A Congressional dilemma on food pieces is sping to occupy both Houses in the sass future, but it is not likely that its lidesting public will ever graup the sassementals of the debate.

The question: Whether food prices said be reduced, and producers recommend by additional payments from reverse sensit funds; or whether prices sensit has allowed to stay as they are, since seasify or or ollowith. It is another skirmish, and an important one, between the visionaries of the new day and the realists of the old. This issue, amplified, is fought at every turn. The final decision will do much to regulate our lives for years to come.
