If speeders arrested must stand trial, the State has decided that it is indeed pity that 1300 persons were killed by intomobiles in North Carolina last year, Overnor Broughton has demanded that patrol do something about it. And do not doubt that the patrol can and do not doubt that the pairol can and all stop speeding.

Of course, they could have done it last south, or last year, or ten years ago, and aswed a lot of lives in the doing.

But North Carolina is a remarkable falte. Every law is good for at least Caree newspaper stories: one when it is fair-oduced in the Legislature, one when it is passed, and another when the executive officials decide that it outh to be enforced. A Relish for all the Days

Was His Grent Distinction

In eulogiting a prominent citizen to whom death has come, there is a requisite of sanctity. In the same sense of mally mortus nits bonum, there is an equal obligation to highlight the sterner viriues, is now, and to innerealize the perconality which has departed.

Of Thomas Calaborne Guthrie, 76, a formal and wholly orthodox eulogy much be written without laboring the point. He was a prominent citizen, although in a way strictly of his own determination. He was a famous lawyer, and the profession was a large part of his life. He had been, along with the late John M. Morchad, C. B. Bryant, W. S. Lee and others, a president of the Charlotte Country Cibu, on the walls of which now hangs a friendly caricature of him which he much appreciated.

But it is Tom Guthrie, not Thomas Claborne Guthrie, whom his friends will prefer to remember: Tom Guthrie of the enormous girth and the deep chuckle. The measure mind that he brought to bear on the practice of law was likewise a mind that contained a whole anthology of amouning stories, which he bold with gusto. He was decidedly convivial, a choice companion who preferred the company of men and of his three sons. He was, or course, a kind man, a good man. But his distinguishing characteristic was the indealigable relish with which he went about his days. He was, in fine, a grand old fellow, and would have preferred to be described as such.

Unless Congress does something about it, a good many of the officers and men in the U. S. armed forces are going to have a tought time of it along toward March 15. Income taxes. Yes, sir, they have to pay 'em'tike everybody elle. Every man who makes more than $50 a month tuntess he has dependents! has got to account to Uncle Sam. In the case of soldiers it doesn't seem quite, right, for a number of reasons. First off, if the Government is going to pay a man a salary, why not deeded on the figure without taking back part of it at the end of the year? Giving and then taking is expensive for the Government and hard on morale. And that not the worst of it. Let the troops get the idea that the Government is being unnecessarily tough on them and one fine day when they're demobilized, we'll have another boous army on our necks. "Yeah," they'll be agying, "not only did we get paid, practically nothing 'enhi, but the tax collectors atepped in and took back part of the Ittle bit we did ket..."

To keep income taxes from forching soldiers to borrow from son sharks—about the only place—in the 13-200 examples for colleters, ashort and millisted man and military life are altoned force. With the end of the war, the exemption for colleters altons and marken—about the only place—in the first open reads to the last war. It didn't cost the Government much—a few million dollars, maybe—and it took a high burden off the armed force. With the end of the war, the exemption for colleters, altons and marken and military life are already so great that it hardly behooves the Government to be migrandly about collecting income taxes from its own army. Congress, should pass an exemption hill without delay—indeed, it is remarkable that no far-sightled politician has not already introduced such a measure. Fig. 1. The second of the seco

WASHINGTON.

THIS new labor plan of President Roosevelt's is one of those officand improvised schemes, but it can take

APL and the Clo if both sides play hall.

Mr. Roosereli's plan is simple. He proposes, to have both sides, sit down with him at fairly frequent intervals to take over anything that needs attention. Zach side will have three representatives, who will be chosen by President William Green for the AFL and by President Philip Rurray for the ClO. That seems to be all there is to it.

SIMPLICITY MAY

MEAN EFFICIENCY

But don't give the idea the brush-off just because it is simple. We sometimes lean too heavily on organization. Two or three men, if they have the authority and the will, can get more done in this kind of business than the most eleborate organization that a reditage striat could work out on paper.

That's what I like about the new war production board. It into an paper complicated. Mr. Roosevelt told Don Nelson to go sheat and do whatever he needed to do to obtain maximum output. Nelson in turn is parceling out the work to a number of other men and its giving them his foll authority. Organization is accordary in this kind of a civities, then are the key to be-men who have the will and the judgment and, most important of all, the authority.

the week. The chief thing to be said against the arrangement is that the President of the United States it as usual trying to do comething that should be delegated to another—in this case to the Sectiary of Labor. Or if not to Muss Perkins, then to Sistiny Hillman, head of the labor division of the War Production Board.

ROOSEVELT WILL BE ROOSEVELT WILL BE HIS OWN BEVIN
He could not give the job to Miss Perkins because of the feeling against her among the labor leaders. And as you know, Mr. Reosevelt does not displace his Cabinet officers. He either goes around them or takes on the work himself. Why he could not have given this job to fidney Hillman is not clear.
True, Mr. Hillman is loaded down with the job of organizing industrial manpower. But of course Mr. Reosevelt is loaded down, too. Mr. Hillman gets along with the other labor heads sufficiently well for this purpose. Perhaps they instance on having access to the President himself.
At any rate, instead of finding a Bestin and lurning the job over to him,
Mr. Roosevelt will handle it in person.
He will be his own Revin, with Hillman, Oreen and Murray as his chird avisers and floutenants. You might almost say that Mr. Roosevelt is setting up a new super-ministry of labor and is holding the portfolic himself.
Again the only test is—does it work?
So, pending time for an answer, there is little point in quibbling about the method chosen.
