

With Night AN LTI

REMEMBER THE HAMMER AND ANVIL. Goering, Hitler's right-hand man, was scheduled to appear at the main speaker at a meeting of the National Socialist German Workers' Party in the main hall of the Reichstag building. The speaker of the Communist Party, the ruthless Ernst Thälmann, was to command the meeting. Our local leaders had arranged this duty, perhaps because they were hearing of Goering's visit to the Reichstag. As a newspaper, it was delighted to do the job.

Thousands jammed the hall around the speaker's stage, storming to the speaker's shoulder to shake hands. A brass band played a march. Crimen banners of gigantic size covered the walls. A hundred speakers, each with a microphone, were arranged in a semi-circle around the speaker's stage. A crowd of thousands was packed in the hall.

All of a sudden the array of speakers along the walls stood in attention. Right arms flew upward. The brass band played a march. The speaker's stage trembled as the human sea broke out in one tremendous shout.

"Heil Hitler!"

The speaker's voice rose above the din. He stepped down the aisle toward the speaker's stage. They were followed by a crowd of thousands. The speaker's stage trembled as the human sea broke out in one tremendous shout.

My mother, who lived a quiet life in her tiny Bremen apartment, received a letter from me. She was shocked and dismayed. She had heard of the Hitler movement and was sure that I was a fool. She had seen the pictures in the newspapers and had heard the speeches of the leaders. She was sure that I was a fool.

The Hitler movement was sweeping the country like a storm. It was a movement of the masses. It was a movement of the young. It was a movement of the future.

and hurried staffs of the small red battalions through the densely packed auditorium. There was a general confusion. I leaped off the stage over the heads of the troops below. I landed in the middle of the hall. A blackjack came down on my head. In the excitement I nearly missed the impact. The blackjack had left their points of vantage along the walls, and were aiming toward the center. The hall, to fall upon the intruder. A terrifying melee followed. Blackjacks, brass knuckles, clubs, heavy buckled belts, glasses and bottles were the weapons used. Fists of steel and chairs hurled over the heads of the audience. Men from both sides broke off coats, ties and shirts in the crash and scream of battle. Already dozens of injured boys and girls were being carried away. The Hitlerites had left their points of vantage along the walls, and were aiming toward the center. The hall, to fall upon the intruder. A terrifying melee followed. Blackjacks, brass knuckles, clubs, heavy buckled belts, glasses and bottles were the weapons used. Fists of steel and chairs hurled over the heads of the audience. Men from both sides broke off coats, ties and shirts in the crash and scream of battle. Already dozens of injured boys and girls were being carried away.

My mother, who lived a quiet life in her tiny Bremen apartment, received a letter from me. She was shocked and dismayed. She had heard of the Hitler movement and was sure that I was a fool. She had seen the pictures in the newspapers and had heard the speeches of the leaders. She was sure that I was a fool.

The Hitler movement was sweeping the country like a storm. It was a movement of the masses. It was a movement of the young. It was a movement of the future.

The Hitler movement was sweeping the country like a storm. It was a movement of the masses. It was a movement of the young. It was a movement of the future.

The Hitler movement was sweeping the country like a storm. It was a movement of the masses. It was a movement of the young. It was a movement of the future.

Communist column. A special committee, headed by Thälmann, Hitler's right-hand man, was set up to carry the instructions into effect. Summed up in a series of instructions were: "United action of the Communist Party and the Hitler movement to overthrow the present government and to establish a new government which governs Germany."

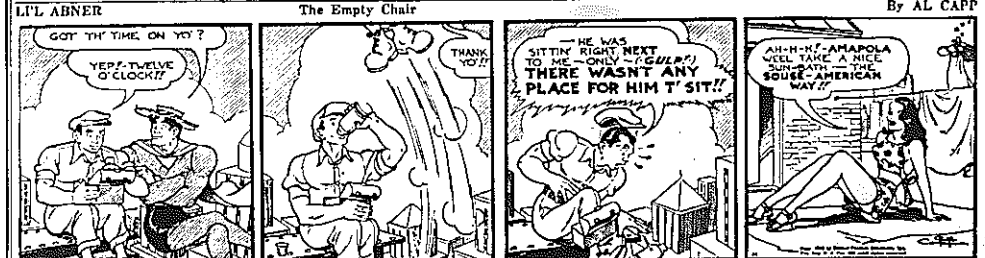

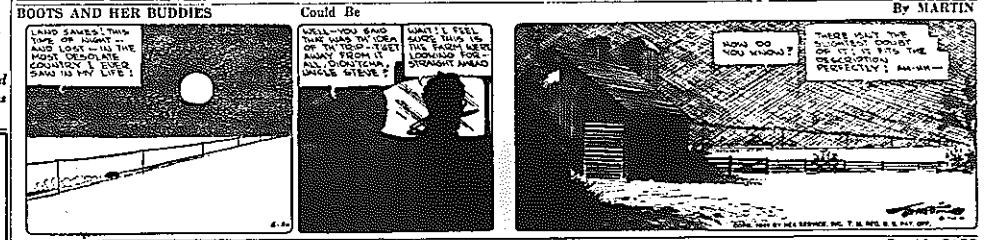

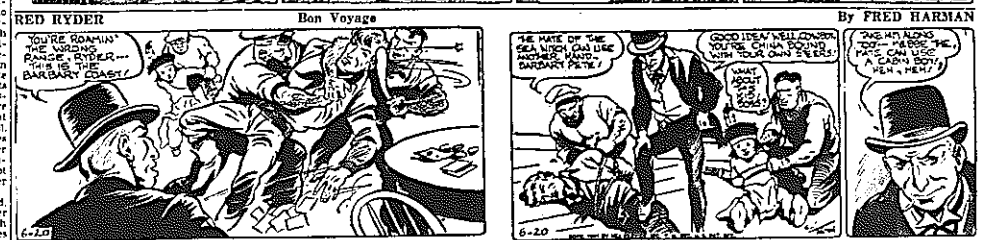

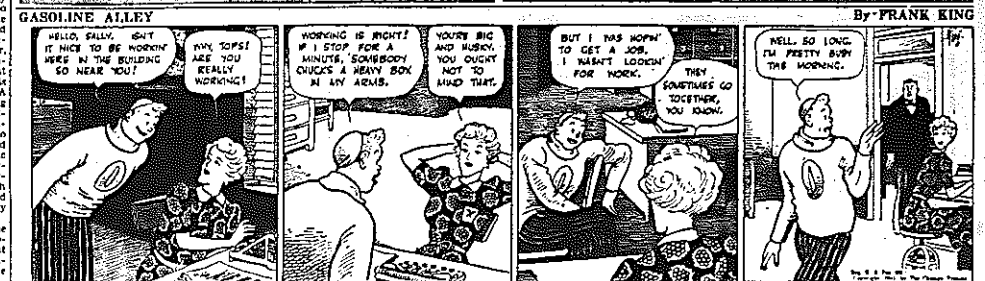

It was a well-aided alliance, never officially proclaimed or recognized by either the Red or the Brown. The instructions were: "United action of the Communist Party and the Hitler movement to overthrow the present government and to establish a new government which governs Germany."

My mother, who lived a quiet life in her tiny Bremen apartment, received a letter from me. She was shocked and dismayed. She had heard of the Hitler movement and was sure that I was a fool. She had seen the pictures in the newspapers and had heard the speeches of the leaders. She was sure that I was a fool.

The Hitler movement was sweeping the country like a storm. It was a movement of the masses. It was a movement of the young. It was a movement of the future.

The Hitler movement was sweeping the country like a storm. It was a movement of the masses. It was a movement of the young. It was a movement of the future.

The Hitler movement was sweeping the country like a storm. It was a movement of the masses. It was a movement of the young. It was a movement of the future.

Hold Everything By Clyde Lewis

CASH AWARDS

Possible To Win $30.00 TONIGHT!

Listen To Cheerwine's LADY-LUCK

RADIO PROGRAM W S O C 8:00 P. M. Every Friday NIGHT

FUN * MUSIC EXCITEMENT!

Listen For Your NAME Collect CASH AWARD

Cheerwine

...wouldn't pay five bucks for me, eh? Well, I'll give you for twenty—how do you like that?

...I was told I had a vitamin B complex deficiency.

...I was told I had a vitamin B complex deficiency.