Predicts Powerful Air Campaign Against Japs Forces In Pacific

BY WILLIAM WOODRICH
WITH THE SEVENTH ARMY

Air Force, SOUTHWEST PACIFIC;
Nov. 24 (Dialysis) — (P-38s). Gen.

Wells H. Hale, commanding the Seventh Army Air Force, predicted today the bombers of his command soon will begin a long campaign involving the most difficult flying in the world.

Today's Army, Navy and Marine forces on Makin and Tarawa in the Gilberts, make such an imminent campaign—during the American advance along the Marshall

Island chain and through other tiny Central Pacific islands—obvious.

Hale pointed out that heavy bombers already have made ten days a series of the world's longest bombing raids, hitting seven islands in the Gilberts and Marshalls preparatory to troop landings.

These sorties flew repeatedly on raids of 1,800 to 2,400 miles at speeds of 350 to 600 miles a week, hitting minute islands as targets and returning to bases equally tribute. The Japanese failed to do much damage.

"The purpose of these raids and coming actions," Hale said,

"is to harass back of the Japs and to keep them from even the frontal islands, attack bases from which supplies and reinforcements are sent to the front."

"Our continued purpose will be to hit farther and farther into our own land forces areas and to keep the Japanese from advancing. It is hard and operative conditions not comparable to those anywhere else.

If our navigators fail to get them there, they will go to the intended base, they have nowhere else to go except into the sea."

Hale also said the Central Pacific Islands are ideally suited to attack because they are sparsely populated and are located to form stepping stones and thus to afford the enemy extreme mobility.

More than a month ago, he said, Jap ground crews, fuel stores and repair facilities were secretly moved into all these bases.

Now the Americans have to shift actual airfields and combat crews to begin operations at a new place, whereas Americans going to the new bases have the entire burden of logistics.

On the peasant side of the picture, Gen. Hale underscored the fact that the Japanese have actually no fleet of American airplanes and he predicted an extremely fast pace for subsequent actions, keeping the enemy "constantly on the defensive," and eventually opening "a direct channel across the Pacific to Japan."

To date there have been but two American fighter planes which have been shot down by the Japs operating over Europe out of England. These are the P-51
"Mustang," and the P-47 "Thunderbolts."
