

10 SATURDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1945

Obligation

The Harrison report to the White House on the condition of Jews in occupied Germany was the basis of President Truman's current effort to improve their situation. The report has since been questioned by a group of American reporters who visited the displaced camp in Bavaria...

Honest Reporting

Philip Murray, president of the CIO, has a message at the press in the course of discussing veterans' anti-labor attitudes in Congress. "Labor cannot get its story presented fairly and properly," he charges...

For The Nurses

There is a movement afoot in Washington to make a $2,000,000 gesture of appreciation toward Army and Navy nurses. Mrs. Norman T. Kirk, wife of the army's Surgeon General, has announced the formation of a National Memorial and the beginning of a campaign for funds to provide a social center and temporary residence for the 80,000 women who served so magnificently throughout the war...

Statesmen At Work

SENATOR BILBO of Mississippi had published in the filibuster for 30 days in order to get a law passed which would raise rates on land-grant railroads. He almost got started Tuesday when Senator Reed of North Carolina was presiding. Mr. BILBO, Mr. President, I desire to propose a parliamentary inquiry before the Senate will vote on the bill...

First Failure

There are a few conclusions to be drawn from the failure of the Government to work out a satisfactory solution to the oil strike, the first labor issue to be faced by the Truman Administration and by no means the last. The spirit of compromise which has characterized the actions of the Government is evident here. It is true, of course, that the compromise was a complete one. Secretary Schwechenbach offered the union half of the 30 per cent wage increase it had demanded...

Drop in Charge

A sample of the type of men in top control of Germany is Brig. Gen. William H. Draper, head of Dillon-Read & Co., which did considerable business with the Nazis before the war. Draper is in charge of overall economic policy and constantly pursues a plan of rebuilding Germany...

Capitol Chaff

Congressman Jim For of Queens will be the new Democratic boss of New York City if Bill O'Dwyer is elected Mayor. William Benton, now Assistant Secretary of State in charge of press relations is one of the first top State Department officials who has doffed the starchy suit, meets visitors with his sleeves rolled up...

'Ammunition, Ammunition, Please!'

Members of Congress who are for aid to liberated countries are not so qualified as it may be obvious how difficult it will be to find a program finally adopted. The number of the qualified are limited by an inflationary process through the confusion and confusion of the war...

THERE is a lot more than meets the eye behind the cluster of pistol-packing. Gen. George S. Patton Jr. as Governor of Bavaria. Actually, members of General Eisenhower's staff knew for weeks that Patton was discharging orders, but he would not say so...

"Hells bells," exploded Patton, "when a fellow goes into a town without a burgometer who is invariably a Nazi, he will be up the creek without a paddle." General Clay smiled and replied, "We're not in the top Germany efficiently. We're here to get the Nazis out."

Capitol Chaff

Congressman Jim For of Queens will be the new Democratic boss of New York City if Bill O'Dwyer is elected Mayor. William Benton, now Assistant Secretary of State in charge of press relations is one of the first top State Department officials who has doffed the starchy suit, meets visitors with his sleeves rolled up...

'Ammunition, Ammunition, Please!'

Members of Congress who are for aid to liberated countries are not so qualified as it may be obvious how difficult it will be to find a program finally adopted. The number of the qualified are limited by an inflationary process through the confusion and confusion of the war...

At one meeting in Frankfurt recently, Colonel Bond asked Dr. "How can I be expected to get the industry of Germany going if I can't use German and Nazi cartels?"

At a similar meeting, Myer said, "The most important people in the steel industry were close to the Nazis. How can you run industry if you get rid of the Nazis?" The head of the transportation sector, Gen. John A. Appleton, insisted on using Herr Dorniermuller, who had been in charge of the railways for the Nazis after our occupation. He only stopped using Dorniermuller when Dorniermuller died at the age of 80 recently.

Not—Last summer, this columnist urged that President Truman's orders to the U. S. Army for governing Germany be published so that every GI in Germany and every American citizen could know what the orders were and whether they were being carried out. Finally this column published most of this secret order. Aside from the fact that the order has been widely criticized by the White House—and still is withheld from the public...

Capitol Chaff

Congressman Jim For of Queens will be the new Democratic boss of New York City if Bill O'Dwyer is elected Mayor. William Benton, now Assistant Secretary of State in charge of press relations is one of the first top State Department officials who has doffed the starchy suit, meets visitors with his sleeves rolled up...

'Ammunition, Ammunition, Please!'

Members of Congress who are for aid to liberated countries are not so qualified as it may be obvious how difficult it will be to find a program finally adopted. The number of the qualified are limited by an inflationary process through the confusion and confusion of the war...

Europe's Vast Misery

By Marquis Childs
"Enthusiastic supporter of the idea," La Polite said he has read and heard of the disturbing reports of aid being given or withheld depending on the victim's race or political color...

North Carolina Looks Ahead

Another in a Series Taken From A Report By The State Planning Board
If North Carolina's failure to process her great peanut crop is to be deplored her failure to exploit the soybean has been down-right tragedy, the more poignant because she "missed the boat" by such a little. E. J. Dies in his book, Soybeans, Gold from the Soil, includes some items that make interesting, if sad, reading to North Carolinians. He points out that William J. Morse, the soybean enthusiast who brought the varieties from China found in 1914 that eastern North Carolina was growing more soybeans than any other area...

People's Platform

The American people are entitled to a complete and honest account of conditions and supplies and requirements at home and abroad before they can intelligently answer your question. Most of those who qualify their approval indicate they would vote for commitments for immediate relief made under UNRRA or a similar organization. Even here and there, they express doubts. They seem to be concerned about the operation of UNRRA's operation...

The Soldier Viewpoint

By MRS. C. R. HOFFMAN
I am sending you a letter from my son who is now in Germany. He is in the 1st Army Division and fought all the way across Germany. The present system is one of the fairest things the Army has ever done. While it isn't as good as that of the British, it is still pretty fair for most of the guys. True, there are a few who are better than others who have a lot less points than fellows who are still over here. That is bound to happen now and then. In general, though, it is the high point men who are going home as long as they are working it that way, and finally get down to my level. I won't mind. I just don't want to be left behind. When we read there a dispatch from North Carolina in which the soldiers in protest against drafting men and cancel the call for 25 years of military service. Who the hell do they think they are, anyway? Why shouldn't they keep coming home and doing their work over here to take the place of the fellows who are here now and who are being drafted. As for myself, I don't mind being stuck here for a while. There will be a guy over here to take the place of the fellows who are self-styled Southern gentlemen...

Quote, Unquote

I BELIEVE we can look forward to a period of at least five years of prosperity. Such a country has never witnessed before. —Erman W. Steinkamp, Bridgeport, Conn.
Prompt re-establishment of our overseas commercial connections is an important factor in any program for our future economic growth and maximum employment. —Thomas Jefferson Miles, Secretary of Commerce and Industry Association of New York

North Carolina Looks Ahead

Another in a Series Taken From A Report By The State Planning Board
If North Carolina's failure to process her great peanut crop is to be deplored her failure to exploit the soybean has been down-right tragedy, the more poignant because she "missed the boat" by such a little. E. J. Dies in his book, Soybeans, Gold from the Soil, includes some items that make interesting, if sad, reading to North Carolinians. He points out that William J. Morse, the soybean enthusiast who brought the varieties from China found in 1914 that eastern North Carolina was growing more soybeans than any other area...

Carolinian's Vision

Staley had led Julian, North Carolina as a young man and became a food products salesman. More important, string capital he started the manufacture of starch and other corn products in Illinois. By the time he began processing soybeans he had one of the largest corn refining businesses in the country. When he urged the farmers of central Illinois to raise and harvest soybeans, he had confidence in his ability to sell and use them. He put on an educational program with speakers, exhibits and pamphlets to increase the acreage and yield and the introduction of varieties with the highest oil content. He made improvements in extracting the oil and carried on research in refining and producing a suitable soy flour in adapting soy flour to human consumption and to animal feeds needing a high protein content...

Table with 2 columns: Item and Quantity. Includes items like Omelette, Compound and vegetable cooking, Oleomargarine, Other edible products, etc.