Brash Men Have Their Uses When They Set Out Facts

Claude Pepper will certainly be de-nounced by the appeasers as a warlock, and many millions will think him too rash—and brash.

Yet the calm fact that in his speech yesterday he pointed up questions which are increagable under penalty of disas-ter, and which the nation, with the Ad-ministration at its head, is refusing to force.

ministration at its nead, is returning to face.

The Administration, do we say? More accurately, the President of the United States himself. Becretary Hull and Secretary Knox are already on record as pointing out that it is nonsense to send England goods which are going to be sunk by the Nazis white en route, and that convey right on into the so-called war somes—both those that are sayintarily marked out by Germany and the much smaller ones fixed under our own Neutrality Act—is the only possible solution to that problem, abort of retreat into appearement and certain destruction.

And now comes Secretary Stimson to

And now comes Secretary Silmson to And now comes Secretary Silmson to Any the same thing. But the President does not say it in Interest he cose on sending up these trial balloons—every-one understands that these Cabhret speeches are exactly that—in what looks like a very ague of fear that he cannot count on the American people to back him in decisions and actions necessary to the quitonal safety and even the national existence. Perings his fears are right; but if so the American nation is already in process of disintegration, and the sooner it is demonstrated the better. But, according to the opinion polis, more than 70 per cent of the people are in favor of convoy, even if that involves shooting (war), provided the alternative is the fail of Britain. Is that not good evidence that there is nothing really wrong with the American people as a whole, but that they hestate simply because they feel—quite rightly—that if we are faced with this alternative, it is the President's own business to inform them personally and frankly and fally, to assume the function of leadership which is his right and his duty? But the matter goes beyond convoy. Pepper undoubtedly stepped out ahead of American opinion yesterday when he proposed that we take the initiative in the East and, from Chinese bases, bomb Tokyo, an easily burned city.

But what about his references to the the East and, from Chinese bases, bomb Tokyo, an easily burned city.

But what about his references to the Azores, the Canaries, the Cape Verdes, Dakar, Greenland, Iceland?

The Azores bear exactly the same relation to our Atlantic Coast that Hawaii bears to our Pacific Coast. The Canaries, the Cape Verdes, and Dakar bear the same relationably to Latin America.

Even more important at the moment, these points, with Iceland, dominate the Fastern Atlantic along its whole length. If Hiller gets to them first, convoy isn't going to be of much use. Or at least, it is going to involve enormous losses for our mavy, inevitably great losses in supply.

and the many meritany great toases in supply. As for Greenland, it dominates the whole northern quarter of the Western Atlantic, the waters off Canada, And our present unclear policy there is cer-tainly ground for uneasiness.

tainly ground for unealness.

It is a grim prospect. But we are not going to solve it reasonably by simply pretending that it doesn't exist. The alternative to facing it, as Herbert Agar pointed out at Pock Hull lash night, is likely to be the defeat of Britain, the passage of the British navy into Naxi hands, and perhaps the distintegration of the United States from within during the next twelve months.

It is vilamin A that helps one see in , the dark. To find a tennis bat under the overshoes in a hall closet, eat plenty of carrots and such.

It is assumed the gods, fleeling Olym-pus, left documents behind which will prove the Nazis cracked the foul con-spiracy in the nick of time.

It appears that one of Morgenthau's right-hand boys in the Treasury is a John L. Bullivan. The taxpayer who had an idea of not coming along quietly is hereby informed.

Senator Tober of New Hampshire, who bied at verty pore some months ago to block the taking of the census on the ground that it was an infringement on the personal liberty of God-fearing American citizens, proposes to hold up this vital measure by trying to hook on to it a rider against convoys. He knows that will delay the vote. He knows it will only open up a controversial subject and draw into the debate a score of other Benators whose whole course, in the last year has been with the effect, if not the intention, of obstructing Britain's effort to survive, whose whole course has been in give alid and comfort to Hilber and whose policies, if they had prevailed would by now probably have left us standing slone with a one-ocean may in a world of Asia victory miltiplied by addition of the British Flect
