sances, their walkout in wartime, in violation of a no-strike ploege, would seem to be just that. But the story deserves a longer teilling.

It goes like the ten little Indians, sitting on the wall. It bears upon the rights of workingmen only in fantastic indirection. It involves wages, hours and working conditions not at all. It seems pretty far-fetched, even as a jurisdictional dispute.

First, six members of the Mechanics Educational Society of America were fired in Todedo, because they failed to maintain membership in the CIO. The company was bound to take such action under a familiar WLB polley: maintenance of membership: This compromise principle had been widely accepted by labor and management alike for the duration. Well, the six were fired.

Other MESA members. The six by now numbering 350, walked out in sympathy — in four other Toledo plants. It spread. Mechanics in Detroit, numbered at 20,000 by MESA officials, closed the 24 war plants. War production was halted, Mr. Patterson spoke, and the Government stepped in,
foreing the men back to work.
