis and under the one the right basis and under the

on the right basis and under the spit man, in the right man, but there is no evident reason why a joint tax-collection agency shouldn't be a distinct advantage, so plain an advantage, in fact, that we put the suggestion in the form of a motion. Is there a country that the spit man is the spit man in the form of a motion.

U. S. Optimism

If the British Don't Like It, Why the Glad Tidings?

Senttlines it is dreadfully difficult to understand the British.

One day somebody like Senator Nye misses and the British was clover, and insidious propagation, craft politics who are confuring to get America to fight "their war." Another time Raymond Clupper, fresh from a visit to Britain, declares that their stress is mounts public opinion in this sensity are far to honest and much too timey to be called dangerous.

On other occasions British "sources"—strings out to much new too soon. These sources have deplored the "unstrained on the control of the cont

Without questioning the accuracy of these statements—and we pray that they are true—would you say that they inspired oplinism or pession in America? If the British don't want us to be optimistic, they ought to stop sending us so much good news.

The Spiral

Railroad Wages Can't Be Separated From Prices

Separated From Fried Settlement of the relinated dispute may turn out to be a tremendout example of how it is impossible the control prices
and the cast of living when no provision is much to regulate wages.
The Presidential Fact Finding Board has recommended pay increases averaging 12 per cent for all railroad employees.
Added cost to the railroads is estimated.

ing 12 per cent for all railroad employee Added cost to the railroads is estimated at $70,000,000—about one-third as much as the unions demanded.

Railroad officials are saying that they probably will agree to the wage increases—provided the Interstate Committre Commission allows them to railse their freight rates proportionately. They don't plan to bother with passenger fare schedules. But they point out that if they tried to pay the wage increases without upward revision of freight charges, virtually every railroad in the aution would have to operate at a loss. They have their balance sheets to prove $1.

They have their ansance sheets of provided to the spiral.

Everything is ready for the spiral. Wages are increased; freight rates go up; the price of everything that is distributed by rail or manufactured from the materials collected by rail also are raw materials collected by ran man ar-stepped up. 2.

And the railroad employees, while the flush of victory is still in their faces, find that their wage boosts have been nullified because nearly everything they buy costs more. So, unless their policy is radically silered, they demand another wage increase. This can go on and on until the people whose wages don't keep up with the irend are squeezed to the consistency of apple builter.

Bootlegging

Retail Price-Fixing Would Revive It on a Huge Scale

While the Price Control Bill languishes While the Price Control Bill languisties under the sign) of Congressional pressure groups, the Office of Price Administration is going right shaced on its own. Latest OPA move, easys the Wall Street Journal, is a decision to freeze by decree the prices which manufacturers of radios, electric refrigerators, perhaps furniture and other consumer durable goods quite to retailers.

Atter that, 'It is presumed, the next step would be a freezing of retail prices on these articles.

Already OPA is expanding its personnel in order to police and enforce the frozen manufacturers' prices. If it is tempts to go further and put a ceiling on retail prices, they dy probably have to pass another draft act to get enough wen to never a very rules lag.

oir retail prices, they'd probably have to bas another draft act to get enough men to peer at every price tag.

This has always been a great mation for bootlegging. We started emuggling significant as and ended up running Sooksh liquor through our own Coast client of the started emuggling signifiant as and ended upon by undue tariffs and restrictions, we have evaded them. In a certain sense, bootlegging is one of our few distinguishing national characteristics.

If this country ever finds likelf within the contrage of household durable pools that the Covernment feels obliged to keep prices down by freezing them, we are going to have the worst ers of bootlegging yet.

The tragedy of such a situation would be that it could have been avoided; It is ween't for a few selfish tobbes in which we have a such as the starter of cost controlled, there would be incommitted and on wages. With all the factors of cost controlled, the also measured the processing the the factors of cost controlled, there would be no necessity for fixing the prices of radius or refelgerators or anything else. Control costs and competition will take care of prices. Try to freeze prices without controlling even one or two principal cost factors and the result is bound to be bootlegging on a scale Capone never dreamed of.

Among other things, Herr Hiller is the all-time roply to those who think it sobers the yelloo to give him political responsibility.
