tion hall for their beer rations said they hoped peace would bring "extra beer."

Natives at two Guam villages planned celebrations.

Tanoring, a community at Salt Lake City, thousands of airmen and servicemen sang and cheered.

KISSES EXCHANGED

In high cities at Albuquerque, N. M., patrons dumped fabrics over and kissed one another.

Hilarious college boys at Los Angeles ignited a large bonfire and organized a spiritual service. An impromptu square dance in a public square marked the celebration in Nashville, Tenn.

Thousands of servicemen packed the Randolph St. Riddle in Chicago. Outside the storm added to the turmoil.

Sailors at Kansas City celebrated by kissing their girl friends and home-going was another touch-and-automobile affair, many of them riding atop cars in a snake dance.

A parade of cars 10 miles long moved through Montgomery, Ala., and Montgomery Marine Corps Training Center.

In Denver, Colo., thousands of automobiles were driven madly through downtown streets, tooting a welcome to the end of the war.

The entire Pentagon in Washington, most nerve center of the Japanese war effort, was closed down with milling throngs of military sailors and civilians jamming streets around City Hall square and downtown streets to the raucous music of jazz bands.

Congress and thousands of persons in government service whooped it up in celebration of the realization that Japanese official surrender documents had been signed. Government workers poured around automobiles with radios.

Men and women in summer attire, hastily-designed costumes and some in pajamas, paraded along Broad St. in Newark, N. J., while factory whistles and Horns hailed and cheered. Impromptu crowds dumped waste-baskets and trash cans into a nearby Rahway River in Rahway, N. J., and burned the contents in Roselle, N. J.

Many smaller New Jersey communities hailed the reported surrender by assembling their local bands to lead parades of the splendidly conspicuous in Newark, scene of operations stopped by calls.

The jubilation exceed for second only to the United States. Malta was reported "going wild" with celebrations and Filipinos flinging tons of Japanese currency into the air.

Honolulu literally boiled up at the news in a riotous demonstration that included revelry and flame.

At Victoria, B. C., a milling, hand crowd of several thousand civilians and sailors hurled rocks through the front windows of a liquor store and had to be dispersed by police.

sued at 2:56 A. M. with a repetition of their task.

At the conclusion of the repetition the nation resumed their regular news programs once more. There was no comment about the latest U. S. surface bombardments of the Japanese homeland.

The FCC monitoring of the Tokyo broadcasts came to focus with the announcement by the United States that the message was in the English language.

JAP GENERAL'S STATEMENT

Dome the day the Japanese Domei agency broadcast a statement by Lieut. Gen. Torashiro Kawabe, chief of the general staff of the Japanese army, addressed specifically to the armies of Japan.

"The fact that the blood of our warriors was unable to set the world on a new path can be seen in the Imperial message at this time as a revelation of God," said Lieut. Gen. Kawabe. "I believe we should now direct all our efforts to the enhancement of culture through science.

"We must look up to the Imperial will and entrust ourselves to His Majesty's sacred and infinite will unswerving in following the path of righteousness."

Russian and Chinese [illegible] acceptance.

A radio report from Berlin said the Japanese had planned an answer and that it was on its way to the Allied capitals through the Swiss neutral diplomatic channels.

Rose had announced to reporters earlier in the day that Commodore James Vardaman, President Truman's Naval Aide, had talked to the Swiss Legation shortly after 7 A. M., and had been informed that the Swiss had received the ended surrender message in Berne.

This raised expectations that Japanese replies would be in the hands of Allied leaders in a matter of hours.

When the lengthy reply message arrived from Japanese military headquarters in Berlin, pressed for something other than the customary reply, Swiss officials there and a Washington source reported either could not or would not indicate a probable time of the receipt.

Because of four previous reports dealing with Communist Yardaman [illegible] Berlin, pressed for something other than the customary reply, Swiss officials there and a Washington source reported either could not or would not indicate a probable time of the receipt.

Rumors then went over the Washington and London radios that the Japanese reply had been received in Berne or Washington.
