

A Shot-Gun Indictment

Dr. George Hays, preparing to turn the City Health Department over to his permanent successor, brings forth a charge of political interference with his department's milk inspectors.

pared to cite chapter and verse when he appears before the Board of Health tomorrow night at a session called at his request.

Santa Claus And The Atom

A sociologist at Goucher College speaks of such an irrelevant matter as mythology, and the stark outlines of the Atomic Age fall into place.

shotgun, and returned to inform his children that Santa Claus had just committed suicide.

Roosevelt Challenged Churchill

Roosevelt, who could be both friendly and blunt with Churchill, told him frankly of his fears regarding British policy in Western Germany.

Navy Loves MacArthur

In the lobby of the Mayflower Hotel last week was an interesting Navy exhibit of the photographs of all "War Leaders."

British Buck in Berlin

Since then, however, the behavior of Sir Percy Mills, British member of the Allied Economic Directorate in Berlin, has been just the opposite of the Churchill-Roosevelt agreement.

Ickes For Governor

IT seems to me a quite obvious suggestion that Mr. Harold L. Ickes ought to be named our High Commissioner to Germany.

The Trigger-Happy South

The tentative, running record of the war, sent back in the fervid prose of the correspondents and the studied understatement of the official communiques.

Ancient Delusions

Although they split the atom and scared the daylight out of every practical politician in the world, the professors are still regarded as starchy-eyed.

Looks Like A Good Chance To Wet His Whistle

The Red Army has a good chance to wet his whistle. It was felt that the Germans have devastated a large portion of the industries of Russia and of other neighboring allies.

Most of the photographs, however, were of military men, and they included almost every conceivable war leader—French Gen. Juin; also Gen. Catroux, French commander in Syria; Gen. Romulo of the Philippine Army; Col. Hurban of Czechoslovakia; Sir James Gammel, Chief of Staff of the British Army in the Mediterranean; Gen. Claire Chennault, who has now retired; Admiral Byrd, the Arctic explorer; and a long row of Mexican and South American generals.

Down Goes A Billion

What is a billion dollars? Something tangible, no doubt, the master of higher mathematics; but to most of us, I think, it means simply a hell of a lot of money.

Toward Clarifying State Laws

Secretary of State Thad. Eure, who is also responsible for the custody and distribution of North Carolina laws, has something when he advocates abandonment of the legislature's practice of making its enactments effective from and after the date of ratification.

They Take a Beating

The wonder is that men of Stassen's stature still want to be President. We give our public figures an awful beating.

Governor Dewey And Captain Stassen

The temptation always is to read great national significance into mid-term elections such as the majority contests held in important cities around the country.

"I'm delighted to have your relatives for Thanksgiving, Dear, but it would have been giving if they came on the 22nd!"

Practicing Scourge

Mr. Ickes is a democrat in the simple, direct, almost animal fashion in which he does it.

He is Leathery

Mr. Ickes is 71, but only has not looked his age. It has only made him leathery, a little more so than the old curmudgeon in this dubious charge.

The People's Platform
