Progress Zero Investigation of Judge Redd City Off to No Start At All

On the day a committee of three City Councilmen was appointed by Mayor Currie to investigate charges made against Judge Marion Redd of Domestic Relations Court...

It is not surprising, inasmuch as the committee wants to stick his thumb in the eye of Judge Redd, by examining the records for the same purpose, yet at the same time, the charges were entered and the official they concerned is one who was placed on the bench by the City and County Government...

Canonically belittled the German drive. On the 6th date of the second annual summary, the High Command's report made frequent mention of "stubborn" Russian resistance, strong fortifications, unfavorable terrain and bad weather.

On Aug. 7 the Associated Press reported from Berlin that as far as was known there the German spearhead directed at Moscow was stationary. On Aug. 8 the drives toward Kiev were shunted toward the south and the Black Sea, as though a wall had turned them aside.

The wall is father to the notion, of course, but could it be possible that Germany, to a world eager for bad tidings of her armies, flings out her padded estimates on Russian casualties at those times when the High Command has nothing else to brag about? Alas, we reckon not—not this time, anyhow.

Man-To-Man "Judge Hardy" Roosevelt Talks With "Andy" Nomura

In approved "Hardy Family" style, the Associated Press reports that "man-to-man" talks between President Roosevelt and Japanese Ambassador Nomura continued unabated in much secrecy.

It is difficult to imagine which of the talkers is Lewis Stone and which is Mikki Miki. It appears that some responsible Washington newspaper men are quite hopeful that these conversations will result in some compromise in much secrecy.

Despite the ominous drum-beats from Tokyo, they are optimistically speculating on a return to pre-freezing levels of trade with Nippon.

All sorts of guesses are going around: That Japan might back up in China and withdraw from the Asian, that the United States might "contemplate" without official recognition, the seizure of Manchuria.

The latest Japanese venture in Indo-China, the most immediate source of irritation and the most direct cause of the freezing out of trade, is seldom mentioned.

Experts are pointing out that the United States does not want war with Japan now. True enough. It would impede the delivery of supplies to Britain, which is precisely why Hitler stirred up Japan.

But we hope that President Roosevelt is making it sufficiently clear to Ambassador Nomura that this time it is the Japanese who are going to have to have to do the appeasing. Let them call it a compromise if they wish—but keep the heat on.

We should hold fast here in spite of the siren song that the strategy of the year 34 million pounds of Japanese silk was shipped to this country. It is now clear that unless a larger proportion of substitute fiber is released to hosiery mills, the deficit overcome by the less margin on silk cannot be made up in less than a year. Even though the shut-out is depriving women of cherished silk hose—and far worse—throwing thousands of men and women out of work, American public opinion is standing fast. It is up to President Roosevelt to take the lead in the struggle.

War communique writers of Moscow and Berlin may never understand how accounts of the Yankees dropping a doubleheader to the Browns got into the New York papers.

Exit Little Business

By Hugh S. Johnson

TRUSTEES: Thomas Arnold must not have a continuous headache these days and I wonder about Senator O'Mahoney's joint anti-monopoly committee. Both of these able men are sincere believers in decentralization of business into smaller units and the creation of great industrial empires. They have worked hard at this job and Mr. Arnold had built up the railway and streetcar industry into an efficient organization for doing this that the country has yet seen.

But all they have accomplished is a drop in the bucket to what other efforts of the Government have done to reverse the trend they seek and to accelerate the process never imagined—and the process is only just beginning. Little business in this country is on its way out.

MY FELLOW GET THE MESSAGE: In July it was reliably reported that of Army and Navy defense business six great companies had received 81 per cent of all and of airplane and aircraft business it is a matter of billions and is, of itself, a gigantic dislocation.

It is compelling the elimination of the story. If smaller enterprises were left free to take non-defense work, they would be able to head above water. But such a head is not permitted for several reasons.

It is a complex system which is difficult to understand. Some of it is a result of headlong, unprincipled business. Some of it is a result of inflation control and all of it is a result of government policy.

The British Revolution

By Dorothy Thompson

IN twenty-four hours of peace and solitude in a London house, I have written a leading question: What is it that is so peculiarly British about the British Revolution?

It is not the fact that it is a revolution, but that it is a revolution of the human mind. It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind.

It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind. It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind.

It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind. It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind.

It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind. It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind.

It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind. It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind.

It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind. It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind.

It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind. It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind.

It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind. It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind.

It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind. It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind.

It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind. It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind.

It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind. It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind.

It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind. It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind.

It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind. It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind.

Letters to the Editor: The Story Of Charlotte

Editors, The News: I have just finished reading the Story of the Queen City of the Carolinas—Charlotte. It is a beautiful job well done and I think it is the best brochure that I have ever seen descriptive of a city.

On behalf of our members and others we express our sincere appreciation and say "Thank You" to C. O. KLEIN, Executive Vice-President, Charlotte Chamber of Commerce, Charlotte.

Co-Operation Acknowledged: I thank you kindly for furnishing me with pages 3 and 4 of the Charlotte News of August 20, 1941, which carries an article "Without Borders are Not Well Paid" signed by the writer.

Check and Double Check: William P. Freeman, the town's engineer comes down every now and then to find out what the Commissioners know about the PWA projects, and the town board's always glad to see him, because they want to find out what he knows.

Labor Day Parade—1941: There is no space to discuss these diverse and great theories here, further than to say that every single one of them is a good one. The increase in monopoly and destruction of small business in our history is a result of the effort out of hill climbing with improved brakes, lights and other things to take the place of the "two-wheel" and "Bicycle Built" is a substantial industry.

No Reduction in Bicycle Production: Among other interesting statistics available at this time, let us note that the number of bicycles sold in the United States last year. The first six months of 1941 show a decrease in the number of bicycles sold in the United States last year.

Stupid American Isolationism: It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind. It is not the fact that it is a revolution of the human mind, but that it is a revolution of the human mind.
