What he said was that the Naxis were irresistible, that England was sure to fall, that the Naxis did not menace us but on the contrary offered us a good chance to do business, and that all we had to do to be safe was to cut off aid to Britain, and stay at home and mind our new husbess.

All this files in the face of the people really competent to pass on the question, including the State Department, the military high command of the Unit-distance, and the corps of veteran diplomatic and newspaper observers.

In any case, the argument he puts forward is admirably calculated to breed defeating and dissension among us, to hamstring the policy already settled on by the nation and further Militer's aim of first dividing and then destroying.

Whether Charles A. Lindbergh has quisling tendencies or not doesn't particularly matter. The pish fact of the case is that, whatever his purpose, he is actually worth several million ordinary Fifth Columnists to Adolf Hitter.

Our Choice

We Must Decide Whether England Shall Go Down

It is no accident, of course, that the defeatists are now grabbing the stage to assure us that England is doomed. They hope to capitatise on the fall of Yugoslavia and the threatening fall of Grecce to prove their claims.

But the war is not lost. No war is verled until either the forces or the morals of one of the conflicting sides is de-stroved.

There is no reason to suppose that stroyed.

There is no reason to suppose that England's morals is near cracking. But unfortunately there is very great reason to fear that her sea power may be about to break, in the Atlantic.
The time for our own decision is at hand. We must make up our minds to follow through on the Lend-Lease Bill and use our sea and air power to see that the supplies reach England, or we may as well take the Lindbergh course, and give up ald-for-Britain attogether. There is no sense in building planes and guns for the bottom of the sea. We cannot duck that decision. Openly or tacility we are bound to make it, one way or the other. If we rock along the war is lost so far as England goes, and we had better begin to get ready to fight alone when Hitler gets ready to fight alone when Hitler gets ready to take his revenge for what he will not forgive—united we are prepared to apforgive—unless we are prepared to ap-pease all the way and accept his yoke pease all the way and accept his yoke quietly.

It is nonzense to say that the war cannot be won, but it requires that the full resources of the United States shall be brought to bear upon the purpose. And we may as well understand that that almost certainly means shooting. If we cannot accept that, and it is a hard prospect, then we shall have to accept the alternative—which probably means shooting in the end also.

No wish-thinking can change the attuation in which we find ourselves. We cannot have our sort of world without being prepared to fight for it. And we are only paralyzing ourselves when we try to think so.

TO MEMPHIE AND BACK IN A DAY

This sleek, shining mass of machinery that we call the simplane makes # possible to be here today and there tomorrow in a sense that would have left George Washington diesy. A few weeks ago I was obliged to make a quick trip from Washington to Mam-phia, Tenn. After breakfast at home pitis. Trans. After breakfast at home in Washington, I down to the skrporislets on an 8:30 A. M. plane. By 2 P. Mc. I was in Memphila. I spent the afternoon and evening there, boarded a return alseper plane at midnight, and:
was back at home in Washington before daylight. I met the indimensi at the door. I step two hours and thenhad breakfast with my lamily. In other words, I had gone harlway across the continent, spent an afternoon and evening at my destination on the bank of the Mississippi River, and returned to Washington without even bank of the Mississippi River, and re-turned to Washington without even skipping breakfast at home. It was as if I had merely stayed downtown for one svening, missing dinner at home.

TO MEXICO CITY IN BEVENTEEN HOURS

On this present trip, I left Washing-lon at one o'clock in the morning, went-to bed in a berth that slept like a bed-at home, woke up in Dallas, Texas, and at home, woke up in Dallas, Texas, and by late afternoon—before 8 P. M. — I was in this hotel room here in Mexico. City. Mountains, rivers, and desert all

City, Montains, rivers, and desert ail took alike to the airplane. From this capital of the United States to the acquisition of the United States to the acquisition of the United States to the Company of the Company of the United States of the American and British difficials are hopping best and forth across the Alantic and it is exactely any more of a trip than traviling from Weshington to Chicago. True, the stripton is being put by inhuman work. In this war, it is saveling as one of the prestest destinutine forces of all time. It has made wargare into a frightfull kind of meas massacre of civilians, in a rewriston, to the primitive and barbarous days when invading armies butchered capetity peoples. Evil as title is demonstrates the power of the simplane and suggests the economous constructions.

AIRPLANE CAN BE

That opportunity will come after the war effic. Aviation is where the rail-road was in Lincoln's day when, slow and wherey, it, just barely spanned the continent.

The sirplane can be made a potent olice weapon for international peace police weapon for international peace if the surviving nations have estate enough to organize a peace. Its civilian uses can be multiplied infinitely. We shall have enounce facilities for manufacturing planes. We shall have introduced to plane and mechanics. The plane can be made the common mode of travel. Its use for light freshift can be extended to revolutionary success.
